CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE COMMON COUNCIL HAS A REMARKABLE SESSION.

President Hyde presided in the common council and all the members were present save Councilman Bates. The minutes of the last meeting were read and business from the upper branch was disposed of in concurrence. When the

came up Councilman Mead said that the city was in no shape to allow of the system being completed. The electrical appliances for the stable, an important part of the system, could not be put up, because the stable was not yet built, and even the foundation for it was not laid. The city would not accept the system until it had been tested and it could not be tested, and therefore could not be paid for till the stable appliances were put up.

Councilman Collins said the city had made a contract with the Gamewell Company after one of the most noteworthy and acrimonious contests that ever disturbed the city council. He had supposed that when a choice was made the matter was settled, but this did not appear to be the case. Some of the members desired to know why the Gamewell Company had not completed their contract, but he did not think they were called on to make any explanation. The contract was not signed until Nov. 11th, 1889.

SEVEN WEEKS

after it had been awarded to the company. Meantime the company had taken contracts from other cities, notably with Syracuse, and they naturally gave priority to the contracts that were awarded first. Another reason for delay was that the contract called for poles for the system, and there had been so much complaint of the streets being blockaded with poles, that the company did not wish to block up the streets unnecessarily, and as the statute gave them the right to use any poles used by the city, they were waiting for the location to be granted to the telephone company for its poles, under recommendation of the chief of the fire department and the city engineer, which poles were to be used by the telephone company, the city fire alarm system, and the police signal system. That location had only just been granted. Third, the contract called for a central office, stable appliances and 20 boxes. The city has no stable, it has not even laid the foundation for one, and it had never directed the company where to place its stable appliances. The city itself was delinquent, and we might call for an investigation of the cause of the delay in regard to the city's part. It might be said that if the boxes were put up the officers could use the telephones to talk with the central office, but the system would not belong to the city until completed, and the city would have no right to use a portion until it had accepted the system as a whole. He had also been informed by an officer of the company that all possible haste would be made, and that in a few weeks the system would be ready. There was no mention in the contract of any forfeiture, not a cent of the city's money had been invested, and he hoped the board would not concur as there was nothing to investigate.

Councilman Luke said he had been in favor of the Gamewell Company before and he was now, but he thought the company should have stated to the city council its reasons for delay, in a business like way. The committee was merely to find out the cause for delay, and he hoped the order would pass.

Councilman Porter said he had no animosity against any system, but he thought it was proper for the board of aldermen to ask for instructions. He had only seen the reasons given in the newspapers, but he thought a committee should learn them officially. The company need not feel that the city was over-exacting in merely asking why it had not kept its contract.

Councilman Collins said the previous speaker assumed that only the Gamewell Company was at fault, whereas the city was equally at fault. It had not provided a stable, it had designated any place where the stable appliances could be put. Councilman Estabrook asked why he did not amend the order to see why the city had not carried out its part of the contract? Councilman Hall said it seemed only right to have the committee, and if the company gave good reasons the city would be willing to accept the city's position of the delay. The gentleman from Ward 5 took as partisan a view of it, as if he were a stockholder in the company.

Councilman Mead said he did not see why the city should investigate, when it was not yet even ready to carry out its part of the contract. The Street Railway Company had been granted all it asked for and more, and why should an exception be made in this case?

Councilman Collins informed the member from Ward 4 that he was not a stockholder in the company, and that he did not know that any of the stock was for sale. The speakers on the other side say the committee is perfectly harmless, but what do they mean when they say that the contract is voidable at the option of the city. The company had been kept waiting for the chief of the fire department and the city engineer to locate the telephone poles.

Councilman Porter said he did not know how competent the previous speaker was to instruct the city solicitor but that was the opinion of the latter. Councilman Luke said the appointment of a committee would not affect the legal status of the company, and if the city had not kept its part of the contract this could be shown.

A vote was then taken and the order was lost. A batch of petitions, orders, etc., was then received from the upper branch and disposed of in concurrence. Councilman Porter, who had been absent in the lobby, returned and asked if a vote was legal when the members were not sitting in their seats in the circle.

He had noticed that one of the members was not in his seat when he voted against the Gamewell investigation, and he called for a valid vote.

President Hyde ruled that Councilman Mead was in order when he voted, but the councilman could take an appeal if he wished.

Concurrent business was then resumed, and after a time Councilman Porter rose to a question of order and wanted to read from the rules of the common council.

President Hyde ruled that this came under the head of new business for which there would be a place at the proper time.

Councilman Forkall said that when the member made his point of order, he should raise the point that too much business had intervened between the case and the point of the gentleman. He ought to have called it up at the time if he had then thought the vote was not legal.

Concurrent business was resumed and the question of the

came up on an order presented by Councilman Roffe appropriating $50 per month for the balance of the school year, for the conveyance of pupils from the south side of the city to the High School.

Councilman Forkall strongly objected and asked why not appropriate $500 a year for Wards 1 and 7 or for Wards 4 and 5. The order only passed the school board at the last meeting, probably, because three or four members were absent.

President Hyde stated for the information of the speaker, that the statement was not true.

Councilman Collins explained how the town had entered into a compact to appropriate enough to reduce the cost of getting to the High School from the south side of the city to the average amount paid from other sections. The city had ratified the compact, and it had been carried out for 27 years. Wards 5 and 6 asked it as a right, as it was the condition on which they gave up their advanced school at Newton Centre.

Councilman Porter asked why the proposition was not confined to this year, and perhaps the committee to confer with the B. & A. officers would make satisfactory arrangements.

Councilman Forkall said it was pure charity and nothing else, why not pay for the transportation of scholars from Skinner Hill?

Councilman Luke asked if any other part of the city had ever asked for such an appropriation.

President Hyde said they had not. Councilman Porter said he did not believe in spending $500 a year for 20 pupils.

Councilman Roffe replied that the order only called for $50 a month for the balance of the present school year.

Councilman Forkall amended to appropriate the same sum for Wards 1 and 7, and Councilman Estabrook seconded. The motion to suspend the rules for a second reading was lost.

THE FORGOTTEN HOPE.

Councilman Porter said he thought the vote on the Gamewell resolution should be reconsidered as one of the members was out of his seat when he voted and unless the president had given him leave to vote out of his seat he should appeal from his decision.

President Hyde said Councilman Mead was waiting to leave when the vote was taken, he had asked his permission to go and he should rule that he was right to vote as he did.

Councilman Forkall said he did not think any one outside of the board was empowered to answer for the delay, and that it was not necessary for outsiders, or members of the upper branch, to come in here and coach us as to what we should do or should not do on any question. The members ought to be able to act for themselves without outside help.

Councilman Porter said he did not feel that he had been coached by one. He had been willing to take counsel of those who were supposed to know about the rules, and he was even willing to sit at the feet of the member of Ward 1, if he was so well informed.

Councilman Luke thought the discussion was very unfortunate and had been so much. He believed that an honest vote should be respected, and if the members had voted honestly and the vote had been so counted that was all he wanted to know, and he thought the will of the majority should rule, without seeking to overturn it by any technicalities.

Councilman Porter rose and began speaking before being recognized by the chair and was called to order by Councilman Estabrook, after which the board adjourned.

The Mayor and Aldermen.

The board of mayor and aldermen met in special session Monday evening.

The mayor appointed and the board confirmed W. S. French as milk inspector and W. H. Rand as special officer at Good Templars' Hall.

The report of the overseers of the poor was received. The schedule of accounts showed a balance of $666.94; expenditures, $2536.

On motion of Alderman Johnson, renewal of junk licenses were granted to Peter E. Gibson and Samuel Fitzgerald. The following notices of intention to build were received and filed: T. A. Flen, dwelling house 25-6 x 32-6 with 13-8 x 10-6, on Walnut street; J. H. Keller, adjoins to dwelling on Sargent street, 28 x 30.

An application from Thomas Murphy for permit to move a building on River street was referred to the committee on licenses.

On motion of Alderman Johnson a former order authorizing the sale of water bonds was rescinded and an order adopted authorizing the city treasurer, under the direction of the joint standing committee on finance, to sell and dispose of bonds of the city, for the aggregate principal sum of $23,000, to be denominated on their face Newton water loan, payable Oct. 1, 1918, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, the proceeds of the bonds except the accrued interest, to be applied and appropriated for the construction of the water works, by establishing a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds at maturity; also accepting the bid of N. W. Harris & Co. of $36,507.30 for $23,000 bonds and accrued interest, said bonds being dated April 28, 1890.

On motion of Alderman Johnson an order was adopted authorizing the city solicitor to expend $200 from the miscellaneous expense account for expenses in defending suits of the city.

On motion of Alderman Coffin an order was adopted authorizing the committee on public property to cause to be made a topographical survey of the household property and a study of the laying out said territory, and appropriating therefor a sum not exceeding $500.

On motion of Alderman Coffin the public property committee was authorized to advertise for bids for a building to be used for an almshouse.

On motion of Alderman Harbach an order was adopted authorizing the highway committee to lay out a street crossing on Walnut street, opposite Lake avenue; concrete sidewalks with and without edgestones on Lexington, Washington, Shaw, Walnut, Chester, Chestnut, Bellevue and Warren streets, Washington park, Auburndale, and Lake avenue. An order offered by Alderman Harbach was adopted authorizing the committee on highways to expend $22,000 for the widening, reconstruction and improvement of Auburn, Walnut, Waban, Kenrick, Elliot and Washington streets.

On motion of Alderman Johnson an order was adopted authorizing the mayor to execute a deed to Henry F. King in confirmation of a deed of the inhabitants of the town of Newton to David C. Sanger, dated Nov. 11, 1868, and recorded in Middlesex South District Deeds, libro 1094, folio 214.

An order offered by Alderman Harbach was adopted appropriating $25,000 for various drains and culverts and authorizing committee on highways to construct the same.

Orders offered by Alderman Harbach were adopted appropriating $1365 for laying 1170 feet of 8 and 8 inch water mains in Harrison and Court streets, private way off Washington, Minot place and Chestnut Hill road; appropriating $1900 for laying 1600 feet of 8 inch water main in Elliot street.

Several sidewalk petitions were received and referred.

The board took a recess at 8.10 o'clock. Upon reassembling, papers from the common council were passed in concurrence.

Mellin's Food is not only well borne by the enfeebled or irritable stomach, but it will give tone to the digestive organs, and thereby obtain much relief from its use. "Mellin's Food seems to satisfy my appetite better than anything I can take," says a sufferer from this distressing complaint.

A Protest.

To the Editor of the Graphic: I would like to state through your columns that the residents of River street have been asked to give something towards watering the street. Instead of asking aid for the same, the inhabitants ought to be paid for the nuisance of so many swill carts and other teams of a similar character, passing every few minutes during the day, which keeps up a constant dust; furthermore, it would be economy to the city to keep the streets wet in dry weather. If it is necessary for all this style of travel on River street, the more important to sprinkle at the city's expense.

ONE INTERESTED.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, at 75 Court St., Boston, Mass.

Boston, Aug. 26, 1889. Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years standing, it was cut out twice by what they call eminent surgeons at intervals of ten or fifteen years, and each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not to delay but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB.

The Tariff is a Humbug.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful
consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms
and communications of every kind whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders, or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

The Tariff on Copper.

Our copper and brass manufacturers,
including those of the various electrical machines, in which we lead the world,
are handicapped by the unnecessary duty
on copper.

The production of copper in this country has increased from 650 tons in 1850 to 107,958 tons in 1889. That this increase has not been due to the tariff is shown by the fact that in the decade from 1850
to 1860, when the duties were very low—copper ore and sheathing copper of a certain size being on the free list from 1840 to 1857, and from 1857 to 1861 pigs, bars, ingots and old copper were added to the free list in that decade, the production increased from 650 to 7200 tons, or over 1000 per cent. In the same decade our exports of copper and brass manufactures increased from $105,000 to $1,084,000, an increase of 1400 per cent—
[This last item was only $411,000 in 1888, though we exported $8,000,000 of raw copper.] The tariff of 1861 put a duty of two cents a pound on pigs, bars, ingots
and sheathing, and five per cent on ores.
In 1862-3 the duty on sheathing was raised to three cents a pound. In 1869
the duty on ores was raised to three cents a pound for copper contained in them, and on pigs, bars and ingots to five cents a pound. These rates continued in force until 1883, when the duty
on copper in ores was reduced to 2-1/2 cents a pound, and ingots to 4 cents.

The effects of this high tariff were first
to destroy the value of important smelting works, on the Atlantic seaboard; secondly, to make the price of copper nearly five cents a pound higher to American than to foreign consumers; thirdly, to increase our exports of the raw material
but to decrease our exports of manufactures of copper; fourthly, to diminish the use of this metal for purposes where it is especially valuable.

The way it was managed for a large part of the time was as follows: The copper product of the whole country was
"pooled," the home demand was sold
just below the foreign price plus the duty,
and the surplus was sold abroad at the foreign price, the foreign purchaser being pledged not to sell it back to this country. By this means the price of copper ranged from 3 to 5 cents higher in this country than in England for nearly all the years since 1861.

[From Tariff Reform Document.]
The following results would follow the abolition of the duties upon copper in ore, in bars, ingots, old, and other un-
manufactured and in sheets:

1. No foreign copper, except in ore, would be imported, for even now (during 1889) we export 35,000 tons of copper annually, and sell it abroad in competition with foreign copper. This is sufficient proof that, as compared with the rest of the world, we must be under any circumstances a copper exporting and not a copper importing nation; and American copper manufacturers would under any circumstances be supplied from our home production.

2. Copper ores would be imported principally, however, to assist by their smelting properties in increasing and cheapening the production of American copper from American ores. Nearly all the copper ore mined in Canada and Mexico would be smelted in this country rather than, as now, in England. Thus we would build up a large smelting and refining business here, and we would soon have the works of sufficient capacity to refine the argentiferous copper ore of Montana. At present all these ores go to England and Germany simply because we have no works of sufficient capacity; not because we are ignorant, as some have suggested, of the process of separating silver and nickel from copper. This would be of great benefit to the miners of Montana, who would be able to get more for their matte than they are now doing.

3. The combination of sheet copper rollers would be forced to lower their prices to such as would yield them a fair and not an exorbitant profit. Lower duties on sheet and bolt copper would stimulate them to make exertions toward reducing the cost of rolling by remodeling
their ancient works and using improved machinery, as some, in fact, of the new mills are doing.

4. The markets for American copper and brass goods would not be restricted to the United States, but we would be able to send abroad the greater part, if not all, our surplus copper in the form of manufactured articles. The consumption of copper in all forms would increase very largely here in consequence of lower prices.

5. Facilities for copper smelting here by the importation of foreign ores would again make profitable the working of the mines of the Atlantic States, greatly reduce the cost of production of Arizona,
and greatly cheapen and facilitate the Montana production.

The lower cost of the ingot and sheet
copper would mean a greatly decreased
cost of copper manufactures, and a great
extension of their use in directions
where copper and brass are preferable to other materials, but are now kept from being used by combinations extorting exorbitant prices. This again would mean a greater demand for the raw copper,
and more men employed in mining and smelting the ore. It would also mean a greatly increased number of skilled workmen employed in manufacturing the increased quantity of copper and brass goods used by our citizens. We are now the most extensive producers and most extensive users of copper in the world.

We would then have advantages over
every other nation in smelting and manufacturing copper for the world's market.
If the government will only take its hands
off, we, and not Great Britain, will control the copper business of the world.
That again would mean cheaper copper for all our industries than the citizens of any other nation could get; more and more miners and smelters engaged in producing it, and more and more skilled workmen engaged in manufacturing it to supply not merely our increased home consumption but a great and increasing export trade.

Free Raw Materials.

What is the meaning of the petition of ex-Governor Ames and his associates for free coal and iron ore and a reduction of the tariff taxes on pig and scrap iron? How does it happen that many New England manufacturers have recently organized for the avowed purpose of securing
free wool, or, at all events, lower duties?
Why did protests go up on every hand
when it was proposed in the Ways and Means Committee to reimpose a tax on hides? Why, obviously, because the existing tariff is an incubus upon New England industry. It is not a protective but a destructive tariff. Free raw materials are essential to the prosperity of the manufacturers of Massachusetts, and therefore to the prosperity of their operatives and of all classes of citizens,
the agricultural population included.
Massachusetts produces none of the raw materials of her manifold productive interests. Give her untaxed materials and unfettered trade and her farmers will have a larger market and a surer one.

Uses For Old Papers.

Most housekeepers know how invaluable newspapers are for packing away
the winter clothing, the printing ink
acting as a preservative to the stoutest moth
as successfully as camphor or tar-paper.
For this reason newspapers are invaluable under the carpet, laid over the regular carpet paper. The most valuable quality of newspapers in the kitchen,
however, is their ability to keep out air.
It is well known that ice completely enveloped in newspapers, so that all air is shut out, will keep a longer time than under other conditions, and that a pitcher of ice water, covered with newspapers, with the ends of the paper twisted together to exclude the air, will remain all night in any summer room with scarcely any perceptible melting of the ice. These facts should be utilized oftener than they are in the care of the sick at night. In freezing ice cream, when the ice is scarce, pack the freezer only three-quarters full of ice and salt, and finish
with newspapers, and the difference in the time of freezing and quality of the cream is not perceptible from the result
where the freezer is packed full of ice.
After removing the freezer, it is better
to cork up the cream and cover it tightly with a packing of newspapers than to use more ice. The newspaper retain the cold already in the ice better than a packing of cracked ice and salt, which must have crevices to admit the air.—
English Home and Farm.

A wealthy citizen of Dover was mortified the other day. He had just been making a clean breast of his deplorable financial condition to the Assessors; and going to a grocery store soon after he was appalled to find that the Assessor
had taken his statement so literally as to order a barrel of flour, a codfish and some other articles sent to him at the town's expense! At last accounts the wealthy citizen was trying to explain that he was not quite a pauper, and several have noticed the unusual happy expression on the face of the Assessor.—

Hold it to the Light.

The man who tells you confidentially just
what will cure your cold is prescribing Kemp's Balm. This year, in the preparation of this remarkable medicine, for coughs and colds, no
expense is spared to combine only the best and
purest ingredients. Hold a bottle of Kemp's Balm to the light and look through it; notice
the bright, clear look; then compare with other remedies. Price 50c. and $1.

The value of a remedy should be estimated by its curative properties. According to this standard, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical blood medicine in the market,
because the most pure and concentrated. Price
$1. Worth $5 a bottle.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane
the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this.
Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with louches, snuffs, powders or astringents, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach
the affected surfaces and should be abandoned
entirely. The only safe and effective remedy
who had for years borne all the worry and pain
that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures
wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

—Sheriff and Mrs. Tucker have met with a sad affliction in the loss of their little son from diphtheria, and they will have the sympathy of many friends.

—The Monday Evening Club and the Social Science Club had their annual ladies night at the residence of Mr. Geo. S. Harwood, Wednesday evening.

—Among the recent sales of real estate recorded is that of Geo. Strong to Harriet S. Allen of 997 feet of land and buildings on Vernon street for $3,500.

—Cherry trees blossomed this year five days earlier than last, and other trees are rushing forward with unusual rapidity, on account of the mild weather.

—Those interested in the Order of the Red Cross will find a paper at Whittier's store for signatures for charter members. The list is nearly full and will soon be closed.

—The display of bedding plants at Johnson's conservatory on Thornton street is very handsome this year, and in great variety. Mr. Johnson has also some very thrifty tomato plants.

—The Clarendons, average age 12 years, have organized and would like to hear from clubs of the same age. Address all communications to A. W. Hollis, 135 Jewett street, Newton.

—Miss Mary Hamilton, daughter of Mr. William Hamilton, formerly of Newton, was married on Thursday at Fulton, N. Y. to Mr. C. M. Allen. Miss Bertha Ballantine of Newton was maid of honor.

—The annual May party of the Channing Sunday school will be held in Armory Hall tomorrow afternoon and evening. The attractions will be the Mother Goose quadrille, the May pole, a hoop drill and many others.

—The Episcopal Sunday schools of Newton are to unite in holding a service in Grace church on the afternoon of the Festival of the Ascension, May 15th. Among the speakers is the Rev. W. H. Williams of the Highlands.

—Waban lodge 156, I. O. O. F. celebrated the seventy-first anniversary of Odd Fellowship last evening by a dance and collation in Cole's Hall. It was attended by about fifty couples, and the usual pleasant, social features were enjoyed.

—A meeting of ladies will be held in the parlors of Grace church at 4 p. m. next Tuesday to hear an address from Mrs. Joseph B. Hardon of Jamaica Plain upon some plans for the protection of women exposed to the perils of cities.

—Officer Harrison formerly stationed at Lower Falls has been assigned for duty in Wards 1 and 7. The residents of this vicinity have gained the services of a painstaking officer who will faithfully discharge the duties of his position.

—Mr. Frank W. Gaffield and family of Hotel Hunnewell have engaged rooms for the summer at the Bayside, No. Weymouth Beach, and Newton promises to be well represented at this popular hotel. The house is now open for inspection and engagement of rooms.

—The vested choir of men and boys in Grace church has already achieved a surprising success. The music last Sunday night especially was of the most interesting character. In addition to the regular choruses it is understood that there will be a solo or duet at each service, and occasionally a selection by a quartet of men.

—A leaflet is now distributed every Sunday in Grace church for the benefit of the poor, and others attending the service. Its object is to explain the different parts of the forms of worship used so that everyone may intelligently take part in what is going on. Anything that makes people feel at home in a place of worship will be appreciated.

—From the Year Book of Grace church,

just issued, we learn that the parish is 35 years old and that in that period there have been 102 baptisms, 302 confirmations, 148 marriages, 247 funerals and the contributions have amounted to $334,316. The receipts for all purposes last year came to $5063. The parish is in a flourishing condition in all its departments of work.

—The Helping Hand Society's entertainment at the parish house of Grace church, Monday evening, was very largely attended and the play with the long name proved very amusing. Noted women of all ages were summoned by the wonderful machine and the costumes and appearance were in most cases very realistic. "The Rice Pudding," which served for dessert was very good.

—A social, under the auspices of Nonantum colony, Pilgrim Fathers, was held in Cole's Hall, Monday evening. A collation was served and a program of music and readings enjoyed. Some of the ladies received an unexpected shock on account of an attraction not down on the program. A private masquerade, under the auspices of the colony, will be given in Cole's Hall, Monday evening, May 26.

—The men alleged to reside in Boston, and are out on a strike for eight hours. Their places will be filled as soon as possible, and the contractors do not anticipate any serious trouble.

Said one who knew her intimately, Mrs. Woodford was one of the brightest and prettiest ladies in Newton, and she had a very extensive circle of warm friends, who feel a personal loss in her death.

—Rev. Dr. Calkins, who officiated at the funeral services, which were very simple. There was a very beautiful arrangement of flowers, in tasteful and informal designs. The interment was at the Newton cemetery.

THE PLAYERS.

THEIR TENTH SERIES A VERY SUCCESSFUL ONE.

City Hall was filled Wednesday and Thursday evenings, at the tenth series of performance by "The Players," and three plays were presented, "Sunset," "A Morning Call," and "Poison," all of them very successfully given and introducing some players new to the public performances. The Players orchestra was one of the best features, as usual, and some selections written specially for the occasion were given, and greeted with hearty applause.

In "Sunset" Mrs. W. T. Farley and Miss Adele Felix as the half sisters were charming and delighted the audience. Mr. G. R. Pulsifer appeared for the first time and made an excellent "Lawrence" while Mr. B. P. Cheney, Jr., as Azariah and Mr. Morton E. Cobb as Mr. Rive were marvelously adept and each scored a success. Miss Purdie as Aunt Drusilla represented that ancient lady to perfection, and the play went off as smoothly as possible.

The curtain rose the second time for "A Morning Call" by Miss Annie Call and Mr. J. A. Conkey, and each won another success before "The Players' footlights."

The most amusing part of the entertainment came last, and its enjoyment was rather interfered with by the large number leaving for the 10.20 and 10.37 trains, but the intangible Mr. Stratton could triumph over any such obstacle, and with Miss Georgiana M. Harris as Mary Jane the audience were kept in constant laughter. Such excellent acting as these two stars furnished was worth waiting to see. Miss Farley made a very charming "Clara Twitters" and Mr. E. L. Collins as Dr. Squilloe had a more agreeable part than is usually assigned to him. Mr. A. L. Fowle as Gottlieb Hunker, Mr. M. E. Cobb as the policeman, and Miss Helen L. Wells as the mother of the lamented Mrs. Twitters, helped to make this one of the most successful plays yet given by the association.

The scenes were very prettily set, the furniture being kindly loaned by Payne's Furniture Co. of Boston. The promised electric lights were not quite ready for use, but evidently will be soon, as the fixtures are up. The next performances will be in November.

Newton Civil Service Reform Association.

The annual meeting of the Newton Civil Service Reform Association was held in the Allen schoolhouse, West Newton, Monday evening. Rev. Henry Lambert presided. The reports of officers were received, the treasurer's accounts showing a balance of $65, after meeting all expenses. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Rev. Henry Lambert, president; Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, Hon. Robert R. Bishop, Hon. W. P. Ellison, Messrs. Edwin B. Haskell, Nathaniel T. Allen, Warren P. Tyler, vice-presidents; Stephen Thacher, treasurer; James P. Tolman, secretary; Thomas B. Fitz, C. C. Bragdon, Edward P. Bond, George C. Travis, directors. Resolutions upon the death of Hon. John S. Farlow, a former vice-president, were unanimously adopted. It was voted to amend clause 5 of the constitution, increasing the number of directors from four to six. During the past few months 100 names have been added to the membership, which now numbers 250 persons. A motion made by Mr. J. P. Tolman, that a vote of thanks be extended to Senator Hoar for his endeavors in securing the appointment of 30 additional examining physicians for the pension department, under the civil service laws, was opposed by Mr. John W. Carter, who said that it would be poor policy to endorse the senator's action, especially in view of the reform principles, instancing the cases of the removal from office of Collectors Worthington and Saltonstall. The former, he said, was summarily dismissed by ex-President Cleveland, the latter was "voluntarily" requested to resign by President Harrison. Mr. Carter in reply said that it was not his intention to start a political discussion. The motion was finally tabled. An account of the progress of the civil service reform principles, especially in the departments at Washington, was given by Rev. A. E. Lawrence. Mr. N. T. Allen paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of Hon. John S. Farlow and spoke of his sterling integrity and generosity of character.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

THE GAMEWELL IMBROGLIO.

As predicted last week, the resolution for a committee to investigate the reason for the delay of the Gamewell company in putting in their police signal system, failed to pass the common council, after a rather heated debate, in which members of the upper branch took a somewhat lively interest. The Gamewell company did not seem to lack friends, and their side of the case was ably presented by Councilmen Collins, Mead and Forknall. The attacking party was led by Councilman Porter, and supported rather mildly by Councilmen Luke and Hall, although even after the vote was taken Councilman Porter led a forlorn hope for the remainder of the session, endeavoring to have the vote declared illegal after Councilmen Mead and Dutch had left, in the hope that in their absence the Gamewell opponents could muster a majority. Unfortunately for the effort, the President of the Common Council decided the points of order on the broad principles of equity, and boldly invited an appeal from his decision. The Common Council, always rather sensitive about its rights, became rather restless under what some imagined was dictation from the upper branch, and Congressman Luke put an end to the unpleasant personal discussion by saying that all he wanted was an honest vote; such a vote had been taken, and the members should abide by the wish of the majority. The affair created an excitement unusual to the city council, and the report of the proceedings will be found full of interest.

The case against the Gamewell company would have been a strong one, but for one thing, and, unfortunately, for that one thing the city is to blame—the city stable, in which a very important part of the electrical appliances is to be placed, is not only not yet finished, but is hardly begun. Even if the company had completed all the rest of their system, they would have had to wait several months before this part could be put in, and the system tested as a whole, and what is of equal importance to the company, probably, before it could be paid for. To criticize them for failing to fulfill their contract, would be like a business man ordering a steam engine and boiler, the latter to be placed in a new boiler house within a specified time, and then before he had even begun the boiler house, finding fault with the company and trying to break the contract, because it had not put up the engine and boiler within the time agreed upon.

The Gamewell company say that they will have the boxes and wires all up, long before the city stable is ready to allow them to complete the work, and they certainly would have little difficulty in doing this.

WAKING UP.

The Boston Traveller is improving under its new management, and contains indications of a realization of the fact that it is a New England newspaper. It says of the interstate commerce committee of the senate, which proposes to aim a blow at New England by prohibiting the transportation of goods in bond over the Canadian railroads, that New England should make a vigorous and emphatic protest. It says that "New England is still a part of the United States, though there are indications that in some sections of the west, and on the part of some western senators and congressmen, this had been lost sight of." The Traveller might have added that some of the New England senators and congressmen appear to have lost sight of the fact also, as they tamely vote for measures destined to ruin New England industries, without daring to make a protest. There is no reason why New England's interests should be sacrificed to those of Pennsylvania, for instance, and we hope the Traveller will keep right along upholding the interests of its constituents. It has even reached the point of protesting against the proposed duty on carpet wools, as unnecessary and unjustifiable taxation, and it wants carpet wool placed on the free list. If the Republican party had more outspoken organs such as the Traveller promises to be under its new management, Mr. Clarkson would not have to complain that all the bright and readable journals are getting to be either Mugwumps or Democratic. Newspapers that never dare have an opinion of their own until a party caucus has told them what they may believe will never have a very wide influence or be eagerly read by the masses.

AUSTIN STREET EXTENSION.

On page 8 of this issue will be found a presentation of the case of the extension of Austin street, for which Mr. T. H. Carter has labored so hard, and heretofore so ineffectually. The numerous signed petitions, and the letters addressed to the chairman of the highway committee, with Mr. Carter's presentation of the case, are there given in full. The residents and property owners on the hill portion of this street are certainly unfortunate, as their natural outlet is shut up, and although they are taxed to the full limit they have not the conveniences enjoyed by other sections.

Mr. Carter, the largest property owner on the hill, says he does not care for himself, as the improvement would not be enjoyed by him very long, but he would like to have things straightened out for those who are to come after him, and he regards the opening of a direct street from Newtonville to West Newton on the south side of the railroad track as a public necessity. It is certainly unfortunate for Mr. Carter that the members of the board of aldermen could not see their way to devise some means to help along this improvement, and he hopes that when the case is fully understood objections to departing from the precedent established will be done away with.

In another column will be found a letter from a valued correspondent of the GRAPHIC, suggested by Rev. Mr. White's letter on the Board of Health. In it the writer pays a deservedly high tribute to the medical member of the board, who has served so faithfully without pay, and to the injury of his own practice, and our correspondent thinks that the city should pay the medical member of the board. It is a great deal to ask a physician in active practice to take such a position, and the demands made upon his time and strength are too great to ask him to serve for nothing. Dr. Frisbie has only consented to remain for some months at the urgent request of prominent citizens, but he feels that he has done all that his duty as a citizen requires, and he is soon to retire. His retirement will be a distinct loss to the board.

There appears to be some hope yet for the friends of honest money. The silver men in the House say that they will pass their bill and if the Senate refuses to accept it then there will be no silver legislation this Congress. This would prove the old saying about when a certain class of men fall out, honest men get their dues. Still the silver mine owners in the Senate will probably accept the house bill if they can get nothing better, as that would help to materially raise the price of their product, by creating an artificial market. The Boston Journal says that the New England Senators and Congress do not approve of the proposed silver legislation but nevertheless they will vote the caucus tells them to.

"Black Beauty. The Uncle Tom's Cabin of the Horse," or some other influence is evidently having an effect in Newton, as some of the handsomest horses have no check reins at all on the horses, and the fashion appears to be spreading. The over-draw check was a cruel and barbarous contrivance, and the fact that it is falling into disuse will be good news to all friends of the horse. The idea seems to be gaining ground that a handsome horse looks better without a check rein, while it is only the inferior animal that needs to have this contrivance for giving him an appearance of style.

A WASHINGTON correspondent says, "it is a fact that the president sent by the hands of his private secretary, Col. Halford, a copy of the open letter he received from Mr. Lea of Philadelphia on the subject and asked Quay for an explanation, at the same time hinting broadly that if the charges could not be explained it would be necessary for the interests of the party that Mr. Quay should resign the chairmanship." It is to be hoped that this is true, for Senator Quay's silence under the scandalous charges makes many good Republicans very uneasy.

ONE of the effects of the new rules in the national house was rather ludicrously exhibited in the Oklahoma bill, which was rushed through without time for examination, and it is now found that it included the whole state of Texas in the new territory.

NEWTON has been divided into 13 census districts, and the work must be done in two weeks, beginning June 2nd, and applicants for positions are now busy.

SPEAKER BARRETT is quoted in Washington dispatches as saying that Massachusetts will lose three Republican Congressmen on account of the McKinley bill.

Newton Natural History Society.

Those who were entertained by an evening with the Microscope at the Meeting of the Natural History Society some few years since will be delighted to know that a similar meeting is to be given on Monday evening next. All those who would like to learn about flies' feet and spiders' legs will want to find out what Mr. A. R. Bailey has to say and show them about such things. He will undoubtedly be able also to show you something very interesting with the polariscope in the form of chemical crystals. There is no more interesting as well as instructive method of finding out about the mysteries and wonders of nature than by the microscope and a visit to Elliot Lower Hall on that evening will well repay you for your time and trouble. The members of this society are always glad to see their friends and the people generally, at the meetings and are still more desirous of welcoming them as members. Let all who can attend this meeting and see what curious things will be found.

THE NEWTON CEMETERY.

THE LATE IMPROVEMENTS, THE NURSERY AND THE GREENHOUSES.

The most attractive place to spend a few hours at this season is the beautiful Newton Cemetery. Nowhere else are there such beautiful green lawns, such charming effects made by the landscape gardener, with winding paths, and shrubbery, and pretty ponds set with green islands, and such diversity of hill and vale, as are to be seen in this favored spot. The beds of tulips are now in full bloom, and their brilliant coloring here and there adds greatly to the attractiveness of the place. The Newton Cemetery is certainly one of the loveliest "cities of the dead" in the vicinity of Boston.

In the past year there have been great improvements made, the so-called Morrigan land has all been improved and laid out into beautiful lots, bordering on a wide avenue, which is smoothly graded, and bordered here and there with beds of flowers and triangular spaces filled with shrubbery. The avenue from here winds around the hill to the newly laid out road on the west side, which winds around the two new ponds, one of which is nearly finished and has a very handsome water fall, the water rushing down over picturesque rocks to the level of the next pond below. A rustic bridge spans the mimic stream, and its borders are laid out with masses of shrubbery, which is just beginning to show the influence of spring. The improvements here have been rather expensive, but they will be worth all the cost, from the increased beauty of the cemetery. The huge rocks have been left in their natural condition, and furnish a pleasing variety. Another pond above this is not yet completed, although the dam has been begun, and a foot path with a rustic bridge leads across the lower end. By contrast with the lower pond, it shows what Superintendent Ross and his assistants have had to contend with, and how great the improvement has been since work was first begun in the section.

During the past year, a number of handsome monuments have been erected among which are those on the lots of Mr. Hiram E. Barker, Dr. C. E. Dearborn, Rev. Dr. Alcott, Mr. Jewell of Hancock, N. H., Mr. Cephas Brigham, Mr. Geo. F. Stone, and others, while a large number of tablets have been set. The Dennison monument is a tribute to their late employer, for at some time in the factory and the clerks in the store, and the family have given a thousand dollars to the Perpetual Care fund. Many of the older lots are being provided for in this way, as their owners come to appreciate the benefit of such action, and the trustees hope to see at some time all the lots thus provided for. A large number of new lots have been sold the past year, and as the new land is improved the number of desirable lots is increased.

The appearance of the cemetery is a striking tribute to the efficiency of the Superintendent, Mr. Henry Ross, and the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. Chas. W. Ross, and almost daily they have visitors from the public cemeteries in this and other states, who come to learn of their methods, and profit by their example.

belonging to the Cemetery Corporation are well stocked with shrubs, evergreens and young trees, the young maples being the finest specimens to be found anywhere. One gentleman who purchased 200 and came back more evidently thoughtful, found growing wild near the rhododendrons, now so fashionable, and of which a large number have been already disposed of this spring, their evergreen foliage rendering them fine winter shrubs, and the nursery has large numbers of these.

Among the evergreens are many new varieties, Dawson's Sport, originated at the Brassey Institute, Golden Arbor Vite, Nordman's Fir, Austrian Pine, White Pine, Norway Spruce, the George Peabody Arbor Vite, and the Heather, a great number of fine specimens are shown, and many have already been set out in the damp spaces about the cemetery.

THE GREENHOUSES

and hot beds are now looking their best as the plants have not yet begun to be moved, and there is a great profusion of bedding plants, now so fashionable, and pinks, daisies, geraniums, and all the other flowers popular for lawns.

The Japan Iris, whose flowers measure ten inches across, is going to be a popular flower this summer, and a great number of fine specimens are shown, and many have already been set out in the damp spaces about the cemetery.

Of the roses there is a great variety of the choicest varieties, unusually thrifty looking plants. Of the patronees received, it might be mentioned that this week Mr. Ross has received large orders from Framingham, Jamaica Plain, besides the towns adjoining Newton, while every village in the city sends in orders.

In the greenhouses are some beautiful specimens from France of the new hybrid Cannas, with brilliant scarlet flowers, and an experiment is being made of raising blue and red water lilies from seed, and promising plants have always appeared.

There is hardly space left to mention the beautiful Conservatory with its palms, banana and orange trees, hydrangeas now in full blossom, and ferns, but no visitor to the cemetery will miss going through that.

The Sorcerer.

Gilberts and Sullivan's first production of comic opera, "The Sorcerer" will be presented by the Young Men's Association of Waltham, in Music Hall, Waltham, Tuesday evening, May 6th. A chorus of 50 voices with an orchestra of 20 pieces will assist. The Young Men's Association is the representative association of that city and our citizens will feel amply repaid by attending the performance on that evening. Tickets can be obtained of members and at Glyn & Kelley's drug store at 35 and 50 cents, a few choice seats at 75.

He had come home a little late and she delivered the usual feminine oration. He turned on his pillow and muttered as he drowsed off: "Matches made in Heaven sent me to have just as much brimstone on 'em as the other kind."—Merchant Traveler.

WEST NEWTON.

Don't forget the concert May 7.

Mr. Nat Lane has returned from an extended business trip.

Devotion of the Forty Hours began today in St. Bernard's church. A mission will begin in this church Sunday.

Mr. George Cook and family, who have been spending the winter in the South arrived home this morning. They will reside in the beautiful Waltham street residence during the summer months.

The New England Telephone Company has placed a cable head on a telegraph pole in front of the Congregation church. The wires from the central exchange will be distributed into this piece of electrical apparatus.

Hurry up that police stable. People are beginning to think that it is an imaginative building. The foundation seems to be grounded, and the patrol wagon in the meantime stranded. Such delays seem rather unbusiness like.

Mr. William Ludwig, the distinguished baritone vocalist, who was so favorably received as one of the soloists at the recent Handel and Haydn concert, is at present a guest of Mr. Thomas B. Fitz, at his elegant residence on Waltham street.

Real estate owners of Cherry street have petitioned the board of aldermen to widen that much travelled highway. It would certainly be a decided improvement. In Newton with its vast territory and its beautiful homes, narrow and crooked streets seem out of place.

Gannon Brothers have received the contract for the mason work in connection with the enlargement of Baker's Hotel in Wellesley, recently purchased by a syndicate. It is expected that the improvements will be completed June 20. The new building will be 165 x 40 feet. The new house will have greatly increased accommodations.

Some objections were raised to the proposed location of the grounds of the Newton Base Ball Association, corner of Elm and Webster streets. The matter has been amicably settled, however, and the management agree to use a movable canvas fence enclosing a portion of the grounds instead of a high board fence. The latter is regarded as a permanent fixture by residents and objected to on that account. The canvas fence can be removed after the games.

Albert F. Wright has just placed a handsome Tufts soda fountain in his parlance. It is one of the most elaborate in the city. The sides and base are of black Italian marble, vermetin or sea-green marble front, surmounted by onyx tile. The superstructure is of ebony. The fountain is eight feet in height and arranged for soda and mineral water. It is supplied with the patent draw syrup cans. From the cornice of the superstructure an elegant chandelier is suspended. The store is elegantly furnished with the walls and ceiling beautifully finished in texture work.

The members of the police department have been assigned new numbers, according to years of service. The list is appended: Charles F. Richards, chief; Charles E. Davis, captain; C. P. Huettis, sergeant; James D. Henthorn, inspector; C. O. Davis, 1; John Ryan, 2; N. F. Bosworth, 3; R. E. Harrison, 4; W. Fletcher, 5; E. C. Holmes, 6; John Purrell, 7; R. H. Moulton, 8; W. G. J. Wiley Edmunds camp 100 Sons of Veterans, was inspected by Capt. D. J. Golding of Camp 14, Fitchburg, in Good Templars' Hall, Monday evening. The camp turned out with full members and made a creditable appearance. C. H. Golding, in his remarks, stated that the Newton camp was one of the best that he had inspected during his term of office. Remarks were made by Lieut. Col. Davis, formerly of the state division who complimented the boys upon their appearance. Among those present were Commander Whitney, Senior Vice Sweetland and Commodore A. T. Sylvester and S. A. Langley of Camp 41, Waltham.

The camp is considering the question of uniform pants and will obtain the same if a requisition can be obtained from the department.

The high altar in St. Bernard's church, was consecrated last Saturday at 7 a. m., by most Reverend John J. Williams, archbishop of the diocese. There was a large congregation present. The altar is 21 feet high, in the gothic style of architecture and composed of white statuary, Italian blue marble and Mexican onyx. The table is 14 feet 6 inches long at the base. It is surmounted by the reredos, in which is situated the tabernacle. Upon either side of the tabernacle there are two appropriate carved panels, enriched with Greek crosses. At each end of the reredos cluster column pedestals are placed supporting statuary. The exposition niche above the reredos is ornamented by square and cylindrical column in Mexican onyx. The central spire extends about eight feet above the exposition niche, and is surmounted by carved finials and crockets. The altar is of white marble, designed, and a very refined effect is produced by the combination of marbles used in its construction. At 10 a. m., Archbishop Williams administered the sacrament of confirmation to about 130 children and adults, in the presence of a very large congregation. The young girls were dressed in white, and wore the usual white veils. High mass was celebrated, and many of those who were confirmed also made their first communion.

An entertainment and sale under the auspices of the Newton Ladies' Home circle, for the benefit of the charity fund, was given in Knights of Honor Hall, Wednesday afternoon. The affair was a very successful affair, and a goodly sum was realized. Supper was served under the direction of Mrs. Shattuck. Mrs. F. E.

Crockett had charge of the guess cake; sales table, Mrs. Louise Jordan; ice cream table, Mrs. W. R. Dimond; confectionery table, Mrs. W. R. Dimond. During the evening a program of vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed. Miss Brush of Auburndale gave piano-forte selections, Post Commander R. M. Lucas of post 62 gave a reading. Mr. Farley rendered solos and other interesting attractions were provided. The society has recently furnished a room in the Soldiers' Home, Chelsea, and expended a large amount in charities during its work in a quiet and unostentatious manner. There is still a good balance in the treasury, and the needy cases will receive prompt attention. The following is the list of officers of the society: Mrs. W. R. Dimond, president; Mrs. A. T. Sylvester, vice-president; Mrs. Faulkenberry, secretary; Mrs. Horatio Carter treasurer. There were 1400 attendees at the meeting of Charles Ward Post and J. Wiley Camp, Sons of Veterans, turned out in a body.

NEWTON CLUB SPORTS.

HUSTLING FOR BIG INDIVIDUAL AVERAGES.

John Payne has become quite a twister of the sphere and knocks down ten pins with apparent abandon. In a team match last Friday, he rolled up the very respectable string, 234 and in a practice game Tuesday scored 226. Messrs. A. A. Savage, R. C. Bridgman and S. L. Powers are rolling big strings and there is an evident determination on the part of many participating in the team matches to reach a high mark in individual average.

Since the last issue of this paper, there has been no decisive change in the standing of the clubs in the local tournament. The appended scores give the result of games to date:

for bedding plants, of which he has an extensive variety at his conservatories on Thorn street.

—Dr. W. H. Edwards has moved his dental rooms to Brackett's block, where he has a very central location, and his rooms
have been handsomely fitted up.

—H. C. Daniels has a large number of fine driving horses and handsome carriages,
and can fit out his patrons with anything
in the lively line that they want.

—Rockell's beautiful piece "He giveth His beloved sleep" was finely rendered as a solo by one of the chorists of Grace church choir, Master Hall, last Sunday.

—The next meeting of the Channing Literary class will be next Tuesday evening, when Emerson will be the subject.
The course will close with an evening with Lowell.

—The selectmen of Watertown have been notified by the Gamewell Fire Alarm company that the system recently placed in position in Watertown is an infringement of the Gamewell patents.

—An order of the Red Cross will be instituted next Monday evening. A fine entertainment will be provided. The charter list has 100 names, and is at W. B. Whit-tier's store for further signatures.

—The Channing May party at Army
Hall, last Saturday afternoon and evening,
was a very pleasant affair and was largely attended. The May Queen, the Mother Goose Quadrille, and the May Pole dance
were very interesting and attractive features.

—There was some disturbance at the station, Tuesday evening, caused by the removal of a drunken man from the 9:20
train. He was in a very hilarious condition and the police had some difficulty in getting him to the lock-up.

—Besano, son of the King of Bendo,
Africa, will address the meeting tonight,
Friday, May 9, at 7:30, at Eliot chapel. All are invited to hear his thrilling description
of heathenism at its worst and of his own conversion.

—Mr. Charles F. Rogers has sold Miss Martha Hitchcock's house on Hollis street,
the one nearest Centre street, to Mr. M. W.
Tandy of Boston. Mr. Rogers has also leased the east tenement in the Brook street block to R. Sprout of Newton.

—The attention of the board of health is called to the filthy condition of Centre
street, in front of Brackett's new block,
where the mud and refuse is several inches
over the gutters, and the smell is offensive.
We trust to keep the main streets present-
able, at any rate.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Bacon have returned from their Washington trip. Mr. Bacon picked up in that city a bust of Lincoln, some four or five inches high,
made of redeemed bank notes, representing before ground into pulp some $7,000.
It is quite a curiosity.

—Michael Burke, an old resident, died at his residence on Pearl street Monday afternoon. The deceased was generally respected and esteemed. He was at one time postmaster at Nonantum and formerly conducted a store in that village. A widow and five children survive him.

—Patrick Farrell, aged 40 years, died at his residence on Pearl street Monday morning. The deceased had resided in this city a number of years and accumulated considerable property. At the time of his death he was engaged in erection of a large tenement block at Nonantum.

—The new society, a branch of the Red Cross, is actively at work preparing for its instructions in Hygiene and Emergency care, next autumn. A report by the special committee will be read at the next meeting, to be held on Monday at the parish house of Grace church. This society has a good field in Newton and will prove to be a helpful agency in preserving health
and relieving suffering.

—A unique entertainment is to be given at the benefit of their library by the Methodist Sunday school, Tuesday evening, May 15th. It is a "Ship Social" and the ship under command of Capt. Seymour
Eaton, First Mate A. R. Weed, with Rev.
Andrew McKenney as chaplain, will leave at the corner of Centre and Wesley streets at 7:30 o'clock, to receive passengers.
Mess will be served and the log read. Fare for full passage 25 cents.

—The English sparrows are a great nuisance at the Free Library, building, nests in the vines that cover the building, and they have so far proved impossible to dislodge them. If the nests are torn down, they are built again by night, and turning the hose on them only pleases the birds. They are too sharp to cut poison on meat, and if any one could devise an effectual method of getting rid of the pests, he would confer a great favor on the library authorities.

—A concert under the auspices of Chas.
Ward post 62, was given by the Estey concert company in Armory Hall, Wednesday evening. The artists comprised Miss Salome Thomas, soprano; Mr. A. E. Pennell, tenor; Mr. W. B. Phillips, basso; Mrs.
Nellie F. Lewis, reader; Mr. Wulf Fries, cello; Mr. A. S. Fairbanks, pianist; the Estey male quartet and Boston English High school Banjo club. The program was generally well rendered, and several recalls were responded to. Quite a large audience was in attendance.

—The residences of George A. Flint,
Arlington street, and J. D. Kinsey, Waverly avenue, were entered by burglars at an early hour Saturday morning. At Mr. Flint's house the thieves took a gold watch and chain and a small amount of silver ware. Nothing of value was missed at Mr. Kinsey's house. The manner in which entrance was effected at Mr. Flint's is a mystery as the doors and windows were securely fastened and nippers were not used. It is thought that the house was entered before the family retired.

—The regular monthly business meeting
and social of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the M. E. Church, was held in the vestry last Monday evening.
After transacting the business of the evening the society adjourned to the church parlors where a large collation was served under the auspices of the Society of Kings Daughters, also connected with the church.
After the collation a musical and literary entertainment of much merit was given consisting of readings by Miss Annie Mc-Keown, Miss Lily Prister, Mrs. K. L.
Stevenson, and Miss Nellie Stevenson. A cornet solo by Miss Mary Parks accompanied by Mr. Wm. Parks, and several songs were sung by Mrs. H. Leonard, Mrs.
J. W. Barber and Miss Mabel Lawrence.

The society is growing in numbers and much interest is taken in its meetings and socials.

—Last Sunday evening at Eliot church

church, Boston. The following are the appointments for the following Sunday evenings: May 11, Rev. Alex. McKenzie, D. D.;

Twombly, D. D. For May 25, an elaborate Choral Service is in preparation by the choir.

—Next Thursday is the Festival of the Ascension. Its observance seems to grow more general each year. In this city there will be services in the different Episcopal churches in the morning. In the afternoon and night there will be united gathering in Grace church. The Sunday schools have their festival at five o'clock. At a quarter of eight Bishop Paddock is to administer confirmation. There will be the union of the two vestries, St. Paul's and Grace, at both of these services, under the direction of the organist Mr. H. B. Day, who will have the assistance of a cornetist.
The afternoon occasion will be particularly interesting to young people. The seats at both services 5 and 7:30 are entirely free to all. The speakers in the afternoon are the Rev. W. H. Williams and the Rev. A.
B. Shields.

—Messrs. F. G. Barnes & Son, Real

west side of Waverly avenue Ward Seven Newton, 15,000 sq. ft. of land, to Reuben Ford
of Newton, also the estate of Jane L.
Underwood, comprising dwelling house
with 15,202 sq. ft. of land on the west side of Baldwin street, Ward Seven, to M. G.
Gordon, who intended to remove to the present house to the rear of the lot and to build a modern style double dwelling where the old house now stands; also on
M. Vernon street, Ward Three, a lot of land containing 3,210 sq. ft., owned by the Sondheim heirs, adjoining the residence of J. R. Carter, sold to Marcelle N. Smith, formerly of Newtonville, who intends to build a fine residence on the same; they have also made the following leases: The attractive modern house owned by James
L. Richards, Newtonville avenue, Ward
Two, for three years to Albert F. Cooke of Boston, the estate of Geo. W. Crockett, Thorn street, Ward One, to Robert S.
Howard of Boston; the estate of J. Willson,
Washington street, Ward Seven, to George Blackwell of Newton; the brick house owned by Mary A. Livermore, Glen street, to Mrs. J. C. Henderson of Mexico.

—Islington to be Sold.

The late ex-Mayor Pulsifer's handsome estate of Islington, on the Charles River
at Auburndale, is to be sold at auction,
May 15th, by Hon. J. F. C. Hyde. The estate is one of the most attractive ones
to be found in Newton, or indeed any other suburb of Boston, with extensive and beautifully laid out grounds, and with gardener's cottage, coachman's cottage, stone stable and carriage house,
greenhouses, boat house, and a large stone mansion house. It has a large frontage on the Charles River, and the sale will probably draw a large attendance of prominent men. Full particulars will be furnished by Mr.
Hyde, or by Alex. S. Porter, 27 State street.

Associated Charities.

The Associated Charities want a second-hand cooking-stove and any other household furnishings, except a bed, for a family otherwise entirely destitute.
Any one having such articles to dispose of will please address, Mrs. W. A. Lamb, Nonantum. The provision branch of the Associated Charities is in need of good second-hand clothing for children.
Such clothing will be gratefully received at the Associated Charity rooms over
Mr. Bradshaw's store, Washington street, Newtonville.

Special Notices.

Ask for Kennedy's thin waters, the best crackers known, your grocer keeps them, and when you have once tried them you will use no other.

Ladies desiring first-class fitting garments should visit James W. Hawley, dressmaker, 28 Temple place, Boston.

The finest china parlors in Boston, are those of Mr. G. R. McFarlin, 39 Franklin street. Newton residents will do well to keep this fact in mind, as Mr. McFarlin is an old resident of this city.

The Oakland Beach Hotel, Warwick,
R. I., will open for the season June 17,
under entirely new management. Mr.
J. L. Alden, formerly connected with Hotel Vendome, Boston, with the cooperation of Mr. F. L. Porter, who is well known in Boston hotel circles, will provide amply for guests the coming season.

Stockton Springs is now considered as fashionable a summer resort as any on the coast of Maine. The leading hotel, the beautiful water-cure place, the Woodcliff, offers excellent inducements
to those intending to make a month's stay or even longer, at this health-giving resort.

A house or home, we can make it either. Simply a place where we eat and sleep or the one place above all others
where we really live, think our best thoughts and do our best deeds, and perhaps no mere external thing contributes so much to make a house a home as the little touches of harmonious decoration
not necessarily expensive, which are embodied in the tasteful selection of Wall Papers and the proper arrangement of Draperies, which shows at once that feminine taste and care pervade the house and make it home. The well known firm of J. A. Glass & Co., 119 Washington street, Boston, are now showing the latest effects in Wall Paper and Draperies.

Y. M. C. A.

The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday was fairly attended. Mr. H. C.
Sawin, vice president of the association
had charge and spoke very interestingly.
Next Sunday, Rev. Mr. Taylor of the Newtonville Congregational church will preach.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co. of Maine, will pay their sixth semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent. July 10th. All seeking a safe and profitable investment would do well to write the Co. for particulars.

Send to Paine's Furniture Co., 48 Canal street, Boston, and receive by mail their large Illustrated Catalogue, containing 250 pages and over 300 choice engravings. It gives prices on every page and you can see what any needed article of furniture will cost.

THE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY GET ALL THEIR REQUESTS.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening, Mayor Burr in the chair and all the members present save Alderman Bond. The reading of the minutes of the last meeting were postponed to a more convenient season.

Alderman Fenno presented the petition of residents of Highland avenue, between Murray and Walnut streets, protesting against the bad condition of the street, on which the water has no chance to drain off, and the sidewalks are so low that they are often covered with water, and asking that the street be put in as good condition as that portion west of Murray street, with paved gutters, and that the sidewalks be raised out of the mud and water. Referred to the highway committee.

Mayor, Burr read a communication from the school board, stating that the city council was asked to appropriate $50 a month for the balance of the year for the conveyance of pupils.

Edward Dunham of Washington street, Auburndale, sent in a protest against licensing dogs to trespass on private grounds or run in the streets, to the annoyance of children or grown people, and that the mayor of Boston had waked up and even Al. Watts was now willing to allow that there might be such a disease as hydrophobia, and was enforcing the law vigorously in Boston.

Alderman Johnson presented five petitions for junk licenses, which were granted.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company were granted a location for their poles on Maple street, and Woodland avenue.

Licenses for four bowling alleys, one pool table and two billiard tables, and for an innholders license were granted to Joseph Lee of the Woodland Park Hotel. Also for two bowling alleys and one pool table to the Newton Boat Club, and for two bowling alleys, one pool table and one billiard table to the Newton club.

D. S. Farham petitioned for concrete walk on Lake avenue; Geo. M. Cox and others for one street lamp on Alden Place and River street, both referred.

Wm. Binder and Frank A. Day were appointed and confirmed as auctioneers. Miss Delia T. Smith asked for a street lamp on Evergreen avenue.

Geo. F. Richardson gave notice of intention to erect a dwelling house 44 by 36, at Newton Centre, and A. D. Wainwright an addition to his house on Hammond street.

Licenses to keep intelligence offices were granted to M. C. Bickford, Geo. Lane, Mrs. J. C. Jones, Mrs. Treffry and P. O'Halloran.

An order was passed ratifying and confirming the action of the city treasurer in awarding the recent issue of water bonds.

Alderman Pettee presented a petition for a fire alarm signal station, corner of River and Lexington streets.

An order was passed on motion of Alderman Pettee, appropriating $75 for the erection of a foundation for a fountain on the little park, corner of Walnut and Forest streets, which the citizens of Newton Highlands wish to give the city.

Alderman Pettee said it was the only park in Ward Five, and although it did not approach the size of the beauty of Farrow Park, yet the citizens were anxious to make it attractive and had raised money to pay for a fountain, which they would present to the city.

Alderman Harbach reported on the petition to make nine hours a day's work in the highway and water department, that it seemed to the committee inexpedient to make such a radical change until other large employers had made it.

Alderman Coffin presented a petition from B. F. Ryan and others, parents and friends of the child of the late F. F. Farrow Park, yet the citizens were anxious to make it attractive and had raised money to pay for a fountain, which they would present to the city.

Alderman Harbach presented a petition from B. F. Ryan and others, parents and friends of the child of the late F. F. Farrow Park, yet the citizens were anxious to make it attractive and had raised money to pay for a fountain, which they would present to the city.

Alderman Fenno asked what such expensive instruments were for.

City Engineer Noyes said that $425 was for two new transit instruments, the two now in the office having been in use for sixteen years and unsuitable for accurate work; $100 is for an instrument for the reduction or enlargement of plans and the rest was for other necessary tools. The great amount of work necessitated by the block plan of assessment, and for the water board made the instruments a necessity. The order was then passed.

WIDENING WASHINGTON STREET.

Alderman Harbach presented an order appropriating $2,500 for the widening of Washington street from Jewett street to Walnut Park, for ten feet on the north side of the street.

Alderman Johnson asked what made the widening necessary.

Alderman Fenno said the street railway in the first place. The tract was some 170 feet, and on one side was a very deep gutter, which made a deep slope, and unsafe for teams. The sidewalks would have to be raised if the slope was lessened, and the fences raised. The highway committee thought it would be cheaper to buy ten feet of land.

Alderman Johnson said this was only the first of numerous measures that would come up for the widening of Washington street, and it was one argument he had used against the railroad. He should not vote to spend any money for such a purpose.

Alderman Coffin said the place was a dangerous one and had been so for years. It was opposite Church street crossing. The measure was proposed not because the street was so narrow, but because the sidewalk must be raised, and it was thought better to change the line of the street.

Alderman Fenno said this question would assume appalling proportions, if it was once begun, and he moved to lay on the table, Alderman Johnson seconded, and the order was tabled.

Alderman Harbach presented the draft of an ordinance forbidding the hitching of a horse to any shade tree or lamp post under penalty of a fine of $20; referred to committee on ordinances.

POLICE SIGNAL STABLE.

Alderman Coffin presented an order authorizing the committee on public property to advertise for bids for a city stable on Cherry street, on the lot recently purchased by the city, passed.

ROSE HOUSE, NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

Alderman Coffin presented an order, authorizing the committee on public property to contract for a building to be used for the fire department, according to plans drawn by Henry H. Kendall, at a cost of $10,500, to be paid for in three notes, $5,000 in 1895, $5,000 in 1896, and $500 in 1897, bearing interest at 4 per cent. Alderman Coffin moved to refer to the finance committee and he hoped they would report as soon as possible.

Alderman Johnson asked what other houses cost.

Alderman Coffin said he did not know, but the committee had procured five or six sketches, and after examining them carefully had decided on those presented by Mr. Kendall as the most suitable. They had then advertised for bids and received six, of which the lowest was made by H. H. Hunt of West Newton. The amount asked for would cover the building, and all expenses connected with it, and the committee hoped to save one or two hundred dollars.

Alderman Pettee said the public property committee had been all through the plans very carefully, and the cost was not in excess of what might be expected for a building 33 feet wide, and 65 feet long, mostly of brick.

Alderman Johnson said he had seen the committee equally confident before and then come back and ask for an advance of 60 per cent.

Alderman Coffin said he was confident that no more would be needed. The motion then passed to refer to the finance committee and later in the evening the order was reported favorably and was passed.

STREET RAILWAY HEARING.

The hearing on the Street Railway's petition to put up a car shed or stable near Cross street, on Washington street, brought out two remonstrants, Messrs. W. E. Lench and E. A. Marsh, who objected to such a building being so close to these houses, as increasing the risk of fire and being a nuisance.

Mr. W. E. Lench asked if horses were to be kept there.

Supt. Henderson said that the company would have some six miles of road bed to look after and would keep their own horses, although he did not know how many, certainly not over six.

Mayor Burr stated that the permit to erect a stable would not allow of over four horses being kept.

Supt. Henderson said it was to be a car house, not a stable, and would be kept in first class shape. The cars would go out at 6 o'clock, and not return till nearly midnight, the doors being closed all day. The house would have two wings, for offices, and store rooms. Three cars would probably do all the work, but there would be room for twenty-five cars, including two sun parlors and two levelers. The house would be 32-12 feet high. The company would have sixteen cars to start with. As for the company's house, it was the nearest to the car shed, and he might live there himself, and he certainly did not propose to live next door to a nuisance, and the car shed would not be one.

Alderman Johnson asked Chief Bixby what would be the danger from fire.

Chief Bixby said he saw nothing objectionable about the building in this respect. It was large and open so that the firemen could have a good chance to work, and he did not think it would increase the fire risk. There was a hydrant in front and another within 200 feet, and if the company had a private signal box, it would lessen what risk there was.

The hearing was then closed.

Another hearing was given on the petition to run switches into the car shed, and for the spur tracks at the two ends of the road on Washington street, but no remonstrants appeared, and the petitions of the company were all granted.

A third hearing was for the location of a boiler and engine in Cousen's block, Newton Centre, for J. H. McAdams carpet cleaning works, but as the location had been changed the hearing was adjourned for two weeks.

Sixth class licenses were granted to A. F. Wright, West Newton, and Sherman M. Sears, Lower Falls, on recommendation of Alderman Johnson, after which the board adjourned.

Board of Health.

The board of health held a meeting in the City Hall Tuesday afternoon. A hearing was given on a petition for the drainage west of Grant avenue to the Rand estate, Ward 6. Rev. Alvah Hovey appeared in favor of the plan. Alderman Harbach appeared for F. Pettee, and Desmond Fitzgerald appeared in behalf of the Boston water board. Mr. Avery Rand, Mr. Ward and others appeared for the purpose of opposing betterments. The matter was taken under advisement, and also a report of the city engineer for the drainage of the River street district at an estimated cost of $18,000.

An order was adopted authorizing the construction of drains near the corner of River and Elm streets, Ward 3, for which $1000 has been appropriated by the city council.

The action of the agent and Dr. J. F. Frisbie in refusing further permits for cleaning and emptying vaults in the North School street district, was ratified by the board.

W. H. Mague was awarded a contract for three years for the collection of house offal, and the compensation fixed at $8,500.

The city engineer submitted a report with estimate of cost of drainage east of Centre street, Ward 7. The expense would be from $250 to $400 according to the methods employed. The report was tabled and will be considered, probably, at the next meeting of the board.

The action of the agent was ratified in reducing the number of occupants in two sleeping rooms in an overcrowded house at 180 nanant, occupied by French families.

IN MR. SEWARD'S FOOTSTEPS.

Everett P. Wheeler Writes to Senator Evarts.

MR. SEWARD'S CONDUCT AT A CRITICAL
PERIOD OF OUR HISTORY—AN INSTRUCTIVE
EXAMPLE FOR THE NEW YORK
SENATOR TO FOLLOW—THE McKINLEY
BILL IN THE LIGHT OF HISTORY.

NEW YORK, May 1, 1890.

Hon. William M. Evarts:
Dear Sir—I have noticed with great pleasure that you have been elected president of the William H. Seward Club.
There are few men of our time whose example is now more instructive, and I trust the formation of the club may be the means of drawing public attention to Mr. Seward's conduct at a very critical period of our history.

Mr. Seward was one of the friends and disciples of Henry Clay. The tariff system which was advocated by him and by Mr. Seward was defended on the ground that it was a temporary measure which would enable the manufacturers of what was then a poor and weak country to gain strength. As Mr. Clay said in 1833,
"Give us time, cease all fluctuations and agitations for nine years, and the manufacturers in every branch will sustain themselves against foreign competition."

In 1846 the majority in Congress were of the opinion that the time mentioned by Mr. Clay had arrived, and an thorough revision of the tariff was made on the general plan of putting raw materials either on the free list or at a low rate of duty, and putting at a higher, though still moderate rate, the articles into the manufacture of which a considerable degree of skill entered, and of imposing
a high rate of duty only upon luxuries.

With the exception of wine and spirits
the duties imposed by the tariff of 1846 varied from 5 to 40 per cent. The adoption of this bill was opposed by the great body of American manufacturers, and very gloomy predictions were ventured
as to its probable results. These predictions were not, however, realized. The manufactures of the country developed under its benign and equitable influence with marvellous rapidity, and in the session of 1850-51 Mr. Clay himself while criticising some of the details of the tariff, admitted that it was not his purpose or desire to revive "those high rates
of protection which at former periods of our country were established for various causes, sometimes from sinister causes,"
and that he did not propose to disturb
the general provisions of the tariff of 1846.

Mr. Seward was one of those who recognized the successful operation of this tariff. All interests in the country, those of the farmer, manufacturer and shipmaster, prospered under it. The revenue increased until there was a surplus in the Treasury, and in 1857 it was proposed to still further reduce the rate of taxation imposed by it. Among other propositions which were submitted to Congress was to put wool valued at 20
cents or less per pound on the free list.
Mr. Seward voted for this proposition, and he voted for the bill in the form in which it finally passed, March 3, 1857.
This bill gave us free wool, it reduced the 40 per cent. rate of the tariff to 20 per cent.; the 20 per cent. rate to 15 per cent.,
so that there was a general reduction
along the whole line, and many additions were made to the free list. It has been often stated by persons not familiar with the history of the time, that the panic of October, 1857, was a consequence of this tariff bill. You and I well remember that such was not the case—that the panic of that year was caused by excessive speculation, and that the country
rapidly recovered from it.

Statistics show that the progress of this country in all directions, from 1850
to 1890, was unexampled, and when the final volume of the census of 1890 was published in 1895 Mr. J. M. Edmunds, who wrote the introduction to the volume on manufactures, made the following statement, which is especially interesting as coming from an official appointed by Abraham Lincoln, and writing after the war:

The aggregate values in 1890 of our manufactures reach the enormous sum of $2,000,000,000, having been multiplied ten times within fifty years, ending in 1890, while our population in the same period has increased four and a half fold.
The amazing results, while necessarily affected by the wealth of our soil, its successful cultivation and abundant harvests, are yet directly traceable to the science, art, skill, industry and energy of the American people in the great department of manufactures.

The war undoubtedly made necessary
an increase of the tariff. The taxes which were imposed upon our domestic products necessarily required an increase of duty upon imports, and the debt
which we incurred during the war made a continuance of these taxes for years essential. Nevertheless, in 1872 a reduction of 10 per cent. was made in the duties imposed upon most articles, and many, including hides, were put on the free list. The uniform policy of the Republican party from that time down
to the tariff commission of 1883, as stated in its platforms and expounded by its official leaders, was to effect a gradual reduction of the tariff. The investigations which were set on foot by the Department of State developed the fact,
which I state in your own language from your report as Secretary of State, May 17, 1879, that "the average American workman performs from one and one-half to twice as much work in a given time as the average European workman."

You added with admirable clearness and force:

Within the last fifteen years we have demonstrated our ability, by the brilliant development of our own resources, to exclude by honest competition foreign manufactures to a large extent from our shores. The question which now pre-occupies challenges all thinking minds is how to create a foreign demand for these manufactures which are left after supplying our home demands. We cannot stand still, for the momentum of increase will soon become so great that it will push us outward any way; to push us safely and profitably is of so much importance as to almost overtop all other public questions of the hour. This question appeals equally to the selfishness and patriotism
of all citizens; but to the laborer it appeals with tenfold force for without work he cannot live,
and unless we can extend the markets for his manufactures he cannot expect steady work, and unless our manufacturers can undersell foreign manufacturers we cannot enlarge our foreign market.

It is only within the last four years
that the avowed policy of the Republican party on this subject has changed. The doctrine is now advanced and is embodied in the McKinley bill, that the high tariff is not a temporary but a permanent system, and that it is desirable
to restrict trade with foreign countries
as far as possible. We have come to the turning of the ways, and the question is whether you and other Republican leaders who have hitherto maintained and advocated the original doctrine of the Republican party to which I have referred, will adhere to it, or will follow
these new lights in a path which the great majority of your constituents believe will be fatal to the interests of the country. We ask nothing from Congress
but what was advocated by President Grant, by President Garfield and by President Arthur; by two Republican Secretaries of the Treasury—McCulloch and Folger—by the great war Governor of Indiana, Morton; by Allison, by Sherman and many other Republican Senators.
No one has stated this with more force
and vigor than Senator Sherman, June 9, 1885:

Every advance towards a free exchange of commodities is an advance in civilization; every obstruction to a free exchange is born of the same narrow, despotic spirit which planted castles upon the Rhine to protect commerce; every obstruction to commerce is a tax upon consumption; every facility to a free exchange of commodities increases trade and production, and promotes civilization. Nothing is worse than sectionalism within a nation, and nothing is better for the peace of nations than unrestricted freedom of commerce and intercourse with each other.

Mr. Seward was confronted by a very similar question in 1854. He had always been a Whig, and was indeed one of the most prominent leaders of that party.
But he felt that the cause of human freedom was of more importance than that of party. He combined with other distinguished men, of whom you were one, to form the Republican party. To the maintenance of the principles of that party as they were then understood he consecrated his life and sacrificed all his previous party ties. It is one of your titles to the respect of the Constitution and your countrymen that you joined heartily with him. It is the crowning glory of the Republican party that it gave freedom to the slave. It ought not now to rob the farmer and the consumer of their industrial freedom.

At a later period in the history of that party you cooperated with other distinguished members of it to condemn its errors. When General Grant dispersed
the Legislature of Louisiana at the point of the bayonet you were one of those who protested, and I well remember the eloquent terms in which you condemned such a violation of the Constitution and laws of the United States. It was owing to this and similar acts of justice that the Democratic party won its popular victories in 1874 and 1876.

And now what do we see? You cannot shut your eyes to the fact that the present McKinley bill is a combination of selfish interests; that the increase of the tariff on manufactured articles which it recommends is entirely unequalled for the people, and is introduced and promoted chiefly by those who expect to make money enough out of the increase while it may remain in force to enable them to carry out their selfish purposes.
I said to me in 1854 to retire from business. I am not a Republican, and it is not for me to say what influences have led a majority of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives to advocate such an unjust and unequal system of taxation, which must necessarily bear with heavy and possibly with crushing force on those who are least able to bear it, the great body of American consumers. That bill might properly be called a bill to cripple the industries and the commerce of the State of New York, and of the nation. It is perhaps an even more appropriate title
would be a bill to tax the great body of the citizens of the United States to increase the wealth of a few owners of mines and factories.

Your election was hailed by a large majority of the citizens of the State of New York with great satisfaction. Your well-known ability, your steadfast adherence to the original principles of the Republican party, and your manly independence in condemning its errors, led us
all to believe that in the Senate of the United States you would rise to the height of that exalted position, and would not.

To party give up what was meant for mankind.
You and men like you in Congress have
it in your power now to prevent the passage of this nefarious measure. As a party man and a Democrat I should welcome its passage, for I am convinced that four years' experience of it would be fatal for many years to the success of the party that passes it. But as an American, permit me most sincerely to express
the hope that this combination of selfish interests may be defeated by the combined action of patriotic men in Congress, and that you may add to your titles to the respect and gratitude of your countrymen by being the leader in such a cause.

Your well-known friendship for Mr.
Seward leads me to think that you sym-pathized with his action in 1857. It is the wish of many of your friends and constituents that your action at the present juncture may correspond to his then.
It is always well to build the tombs of

the prophets and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous." But better even than this is the imitation of their wise and brave actions. Otherwise the condemnation will be pronounced, that those who rear these monuments are "the children of them who either actually or in purpose) killed the prophets." I am,
with great respect, sincerely yours,

WIDENING WASHINGTON STREET.

The first move for the widening of Washington street came up before the board of aldermen, Monday night, and was promptly tabled. Alderman Johnson called attention to the fulfillment of his predictions of what would happen if a street railway company were granted a location in such a narrow street, and evidently he was right. Any one who has driven through the street can see how unfitted it is for the great thoroughfare of Newton, when a street railway takes up nearly half of it. Had it been possible to carry out Alderman Johnson's idea and sell the franchise, instead of giving it away, the city might have secured enough money to have in part at least covered this expense of the widening.

In some cities in other states, the street railway companies have to pay all over a certain per cent. of the earnings into the city treasury, and if Boston had adopted this policy in the beginning, the revenue now would probably have gone a long way towards paying that city's expenses. Steam railway companies have to pay for their right of way, and many people are now asking why Alderman Johnson, why the street railway companies should not pay something, instead of having the franchise given them.

In regard to the section of Washington street from Jewett to Walnut Park, where it is proposed to widen by ten feet on the north side, there is no question but that the place is a dangerous one, but it is no more dangerous than the section in front of Bellevue street bridge, where two teams could hardly pass even before the street railway tracks were laid, and there are many other sections of which the same might be said.

When the cars once begin to run, there will be such a demand for the widening of the street that some attention will have to be paid to it, and it can be said that it will be cheaper to widen now than when all the vacant land is built upon. As the great thoroughfare through Newton, Washington street ought to have been laid out at least sixty feet wide, and the abutments would have found such a course profitable. But like Centre, Beacon, Walnut, and others of the thoroughfares of Newton, the street was laid out in too economical a manner, and probably the early inhabitants never anticipated that there would be much driving through these streets, and they would have laughed at the idea of a street railway ever being built, and asked where the people would come from to ride in it. But the people have come, and the narrow streets are proving such a great disadvantage, that the authorities ought to insist that all the country roads now being laid out for main streets, should be of reasonable width. A good place to begin would be Beacon street, through the proposed village of Waban, which should be of at least double its present width, before any more houses are built. It would pay the abutters to give the land for such a purpose, and bear all expenses of widening and reconstruction.

The McKinley bill evidently spares nothing, for it has raised the duty on printer's felts, from 53 to 105 per cent., and on flax cloth, used in making rubber blankets for presses, the duty is more than doubled, it having been 35 per cent. before. For every man employed in the few flax mills in the United States, there are more than a hundred printers, and yet the latter are all forced to pay tribute to the flax manufacturers, for unfortunately the printers do not find that it is the foreign manufacturers who pay the extra tax, as the Boston Journal is rather stupidly fond of asserting. When articles are doubled in price by reason of an increased duty it comes right out of the pockets of consumers. The owners of these few flax mills may make larger profits in this case, but it is the printers who pay the bills and their profits are correspondingly decreased. This one case illustrates the reason for the almost universal protest against the McKinley bill.

COL. PARKER of the Saturday Evening Gazette has returned from Washington a sadder and wiser man, for he says that we work hard to send the best men to Congress, and fancy we have sent patriots, but we really have sent self-seeking demagogues, whose eyes are fixed on their reelection, instead of on the duties expected of them, and he closes in this lugubrious fashion: "He who clings to cherished beliefs in connection with the dignity of political manhood, incorruptible patriotism, purity of legislators and other comforting and uplifting things in kind, should stay away from Washington, unless he wishes to return home with bitter regrets that his ideals regarding the government of a great nation have been a cruel delusion and a snare."

NINE out of the twelve members of Congress from this state voted for the international copyright bill. Mr. Rockwell of the Springfield district voted against it, thereby putting himself on a level with the most unintelligent representative from the far west, while Mr. Candler and Mr. Morse did not vote at all. The latter can not be blamed, of course, for not putting himself on record, for he probably did not understand the measure, but why Mr. Candler should have dodged is something that his constituents would like to have explained. A man of his intelligence ought to have taken pains to put himself on record in favor of such a bill.

THE Waban land sale did not bring such prices as were obtained at the Tennessee land sales, but the buyers of the Waban lots got full value for their money, while Southern land booms have proved costly speculations before this. It is expected that some of the buyers will build at once, which will have a tendency to raise the value of all the unsold lots. It is said that another auction sale will be held May 31.

THE Milford Journal wants to know if the manufacturer is to have free will, and his goods are to be protected, how is the workingman to buy a coat as cheap as the workingman in England buys his, when there is no tax on woollens? The Journal will be called a free trader if it is so reckless with its conclusions.

THE need of separate voting precincts in Ward Four has been recognized, as the legislative committee on cities has reported a bill to make Auburndale and Lower Falls each a voting precinct.

"The woman who goes to a Browning Society when she would prefer cards and conversation; who sits, perplexed and doubtful, through a performance of 'A Doll's House' when 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' represents her dramatic preference; who reads Matthew Arnold and Tourgueneff, and now and then Mr. Pater, when she really enjoys Owen Meredith and 'Bootsies' Baby' and 'The Duchess,' pays a heavy price for her envious reputation." So says Agnes Repplier in an article on "Literary Shibboleths," which is one of the cleverest things in the May Atlantic. She also makes a plea for the people who resemble that "unfortunate young woman, who, for years, concealed in her bosom the terrible fact that she did not think 'John Gilpin' funny." It is a plea for an honest confession of our real tastes in literature, and a warning against being carried away by literary fashions. "Henrik Ibsen: His Early Literary Career as Poet and Playwright," is the opening article of the number. Sir Peter Osborne (father of that Dorothy Osborne, whose letters to Sir William Temple made some stir in the literary world a year or two since) is the subject of a picturesque sketch of a sturdy old Royalist in his island castle. Mr. Morton gives us his second paper on "Some Popular Objections to the Civil Service Reform." Mrs. Deland's serial is continued, and Mr. James' "Tragic Muse" is concluded in a manner which is more of a conclusion than Mr. James usually allows us; while Dr. Holmes, in "Over the Teacups," finishes this always entertaining series of papers with some charming little verses called "I Like You, and I Love you." The short stories of the number are the pathetic sketch called "Rudolph," and part first of "Rod's Salvation."

It has more power than any other oil cooking apparatus, and is ready for use as soon as lighted. It is simple, economical, cleanly and odorless. Fashion Sayings

The young men of Boston have the reputation of being the best dressed men in the world.

The firm that makes more clothes for young men than any other two firms put together in New England are Chas. Green & Co., Tailors, 581, 583 and 585 Washington Street, Boston.

Men have good reason to congratulate themselves upon the many opportunities to gratify their taste for Fashionable Clothes provided by this popular firm.

Wide trousers are still in vogue, so are the Black Cheviot Suits.

Five dollars and fifty cents seems rather a small sum for a pair of custom trousers, but Chas. Green & Co. are displaying over 1000 different styles of goods suitable for trousers at this price. Their suits to order at $25 and Spring Overcoats to order at $21 cannot be duplicated at any other Merchant Tailor for less than $30 to $35.

Persons desiring well fitting clothes should give them a call, they guarantee a perfect fit.

Open evenings till 7 o'clock, Saturdays till 10.

The May dance was performed most charmingly by a band of little girls, who retired and reappeared to the large gathering. Following this they were entertained by a prestidigitator and a delegation from the High school, who went through the performance of the "hoop drill" to the great pleasure of all. Dancing and refreshments closed the very pleasant afternoon.

—A special meeting of the "Lend a Hand" Society was held last Monday evening at a new place of office chosen for the ensuing year. Mrs. H. L. Putnam was made president and Mrs. J. P. Tolman vice-president, with a large and efficient board of directors. They will receive through the summer the contributions of the needy and before distribution put them into proper order. They will also take in charge the flower mission. This work has so greatly increased that a census of the head quarters has been issued requesting that a delegate from each station accompany the basket into Boston and aid in the collection and distribution of the flowers.

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Boston Children's Aid Society, held May 2, 1890, it was voted—In the retirement of Mr. and Mrs. B. Moore from the service of the Boston Children's Aid Society in the superintendence of the Home at Pine Farm, the directors desire to record their appreciation of the good work they have done and the refining christian influence they have had upon the boys during their term of service. They regret the failure of Mrs. Moore's health which has occasioned their resignation and they hope that they may so restore it that they may take up again a work in which they are so much interested and for which they are so admirably adapted. A true copy of the Record. H. D. Chapin, Secretary.

Costly Candor.

A story is told of Congressman Taubee of Kansas, who was elected lately by Charles Kincaid in Washington city, that contains considerable humor. An old colored man called Uncle Eph had lived in the Taubee family many years, and was considered an honest and faithful old servant. After the election for congressman, Taubee having been a candidate, he was taunted by some of his opponents with the statement that Uncle Eph had voted against him. Loath to believe it, he called old Eph into his room and said: "Uncle Eph, is it true that you voted against me at the election?"

"Yes, Massa William," replied Eph. "I voted for Publican ticket."

"Well," said Taubee, "I like frankness, and here's a dollar for your candor."

The old colored man stood scratching his head, when Taubee asked: "Well, Eph, what is it?"

"Well, Massa Taubee," said Eph, "If you is buying candor you owes me fo' dollars mo' kase I voted agin ye five times."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Plate-glass windows are now largely made at Allegheny, Pa. Great improvements have been made in this industry in the past few years. Formerly it took three weeks from the time work was begun on a mirror before it could be finished. Now, says a manufacturer, we get the glass in the morning and make it into mirrors perfectly finished and ready for sale before evening. Formerly the backs of mirrors were coated with mercury; now, sheets of pure silver are used instead. The old mirror reflected 60 or 65 per cent of the light that fell upon it; the modern mirror reflects about 95 per cent. The mercury looking-glass was very liable to rub off, heat and cold also affected it; the quiverer would crack or melt, and the beauty of the glass would be spoiled. None of these dangers threaten the silvered mirrors.

Ned—"You were having a charming time in the lake with the beauty and Lilgworth?" Charley—"Yes."

Yes—"I overheard you tell her you loved her above all things on earth."

Charley—"You did, you spy?" Ned—"Yes. But tell me, Charley, why did you leave her so abruptly?" Charley—"Well, the fact is, Ned, I wanted a smoke."

Chicago Times.

A lady, greatly excited, asks to see the editor of a daily paper, and is told that it is impossible, the editor being too busy to speak to any one, no matter who it may be. "Oh, that makes no difference," is her reply; "I shall probably do all the talking myself."

"Wait a moment outside, Maria; I've got to stop in here." "You ought to have more regard for appearances, John, than to stop at a drug store on the way to church." (Fiercely) "It isn't a question of appearances, Maria, it's a question of economy. I've got to buy a cigar or two and get some small change, or else throw this twenty-five-cent piece in the contribution box. Do you think I am a Jay Gould?"—Chicago Tribune.

THE PARISH OF THE MESSIAH.

THE RECTOR'S PARTY MAKES A STATEMENT CONCERNING THE CHURCH TROUBLES.

A number of misleading statements, it is claimed, have been published in a Boston paper concerning the trouble in the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale. The statements, it is stated, have given the positions of the dissenters, or those opposed to the present rector, Rev. Henry A. Metcalf. The rector's party has kept out of the public prints, and would have continued that policy had it not been for alleged misrepresentation on the part of the opposing faction. It has finally been decided to give the facts of the case as they are believed to exist by the rector's friends. The rector's party claim that five men have caused all the trouble in the church, all of whom had formerly been members of the vestry or held office in the church. One of the number had never been baptized, and had held office under the old church constitution, which did not require baptism. He was elected to office a year prior to the last annual Easter meeting, and it was expected, according to the statement of the rector and his friends, that he would be baptized during the year. Two of the five men, it is stated, are churchmen in an Episcopal sense, and both have held office as wardens. Of the other two, it is claimed by the rector that one is a Congregationalist and the other a Baptist.

A great deal of the discontent among certain members of the parish was occasioned, it is claimed, by the word, "baptized," which now appears in the church constitution approved by the diocesan convention of 1888. Concerning this constitution, the senior warden, Mr. C. E. Parker of Auburndale, says:

"The parish had long felt the need of a better constitution, less obscure in its language and provisions than the former church constitution, and more in accordance with the discipline of the Episcopal church. The constitution recommended by the diocesan convention of 1888 was carefully considered, and, with a few changes, unanimously adopted. It was submitted to the diocesan convention of 1888 and approved. It was then the only constitution of the church, abrogating all others, and requiring the consent and signature of every individual desiring to remain or become a member of the Church of the Messiah. In the constitution occurs the following: 'The vestry shall, at its meeting next preceding the annual meeting of the parish, revise the list of members of the parish, dropping from the list the names of all members who have ceased to comply with the conditions of membership, and such revised list of members shall be reported by one of the wardens and made a part of the records of the annual meeting.' In obedience to this mandatory clause, certain persons were dropped from the list of members, most of whom were absolutely void of the qualifications of membership. No new members were received. The new constitution had been unanimously adopted more than two years before, but, through neglect of its novel duties, persons had been elected and allowed to hold office who were absolutely disqualified by its plainest requirements. It should be noted that at the annual parish meeting, held Easter Monday, certain persons belonging to other parishes presented themselves as proposing to sign the new constitution, but their ineligibility was so evident upon being questioned by the rector that they retired. Others, present, who had expressed a wish to sign the new constitution, definitely withdrew their names, presumably upon finding that the limitations of the new constitution would disqualify them."

It is claimed that Mr. W. F. Nye, a former warden, signed the new constitution in which the disputed word "baptized" appears. The rector's friends claim that there has been a concerted movement, dating back some time, having for its object the deposing of the present rector. As a part of the plan it is believed by the rector's party that certain men have been induced to join the church, and to become members of the vestry. The present treasurer, Mr. C. W. Carter, says:

"The finances of the church were believed to be in excellent condition when Mr. W. S. Hinman, one of the directors, took the office of treasurer. His predecessor, Mr. W. F. Nye, in his report over the accounts to Mr. Hinman, showed a balance of $85. Before Mr. Hinman had actually taken possession of the office of treasurer, Mr. Nye had paid out for current expenses $80 of that amount. It was supposed that there was a small balance in the treasury, but, a few months later Mr. Hinman reported that his predecessor, Mr. Nye, had left contingent liabilities of $140, not indicated in his report. Mr. Nye, it appeared, had also been unable to pay the rector's salary, and the rector notified the junior warden, whereupon the amount due him amounted to about $150. Mr. Nye, when questioned concerning the matter, reported that there was no funds in the treasury with which to pay him. He also stated that from time to time moneys had been misappropriated, and that he had paid aside about $150 to cover these misappropriations, consisting of sums paid for the reduction of the church debt and

NOT APPLIED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

"The treasurer preceding Mr. Nye," continued Mr. Carter, "had applied these sums on the chapel mortgage placed in the Pioneer Co-operative Bank of Boston, paying off the monthly instalments. This policy had been indorsed by the vestry and committee on finance, of which Mr. Nye had been a member, and was carried out by him when he first assumed the office of treasurer. Bishop Paddock, to whose attention the matter was recently called by a committee who waited upon him for the purpose of securing the present rector's resignation, said that the moneys had been properly applied. The bishop further stated that the parish meeting held Feb. 5, when the committee was appointed to wait upon the bishop with a view to securing the rector's resignation, was illegal, as the call had been signed by only one of the wardens, and that the records of the meeting must be destroyed. He told the members of the committee that the parish of the Messiah had grown from a weak parish to a self-supporting one, and that it was the first parish to voluntarily relinquish aid from the diocesan board of missions, also speaking in complimentary terms of the rector, whom he had appointed one of his chaplains."

In regard to dropping the five men from the vestry, the rector and his adherents state that the action was taken because it was believed that they were conspiring to make trouble, some of them refusing to conform to the authority of the church. The rector's friends emphasize the fact that the dissenters make no charges against the rector's character, and that their chief reason in wishing for his resignation is based upon an assumed ground of his unpopularity and the alleged waning of the finances. The decrease in the finances, they state, is due, first, to discouraging persons from making their usual liberal contributions; second, the removal from the community of former generous supporters of the parish; third, to business reverses, compelling some members to decrease the amount of their contributions. The present treasurer says: "In spite of all this activity, the receipts for the four Sundays following Easter have increased 50 per cent., as compared with the four Sundays of the preceding year. An appeal will be sent out for the purpose of raising the necessary amount to wipe out the present indebtedness, including the sum now due the rector for back salary."

The Auburndale Church Trouble.

The trouble in the Church of the Messiah, Auburndale, was again revived Saturday evening by a meeting of the dissenters, held at the residence of W. S. Hinman, Central street, Auburndale. Among those present were the former five members of the parish who had been disfranchised, and also a number of members of the parish who were not allowed to vote for officers at the annual meeting, held on Monday evening following Easter, the rector ruling them out at that time because they had not signed the new constitution, and because their names did not appear upon the certified list returned by the wardens. The meeting of the dissenters was presided over by Mr. W. F. Nye, and an organization perfected as follows: W. F. Nye, senior warden; V. D. Baldwin, junior warden; John W. Bird, clerk; A. L. Jewett, treasurer; W. T. Farley, W. M. Lowrie, C. H. Sprague, C. L. Markham, H. R. Turner, W. S. Hinman, vestry. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that the action of the rector and some members of this parish in refusing to receive, count and declare the ballots of a majority of the members and legal voters thereof, at the Easter meeting, April 7, 1890, was a gross violation of our rights as regularly established members of this parish, and will not be submitted to, and that those persons who received a majority of the legal ballots cast are the duly elected officers of the parish.

Resolved, that the rector of this parish, in forcibly tearing out and destroying the record of a parish meeting, held Feb. 5, 1890, on the ground assumed by him, that said meeting was illegal, has exceeded the rights of the rector, or of any member of the parish, and we hereby direct the clerk to again record the proceedings of said meeting in the parish books of record, and to preserve the attested copy of said meeting now in his possession.

Resolved, that the rejection by the rector, and those persons acknowledged by the rector as the vestry, of the proposition of Bishop Paddock to submit all controversies to the mediation and decision of the bishop and two such interested persons as he might appoint, strengthens our confidence in the justice of our cause, and leaves us no other course to determine our rights except by resort to the courts of law, which we earnestly hope to avoid.

After the passage of the resolutions, it was voted to re-engage the services of Sexton Tapley, who was discharged by the rector's party, it is claimed, because his sympathies were with the dissenters, and to fix his compensation at $10 per month.

THE WABAN LAND SALE.

FIFTY-THREE LOTS DISPOSED OF AND THE BOOM BEGINS.

The Waban land sale last Saturday afternoon drew out a large attendance of real estate men, seekers after homes, builders, and interested spectators from Boston, Brookline, Allston, and other places. Four horse barges met those who came by train at the Waban station, and a large number came in private carriages. The tract of land comprising about seventy acres has been handsomely laid out by Mr. Samuel Hano, who has had streets and sidewalks graded and finely constructed, making some 130 handsome lots available for building purposes, most of them containing 15,000 feet on the average, although there are some larger and a few with only 8,000 feet. The land is high and some of the lots give a magnificent view for miles in every direction, with the Charles river in the immediate foreground, and all of the land is dry and it should be a very healthy place to live in. The lots were sold under the restriction that no house should be put up costing less than $4,000, and that no buildings other than dwelling houses, with private stables belonging thereto, stores, churches, schools and college buildings. Every lot was sold to the highest bidder, without reserve, 10 per cent being paid on the spot, with 20 per cent more to be paid on delivery of the deed, and the balance at 5 per cent. Some of the buyers intend to build at once, and after a few houses are put up the lots will be in great demand.

The sale was conducted by Messrs. J. F. C. and Elliott J. Hyde, and fifty-three lots were sold by five o'clock, when the sale was concluded, although a number of lots were disposed of at private sale. Following is the list of lots sold with the purchasers, and price paid:

NEWTON CLUB WINS FIRST PRIZE.

INTERESTING BOWLING TOURNAMENT AT THE WOODLAND PARK HOTEL.

The new annex of the Woodland Park Hotel was formally thrown open to the public Friday and Saturday evenings, and a large company of ladies and gentlemen were entertained by Landlord Lee. A description with illustrations of the new building has been given in the GRAPHIC. The interest aside from that attending the inspection of the rooms in the annex was concentrated in a bowling match between teams included in the Interleague Bowling Association, representing the Boston Athletic Association, Norfolk House Casino Club, Newton Club and Newton Boat Club. The tournament was opened by the Norfolk House Casino Club and Newton Boat Club. Appended is the result of the contest between these two clubs, the Casino winning by 102 pins:

In the contest between the Newton Club and Boston Athletic teams the former appeared in the best form and had better luck in sipping the new alleys. It will be noticed that 200 was not reached in any string during the progress of the matches. Such men as Lodge, Wood, Follett, Gillett and Raymond failed to make big scores and all the bowlers found it hard work to knock down the apparently obstinate pins. The short run to the scratch line, lack of practice on the new alleys and the slippery surface of the floor back of the scratch line were conditions which decreased the chances of making big scores. The work of the team, however, is worthy of commendation, and the totals demonstrated the ability of the individual bowlers under adverse circumstances. The Newton club team proved by its work that it is a strong aggregation of players and a formidable opponent of the other teams in the interleague association. Appended is the result of the match between the Newton club team and the Athletic bowlers, the former winning by 106 pins.

The total scores made in the four strings, two of which were rolled Friday evening, were as follows: Newton Club, 2004; Casino Club, 2530; Boston Athletic Club, 2477; Newton Boat Club, 2428. The Newton club had a lead over the Casino of 74 pins; over the Athletics 107 pins; over the Newton Boat club 170 pins. The largest string in the contest were rolled by Brown and Follett, 199 and 196. The best team rolling must be credited to the Newton Boat club with a total of 607 in the fourth string in the contest with the Casino bowlers. The prizes consisted of two handsome silver cups, the gifts of Landlord Lee, awarded to the teams making the two best scores, the Newton club taking first prize and the Casino club second. The cups very pretty in design, were appropriately engraved and will serve as pleasant mementoes of a most interesting bowling contest. The presentation speech was made by Mr. John W. Carter, Captains Follett and Smith responding for the victorious teams.

FROM TENNESSEE.

A LETTER FROM THE REV. S. E. LATHROP.

The following extract of a letter from the Rev. Stanley E. Lathrop of Sherwood, Tenn., has been received, thanking the contributors to the box of books and box of clothing recently sent him from Newton, for his mission work in that place:

"The box of books and the box of clothing have arrived and have been unpacked and the contents already distributed. The clothing, some of it, was exceedingly helpful to a poor woman who has a crippled hand, which disables her from sewing and whose husband not long ago deserted her, leaving her with a family of seven young children to support. She was exceedingly grateful for this aid in her time of need. There are many other families, also, who are very poor and in need of help all around us in the mountains.  The books likewise are very helpful—some for our library and others for distribution among native preachers and teachers and others in our vicinity. All these contributions will be exceedingly useful among the poor people round about us. There are many encouraging signs of progress among them. May the Lord bless and reward every kind donor who aided in these gifts. Some kind friend in Newton has been sending me the Newton GRAPHIC lately. In a recent number I noticed that the Freedmen's Aid Sewing circle had celebrated the 25th anniversary of its organization in a meeting at the Jackson Homestead. What a noble record of charitable deeds these Dorcas have made in that quarter century's kindly work! I seemed to see the hundreds, the thousands of the poor and needy ones, whose bodies have been warmed and clothed, and whose hearts have been cheered and comforted by these benevolent donations, and whose prayers of gratitude will cluster together in heaven like the brimming honeycomb, ready to drip its sweetness upon those who have aided them in their need. I seem to behold the great army of the poor whose minds have been fed, whose powers expanded, whose knowledge increased and characters strengthened by the books and Bibles and good literature sent for their use. Surely 'there is that giveth and yet increaseth.' I will remember the clothing and reading and sewing material sent to us during our work among the negroes in Georgia by the Newton Freedmen's Aid Sewing circle, all which helped so much to educate and comfort those poor people. May the rich blessings of the Heavenly Father shower down upon those warm hearts and loving hands which have done so much for the Lord and for his poor, through all these many years.

"Fair Play and a Challenge."

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

It must be pretty generally known to the people of Newton, especially West Newton, that there are two base ball teams under organization, each claiming the right to the name "Newtons." Last season a club was formed and played under that name. This season it has again come to the front with the same name. But so also has a rival team. Now it is well understood in all the base ball circles of this country, that of two clubs claiming the same name, the one which had formerly played under it has the right to it, until beaten by the other Newtons. We have never been defeated by the new team, consequently the old Newtons, it will be seen, have a perfect right to their name. In one of your later issues, appeared, in a communication, evidently from a friend of the new club, the statement that the strongest team ought to represent the city. We perfectly agree, and to show that we are in earnest and wish fair play, we will give the new team an early opportunity of crossing bats with us. The new team is hereby challenged to the name "Newtons" on the afternoon of June 17th. Can they desire anything more and is not that square dealing? The hint has been dropped, that we pay some of our players. Above my name, I will state that no man is to receive one cent more than his expenses. We are amateurs. Mr. Wm. Pettigrew is manager of the old team and all communications should be addressed to him. We intend to put up a stiff game and will play only clubs in good standing. Admission to our grounds will be free. Very Respectfully,
W. E. STACY, for the "Newtons."

Newton Natural History Society.
On Monday evening the Newton Natural History society held its regular monthly meeting—the last indoor meeting for the season. Six new names were added to the membership.

The attraction of the evening was "The Microscope." The lecture was given by Mr. A. R. Bailey, and was profusely illustrated by crayon drawings on the blackboard. Mr. Bailey has a wonderful power with crayon or pencil, and rapidly drew the various parts of animal, plant and crystal, and his descriptions and explanations were remarkably clear and understandable.

He has the rare power of using his crayon and voice at the same time, and instructing his audience as the picture develops under his hand. Prof. C. J. Maynard and Geo. L. Chandler followed with other information in the same line, illustrating their remarks with drawings, the whole of which was intensely interesting. Mr. Bailey and several others had brought in microscopes and a large number of slides, and the audience was invited to see the many beautiful and rare pictures as they were placed in position.

"The Evening with the Microscope" naturally drew out quite a large audience, who were richly repaid in the enjoyment and instruction of the evening. The following is a list of the "Field Days," which the society propose to hold the coming summer. To any and all of these the public are cordially invited. The excursion to the White Mountains is contingent upon a certain number notifying Dr. J. F. Frisbie of their desire to go, that suitable arrangements may be made. The date of this excursion will be announced in a few weeks.

"22nd. Blue Hill, Milton; conducted by Mr. G. L. Chandler. June 14th. Middlesex Fells, conducted by Messrs. G. L. Chandler, W. S. French and C. J. Maynard; June 21st. Nantasket, conducted by Messrs. G. L. Chandler and W. S. French; June 28th. Normbega, and Stony Brook, conducted by Mr. W. S. French; July 26th. Rockport, conducted by Messrs. C. J. Maynard and A. R. Bailey; August 19th. Newport, conducted by Dr. J. F. Frisbie; White Mountains, conducted by Dr. J. F. Frisbie, time not decided.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid in the blood; therefore external treatment affords no permanent relief. To eliminate the poison and make a thorough cure of the disease, nothing else so efficient as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Give it a trial. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

Don't Feel Well.
And yet you are old enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—well tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

Progress.
It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and action. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

"Tired All the Time."
Say many poor men and women, who seem overworked, or are debilitated by change of season, climate or life. If you could read the hundreds of letters praising Hood's Sarsaparilla which come from people whom it has restored to health, you would be convinced of its merits. As this is impossible, why not try Hood's Sarsaparilla yourself and thus realize its benefit? It will tone and build up your system, give you a good appetite, overcome that tired feeling and make you feel, as one woman expresses it, "like a new creature."

A Spring Medicine.
The druggists claim that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick headache, discovered by Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for these complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50 cents a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr., 75 Court St., Boston, Mass.

Boston, Aug. 26, 1889.
Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years standing. It was cut out twice by what they call eminent surgeons at intervals of six years, after being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not to delay but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart,

Rheumatism.

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectively cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatism, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th St., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with influenza, rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

Chap. 196, Acts of 1889. The Assessors or Assistant Assessors shall, in the month of May or June in each year, visit each dwelling-house or building and make true lists of all women twenty years of age and upwards, who shall in writing over their own signatures, request the Assessors to assess them for a "poll tax," and it shall be the duty of the Assessors to inquire at each such dwelling-house or building, for such written requests for assessment, which must give the name in full—age, occupation and residence May 1st, 1889. All women desiring to be assessed for a poll tax should have their written request for such assessment in the form required by the act of 1889, ready for delivery to the Assessors when they shall visit the home where they dwell. Each request should be upon a separate sheet signed by the applicant with her name in full. No application for the assessment of a woman for a poll tax will be received by mail or in any other than the manner provided by said Chapter 196, except by filing in the office of the Assessors the list provided by section 12, of Chapter 298, of Acts of 1884, as amended by Chapter 260 of Acts of 1888.

Persons holding estates in trust, whether for minors or otherwise, are particularly requested to furnish the Assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands from other causes, the Executors, Administrators, Trustees, or other persons interested, are required and warned to give notice of such change; and in default of such notice will be held to pay the tax assessed, although such estate has been wholly distributed and paid over.

Returns of Property Held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable, or Scientific Purposes.

In accordance with the requirements of Chapter 217, Acts of 1882—All persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the Assessors of Newton on any day from May first to the sixteenth day of June next, true lists of all real and personal estates held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1890, together with statements of the amount of all receipts and expenditures by such person or corporation for said purpose during the year next preceding said first day of May; such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the tax commissioner.

MORTGAGED REAL ESTATE.

Chap. 175, Acts of 1882, Sec. 1. Any mortgagor or mortgagee of Real Estate may bring in to the Assessors of the town or city where such Real Estate lies, at the time specified for bringing in the list as provided in Section thirty-eight of Chapter eleven of the Public Statutes, a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such Real Estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as a mortgagee or mortgagee. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement. The Assessors shall, from such statement, or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate parts of such estates that are the interests of mortgagees and mortgagees, respectively, and shall assess the same. Whenever, in any case of mortgaged Real Estate, a statement is not brought in as herein provided, no tax for the then current year on such Real Estate shall be invalid, and the reason that a mortgagee's interest therein has not been assessed to him.

SHIPPING.

Shipping and business income are not taxable to a firm, but each resident partner must include these items in his individual returns. Owners and agents of ships and vessels engaged in the foreign carrying trade, are referred to Sections 8 and 9, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes, for the form of return required to obtain exemption from taxation upon the valuation of such property. Said returns to be made to the Assessors on or before June first.

Any person bringing in a list of all his taxable personal property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any person neglecting to furnish the Assessors with such list at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors agreeable to the laws of this Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing and subscribed under oath before one of the Assessors on or before the sixteenth day of June, and that the Personal Property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board, notwithstanding any verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the Assessors.—Pub. Stat. Chap. 11, Sec. 39 and 41. When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed on Personal Estate to such person can be granted, "unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the amount which would have been assessed to that person on Personal Estate if he had seasonably brought in said list; and if said tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the said amount, the abatement shall be only of the excess above the said fifty per cent."—Pub. Statutes Chap. 11, Sec. 73.

The Assessors will be in session at their office, in the City Hall, in the City of Newton, on the 1st, 8th, 15th, 22nd and 29th days of May, and the 8th and 16th days of June next, from two to five o'clock P. M.

—A large dining room about 50 by 20 feet is being fitted up by the Pettee Machine Works for the use of their employees who bring their dinner with them.

—The entire length of the room, which will be nicely fitted up, in addition to a dining room there will be a room with set tubs and hot and cold water, 100 feet in length, and a large coat room with closets where the men can keep their clothes in nice order. —The Eliot Y. P. S. C. E. gave a very pleasant reception Thursday evening in the church parlors, to the members of the church and congregation. The guests were received by Rev. and Mrs. Chaffin, and Mr. H. M. Greenough, president of the society, and the Watertown orchestra and a quartet from the Institute of Technology, furnished some excellent music. The rooms were prettily decorated, and a beautiful collation was served, the tables being very tastefully decorated.

—Mrs. Stacy, wife of Postmaster Stacy of West Newton, with Mrs. Humphrey, had a narrow escape from serious injury, last Saturday afternoon. In driving around the bank building on to Washington street, the wheel of their carriage caught in the street railway track, and was crushed, which frightened the horse, but fortunately he was caught before going far. Both ladies were thrown out but fortunately were not seriously injured.

—The dirt and refuse on the main streets about the stores have all been cleaned up and carted away by the highway department this week, for which the residents are very grateful. The short item in the GRAPHIC of last week is credited with starting the reform, and with so many miles of territory to cover it is not strange that the highway department should occasionally overlook the "outskirts" as the Highways call Newton Corner.

—Hunnewell lodge, Order of the Red Cross, was instituted by Supreme President A. W. Turner of Boston, in Cole's Hall, Monday evening, with the following officers: T. F. Cleunan, past-president; G. W. Lamson, president; W. P. Leavitt, vice-president; W. B. Whittier, secretary; H. J. Kallach, treasurer; Dr. F. W. Webber, medical examiner; James McFee, chaplain; W. F. Boucher, guard; P. R. Mullen, sentinel. The lodge starts with a charter membership of 50 persons. The order promises $100 in one year; $10 weekly sick or accident benefit; $500 total disability benefit; $1000 at death. Preceding the election of officers, a concert was enjoyed. Selections were rendered by a quartet and readings were given by Miss L. A. Pierce of Natick. The meetings of the lodge will be held in Cole's Hall.

—The Executive committee of the Hygiene and Emergency society held a very interesting meeting on the night of May 12, in the parish house of Grace church. The report of the lecture committee was adopted. Their plans for the coming year contemplate first a course of lessons in Home Nursing, to be given by Miss Palmer, at the Hospital, to a class who will in turn instruct groups in different parts of the city. Courses of lectures on Hygiene and Emergency will be delivered by some of our best physicians here and there in the wards of the city. The object of all this work is to spread information among all classes of people as to the preservation of health and the relief of suffering. The organization is now secular in religion, and includes representatives from the different schools of medicine. Any one can secure membership by sending one dollar to the treasurer, Mr. D. R. Emerson of Jewett street, Newton.

—The anniversary of the one hundredth meeting, and the eighth annual dinner of the Newton Bicycle Club, was celebrated last Saturday evening at the United States Hotel. Among the thirty-three who sat down to the table was Charles L. Clark, the father of the club, formerly of West Newton, but now at Bangor, Me. This was his first appearance for five years. Mr. Geo. Hastings, the new president, performed the duties of toast master in a very able manner. Among those to respond were Lewis A. Hall for Newton, which he classed as the best city, or near it in the world. Mr. Geo. Brazier answered to the toast of high art, Mr. Fred Loveland for the ladies, Mr. Arthur Gimes for the wheel, Mr. Fuller for Old Brighton, and others were responded to. The club also listened with interest to remarks by Mr. L. Clark concerning the formation of the club. Out of the original seven charter members four were present, Messrs. Clark, Freeman Morris, W. W. Stall and Edw. F. Burnham. After the speeches came music and singing.

High School Notes.

The regular meeting of the Lyceum was held last Saturday evening. The bills under discussion were the Blue Hill and a resolution in regard to the Chinese. Both bills were reported upon favorably and supported by a unanimous vote. The meeting was not very lively.

The news for the week in a condensed form on account of room, is as follows: a euchre party held at the residence of Mr. and Miss Young, "a return party at West Newton, to the H. A. G. club, at which the school was well represented; the school catalogue will soon be out, being in the hands of the printer at present, and an entire change is coming in the roster of the battalion.

Y. M. C. A.

The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday was led by Rev. Mr. Taylor of Newtonville, who spoke eloquently and beautifully on the clouds that come to the Christian life through our own mistakes and blunders. The meeting next Sunday will be in charge of Mr. Dyer of Eliot church.

At the close of the exercises, lunch was served to the guests in the church, and the trustees gave a dinner in Association Hall to the members of the graduating class, faculty and alumni.

The annual dinner of the trustees was given in Associates' Hall, and was attended by the members of the graduating class, alumni and faculty. Rev. Dr. Alvah Hovey presided in the absence of the president, Hon. E. C. Fitz of Chelsea. The postprandial exercises consisted of brief addresses by prominent clergymen, the speakers being Prof. Burton, Rev. Dr. Albert W. Small, president of Colby University, Rev. Richard Montague of Colorado Springs, Rev. P. S. Moxom, of Boston, and Rev. J. K. Adams.

The board of trustees of the institution has decided to ask for an increase in the endowment of the school. The only important bequest during the past year was that of the late J. Warren Merrill of $20,000, the income of which is to be devoted to the uses of the institution.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

Common Council.

FURTHER DISCUSSION CONCERNING CONVEYANCE OF HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

The common council met in its chamber in the City Hall, Monday evening, President Hyde occupying the chair. Papers from the board of aldermen were passed in concurrence including the following orders:

Appropriating $16,500 for construction of a fire department building at Newton Highlands; authorizing the public property committee to procure bids for police stable on Cherry street, Ward 3; accepting National flag and staff for Franklin school; appropriating $75 for construction of foundation for fountain, junction of Walnut and Forest streets, Ward 5; confirming sale and issue of $33,000 water bonds; appropriating $850 for purchase of instruments for City Engineer's department.

A petition presented by Councilman Collins concerning the laying out and acceptance of Walnut street, between Griffin avenue and the aqueduct, was received and referred to the highway committee.

A petition presented by Councilman Roffe from C. S. Davis and others, asking for gravel sidewalks on the south side of Beacon street from Walnut, was received and referred to the highway committee.

The order appropriating $50 per month for conveyance of pupils to the High school from the south side of the city, came up under unfinished business, and brought Councilman Forknell to his feet on a question of privilege caused by the statement of the president of the council at its preceding meeting that remarks made by Councilman Forknell concerning the position of the school committee on the order relative to conveyance of pupils, were untrue.

Councilman Forknell reviewed the several stages through which this much discussed order had passed, and said that it had been defeated at the March meeting of the board. I stated, added Councilman Forknell, at the preceding meeting of the common council, that in all probability the order had been passed at the last meeting of the school board owing to the absence of the members, knowing that the school board had been divided on the question and that the passage of the order had been opposed by members of that body. I spoke candidly from the facts in my possession and it seems to me that it was unjust to impeach the veracity of my statements. In a report of the proceedings in a Newton paper the president of the council was reported as stating that my statements in this matter were untrue.

President Hyde said that it was not his intention to cast any reflections upon Councilman Forknell's veracity. He added, as a member of the school board, I was familiar with the views of the members concerning this subject. It will be remembered that the subject of establishing an English High school on the south side of the city was referred to a special committee of the school board. That committee, after consideration, reported adversely on account of the large expenditures now being made by the city. It was agreed that the scholars on the south side needed such a school, and Rev. Mr. Hornbroke, one of the members of the board, who had previously opposed the order, recommending an appropriation for conveyance of pupils to the High school from that section, joined with the other members of the special committee in recommending the order now under discussion. Councilman Bates said that he could not vote for the amendment of the school board, as he thought it was not within the province of the city council to make any appropriation for conveyance of pupils. If the school board saw fit to provide from its appropriation a sum for that purpose, added Councilman Bates, I should have no objection, but I find myself unable to vote for such a special appropriation. I cannot believe that pupils are actually suffering. Much can be said in favor of compelling the pupils to take more outdoor exercise. In time, a High school will, no doubt, be located on the south side. For the present, it seems to me that $500 could be expended in some better direction with a view to extending the usefulness of the high school. The addition of one or more teachers would, I think, increase its efficiency and avoid the necessity of teaching such large classes.

Councilman Collins—I don't think the members quite understand this question. This appropriation does not establish a precedent. Looking backward 20 years, we find that a school was located at Newton Centre of a higher grade than the other grammar schools of the city. The pupils of grades 5 and 6 went there until it was decided to concentrate all of the higher branches in the High school at Newtonville. In consideration of giving up that school at Newton Centre, the town agreed to pay the excess above the average cost in getting pupils to the High school from the south side. This continued for 27 years; the parents paid the average cost willingly and now simply ask the city to pay the excess.

On motion of Councilman Forknell, the whole matter was tabled until the report had been received from the special committee appointed to wait upon the Boston & Albany railroad officials, for the purpose of securing a lower rate of fare along the line of the circuit road for pupils of the High school.

A proposed amendment to Section 23, Ordinance 16, was referred to the committee on ordinances.

An order passed, authorizing the Church Hill was adopted, authorizing the city treasurer, under the direction of the committee on finances, to dispose of water bonds to the amount of $50,000, bearing interest at a rate not exceeding 4 per cent, per annum, payable semi-annually, the principal of said bonds to be applied for water works construction.

An order offered by Councilman Luke was passed, authorizing the Mayor to sign and execute an agreement with the Newton Cottage Hospital corporation relative to a building for contagious diseases and morgue in connection with the present hospital building.

An order offered by Councilman Hall was adopted, granting free use of Prospect school house hall to Perseverance lodge, I. O. G. T., Thursday evening, June 5.

ALUMNI DAY.

AT THE NEWTON CENTRE THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTION.

Wednesday was Alumni day at the Newton Theological Institution at Newton Centre, and some 200 alumni were present, representing the classes between 1840 and 1880. Class examinations occupied the day. At 11.30 o'clock the annual meeting of the trustees was held in Colby Hall. After listening to the reading of reports the election of officers was proceeded with resulting in the choice of the following: Hon. E. C. Fitz, president; Rev. B. A. Green, secretary; Freeman A. Smith, treasurer. Three of the old board of trustees were re-elected, with three new members, President E. H. Andrews of Brown University, President Small of Colby University and Hon. E. S. Converse of Malden.

The meeting of the alumni was held in the Baptist church at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Prof. E. B. Andrews, president of Brown University, presided. The exercises opened with singing by the choir of the church, followed by prayer by Rev. A. M. Crane of Millbury.

The address was delivered by Rev. H. L. Wayland, D. D., of Philadelphia. His subject was "Paternalism as Applied to the State." If our forefathers were to come among us, said the speaker, they would be at once struck with the portentous growth of great fortunes. In the early days a man possessing $10,000 was deemed well off. A man with $20,000 was considered rich, and $50,000 was considered an enormous fortune, as distant of realization almost as the stars in the firmament. That the rich are growing richer, he added, no one can deny; that the poor are growing poorer is shown by the writings of eminent men, who state that greater degradation among the poor classes may be anticipated in the future. It has been said that if the condition of the dependent classes is not improved, it will be difficult to decide which is the greater evil, riches or poverty. The speaker alluded to the labor of children, in many instances forced to work long hours. This condition, continued the speaker, should not exist in this country, where it is essential that the young should be protected, provided for and educated, that they may become good citizens.

GREAT INDUSTRIAL PROBLEMS confront us. How can we prevent strikes and disturbances? Prices are raised on the necessities of life and nobody is benefited except, perhaps, the man with the long purse. The state ought to become a parent to the child, preventing excessive labor; a parent also to the adult whose wages are lessened partly owing to competition with child labor. The state should reserve the right of adequate control over its own creations; it should break up the system which allows men to own vast tracts of land upon which no improvements are being made, and who are acquiring wealth in other locations. It should prevent Catholics from procuring choice land for their churches, which is foolishly exempted from taxation. The state must stop "cornering" in the market, and the character of its legislators must be raised to a higher standard. Citizens should go to the polls and vote for representative men.

At the conclusion of the address the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Crane. The alumni dinner was held at 5.30 o'clock in Sturtevant Hall. Covers were laid for 100 persons. The catering for the occasion, President Andrews of Brown acted as toastmaster and occupied the seat of honor at the head of the table. After the reading of the preceding meeting had been read, Professor Brown read the following list of obituaries for the past year, and added a letter of eulogy written for the occasion by Professor Stearns:

Joseph Charles Harshorn, class of '44, died at Newton Centre, July 11, 1889, 76 years old. Lewis Barrows, '42, died at Bartlett, Neb., September 18, aged 78. Simon Lovell Beebe, class of '56, died at Buckfield, Me., Sept. 11, 1889, aged 74. Samuel Lunt Caldwell, D. D., LL. D., '45, died at Providence, R. I., Sept. 28, 1889, aged 69 years. Daniel Newton Sheldon, D. D., '52, died at Waterville, Me., Oct. 4, 1889, aged 82. John Billings Brackett, D. D., '56, died at Brookline, Mass., Dec. 10, 1889, aged 74. Benjamin Dodge, D. D., '45, died in Hamilton, N. Y., Jan. 5, 1890, aged 71. Wm. Dunn Ward, '55, died in Boston, Dec. 10, 1889, aged 32. Edward C. Anderson, D. D., '49, died near Lansing, Mich., Jan. 29, 1890, aged 69. Amariah Joy, '58, died in Joyville, Me., Feb. 11, 1890, aged 81. John Henry Anderson, LL. D., '43, died at Lake Helen, Fla., Feb. 28, 1890, aged 75. Joseph Leroy Atwell Fish, '56, died at New Haven, Conn., March 26, 1890, aged 61. Daniel Wm. Phillips, D. D., '40, died at Nashville, Tenn., April 13, 1890, aged 81 years.

He also read a letter of kindly reminiscence from the pen of Dr. Kendal Brooks of Kalamazoo, Mich., Vice President of the alumni association, regretting his inability to be present, and referring to the saintly lives of the late Drs. Caldwell and Dodge. Dr. Alvah Hovey, the president of the institution, spoke briefly, welcoming the members of the alumni. He alluded to the work of the seminary and the improvements of the past year in separating the courses of instruction, and in the accession of a French teacher of especial advantage to those students who go forth to preach the gospel among communities of the French people.

Dr. R. C. Mills, who graduated in 1840, was the next speaker. He said that young men should be encouraged to enter the ministry. Rev. Dr. Small, president of Colby University, who followed, was introduced as the prodigal son, not having been present at the anniversary exercises since his graduation 11 years ago. Rev. T. D. Anderson of Providence, R. I., spoke of the necessity of preaching not alone the dry truths of the gospel, but bringing these to bear upon the facts of every day life.

Rev. A. S. Gumbart of Boston Highlands spoke of the work which could be undertaken by ministers in furthering the education for the ministry. The speaker was brought to a close by Rev. F. W. Ryder of East Boston, who gave interesting reminiscences of pastoral labors. The following persons were elected officers of the alumni association for the ensuing year:

Rev. Kendal Brooks, D. D., president; Rev. E. H. Merrill, vice-president; Prof. C. R. Brown, secretary; Rev. E. A. Capen, treasurer; Rev. Basil Manley, D. D., orator; Rev. N. B. Jones, Rev. G. A. Cleveland, Rev. E. D. Mason, committee of arrangements.

Wednesday evening Rev. W. H. P. Faunce of New York delivered an address before the Knowles Rhetorical Society in the Baptist church.

No matter how firmly fixed a man's opinion of his own good looks may be, it sort of unsettles him for a moment to have people say his new baby is the very picture of him.—Philadelphia Times.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB.

The Tariff is a Humbug.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful
consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms
and communications of every kind whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders, or High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

The "Home Market" Humbug.

"Home Market" is the cry that the extreme protectionists seem to find most effective. They never cease to raise it.

In the face of experience and reason,
there must be some extraordinary cause for the persistent vigor of this humbug. That cause appears to be this: that though the claim that protection secures the farmer a home market is utterly untrue, it has nevertheless been urged, and is yet being urged, by those who are on the one hand peculiarly interested in keeping it afloat, and on the other are themselves so situated as to be easily
and actually led to believe the falsehoods thus kept in circulation. In other words, protected manufacturers,
imagining themselves the most important portion of our people and knowing what a good thing it is to have the rest of our citizens compelled to buy of them under penalty of heavy fines, not unnaturally take it for granted that what is good for them must be good for everybody else.

The way the "Home Market" racket
is worked by the protected interests is as follows: The manufacturers, like the producers of copper, sell all their products they can at home at the protected prices, and the surplus goes abroad and is sold at lower prices. Thus foreigners can buy many kinds of American productions cheaper than our own people.
The following testimony shows how
the thing is done:

"It is sometimes looked upon as wise
to ship goods out of the country at cost rather than break the regular price for which such articles sell in the country in which they are produced."—[New York Press, October 22, 1889.]

"Just why American manufacturers will sell machinery and other goods from ten to thirty per cent. cheaper in Europe
than they will sell them to be used at home is rather puzzling; but anyone curious in the matter can easily enough find out that many of them do this. It may be necessary to cut prices to secure trade from abroad, but it is likely to strike the American purchaser as being a little rough on him."—[American Machinist, September 26, 1889.]

"So soon as an industry has attained
the position where it can more than supply our home market and has to send its goods abroad, where they compete with the foreign manufacturer, it is evident that they are either giving the foreigners the benefit of lower rates
than they do our own people, or that they are able to get along at home without any protection from foreign manufacturers. It is not fair that our people should be made to pay more than foreigners for the products of our own land."—[Engineering and Mining Journal (protectionist) March 15, 1890.]

"Objection is made in many quarters
to an increase of American trade outside the home market. The opposition, however, is chiefly confined to two classes:
first, those who manipulate the home
market so as to make it more profitable
than any export trade could possibly be,
and for that reason would rather not sacrifice prices to open competition.
In each case the motive is reprehensible; those who sell in the home market only do not care to demonstrate that they can sell at free trade
prices."—[Age of St. J., 1890.]

The following are some of the prices
to domestic and foreign customers in agricultural machinery and hardware:

	Domestic.	Foreign.
Ploughs	$11.00	$8.40
Cultivators	8.00	6.75
Shovels (dozen)	9.20	7.80
Spades	10.00	8.50
Hammers	4.37	4.05
Axes	8.24	8.20
Hatchets	4.56	3.80
Locks	7.20	6.00
Screws	10.00	6.66
Circular saws	30.00	25.55
Sewing machines	24.00	21.00

We have selected above only a few of the best known and most common articles in the making of which American manufacturers excel. The list could be indefinitely extended. In all these goods the foreign customer gets lower prices than the domestic, the prices being kept up here by high duties,
and the manufacturer protecting himself
from competition by reducing the price of the goods he sells abroad.

The New England League.

We are pleased to see that the Massachusetts Tariff Reform League has broadened its field of operations to take in all of New England. New England interests are all alike involved on the tariff question. New England has capital, enterprise and skilled labor, but it produces no minerals for its manufactures. It needs wool, lumber, iron,
coal, copper, salt, and other raw articles,
and it needs them as cheap as its rivals get them. This is not necessarily a political question. It is ridiculous to assume that the supremacy of the Republican party depends on the McKinley bill, which increases the war tariff on nearly every article. There are thousands of Republicans in New England who do not believe in this way of revising the tariff, even if the voices which should be heard in Congress are silent.

Who Does Like It?

Ex-Representative Fulton of California, Republican, has told an interviewer in Washington his view of the Pacific coast sentiment on the revised-up tariff. He said: "I don't think the interests of the Pacific coast are advanced by the McKinley tariff bill, and, as a consequence, the measure does not meet
with much favor among our people.
The sugar and tin plate propositions are against us, and must naturally meet with a good deal of opposition from our Senators and Representatives." Will they dare to speak out?

"Song of the Shirt."

We import $13,000,000 worth of brown
and bleached linens yearly, which pay $4,000,000 duty. We have five little linen mills whose combined total product is worth at the market price $602,- 451. It is not necessary for them to combine, and the market price must be higher by 35 per cent., and their competition would not lower it.

Foolish Criminality

To the Editor of the Graphic:

I was astonished at reading in your issue of May 9th that a police officer of our city was so ignorant as to his rights
and duty that he fired his revolver three times "at three men whom he thought were acting in a suspicious manner," and then discovered that "the men were out on a lark and did not care to be recognized." There was no suggestion that the men were concerned in any criminal enterprise. So far as appears the firing by the officer was not only reckless but wholly unjustifiable. Supposing they were three young men out on a lark and one of them had been killed, the officer would have been guilty of murder in the second degree or of manslaughter. As it was, the officer is probably amenable to an indictment for an assault on the men with a dangerous weapon. Fortunately no one was hurt, but with that fact in view the proceeding was not creditable to the officer.

Mayor Burr is a good lawyer and well knows the limited rights and duties of civil officers; he is the chief executive of the city and it belongs to him and the committee on police to put a stop to any similar foolishness. If to the assaults of dogs, mad and not mad, there is to be added heedless acts of violence of police officers, human life will be put to extra hazards.
CHARLES ROBINSON.
West Newton, May 13, 1890.

Lasell Notes.

The young women celebrated the incoming of May, Thursday evening, May 1st,
by winding the May pole to the music of a band. After this ceremony followed a general jollification, and finally repaired
to the dining room for refreshments.
They cheered the band, Mr. Shepherd, and every one else who had been instrumental in arranging the entertainment.

Saturday evening, May 3rd, nearly half a hundred attended the exhibition of the Emerson School of Oratory, the reading of Leland Powers, Mrs. Scott Pond and others
at Tremont Temple, Boston.

On Sunday, parties attended church at Ruggles Street and the Old South.

The gymnasium has practically closed,
being open only on rainy days. Lawn tennis, boating and walking now are the recreations.

Monday a party with a teacher spent the afternoon at the Boston Art Museum.

Miss Greene recently gave a quiz upon her law lectures, and considers that her questions were well answered in general,
some of them as well as they would have been by regular students of law.

The classes in Chemistry gave the first half of the year to laboratory work and the last half to quantitative analysis. They examined in detail the several groups of metals. Some of the lectures are given to the chemistry of foods.

The study in Geology has been dynamical and is now historical. They visit museums in Boston and Cambridge and make a study of fossils. With their teacher they will make an examination of this region,
especially as regards the glacial period.

The last of the piano recitals was held this week.

Unselfish Advice. (Mrs. Caudle concluding a certain lecture)—"Remember,
I am telling you this for your own good." Mr. Caudle (speaking for the first time)—"Is that so? I thought it would be for your own amusement."— Lowell Citizen.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC.

EDWARD D. BALDWIN, Editor and Publisher

TELEPHONE NO. 80.

The GRAPHIC is printed and mailed Friday afternoons, and is for sale at all News Stands in New Newton, and at the Boston & Albany News Room, Boston Depot.

All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.

The legislature of 1890 has furnished more forcible arguments for biennial sessions, than any of the warmest advocates of the reform could do. There has been too much attention paid to the making of political capital, and too little to the business for which the members were elected, and therefore the session has dragged along, and there is as yet no prospect of adjournment. The majority seem to have lacked skillful leadership, and have been often placed at a disadvantage by the majority, which contains some of the shrewdest men in the house, and they have used their power with untold energy, and have placed the majority in an unfair position many times, when if left to themselves they would have come out all right. The moral seems to be that the Republicans must exercise great care in making their nominations, and must send representatives who will be able to cope with the adversary. One or two strong men on the Republican side would have been a good party investment. If the other party send their brightest men to the legislature, the Republicans must do the same, or else be willing to take the consequences.

CONGRESSMAN CANDLER has been heard from at last in the tariff debate, and he moved on Wednesday to fix the duty on lamp chimneys at 45 per cent. ad valorem, instead of nearly double that amount. The motion was lost, of course, in spite of the fact that the largest manufacturers of lamp chimneys in the country testified that he could get along without any duty, as the foreign makers were unable to compete with him. Congressman Candler deserves credit for even in such a small way giving expression to his convictions, and now that he has made the first step, he hopes that he will keep on. It is the first step that counts, and his constituents would be glad to see that he realizes that he is sent to Congress to represent New England's interests.

It is difficult to understand why the legislature should have rejected the caucus reform bill, unless the political leaders are afraid of it. It is an important step towards electoral reform, and if the measure was not perfect, it could have been amended. As it is now, caucuses in the cities of the state are managed by a small clique, and this is true even in Newton. That no worse results follow is creditable to the caucus managers, but it is a dangerous condition of things which allows a few men to act for a populous ward, and to carry out whatever plans they may please to make.

It is said that the illegal sale of liquor has not wholly ceased in certain portions of the city, in spite of the convictions under the present city government, and evidently it is not safe to give up even for a brief time the strictest watchfulness over these offenders against the law. A few raids and convictions, and a week seems to be necessary to have the law respected.

It is reported that President Harrison has told Senator Quay that he must either disprove the charges brought against him or resign from the national committee. Senator Quay, on the other hand, thinks that the President is too particular, and proposes to "stick it out," confident that the majority of his party will not believe that such things could be true of any prominent Republican.

The Natick Citizen says that there is a project on foot to extend the West End Street Railway to South Framingham, and that franchises have been granted as far as Wellesley. It will be news to Newton people that any street railway has a franchise through Newton from the Boston line to Wellesley.

REV. R. A. WHITE preached a very able sermon last Sunday on the Old and New Charity, in which particular attention was paid to the best methods of relieving the poor and unfortunate, and the work of the Associated Charities was outlined. A full abstract is given in another column.

The Boston English High School has 803 pupils on its rolls this year, and in spite of the large number, there appears to be no complaints of any lack of efficiency in the instruction given. But then the school does not have three or four separate courses, wherein it has one advantage over our High School.

The common council is still wrestling over the High School barge question, and evidently intend to have something to talk about all summer.

The Boston Traveller is making a great success of its special baseball edition.

Rose and Strawberry Exhibition.
The Newton Horticultural Society is to hold a Rose and Strawberry exhibition in Associate's Hall, Newton Centre, Wednesday, June 25th. Although this date is fixed upon yet the date may possibly be changed as the season is in advance of the average season, in which case the exact date will be advertised in the local papers. The exhibition will be run on the basis of the show last year, with a few changes; the most important change will be the keeping open of the show during the evening, admittance to those holding members tickets or special evening tickets. There will be a promenade concert in connection with the show during the evening, commencing at eight o'clock. The schedule is practically the same as last year, a little more attention being given to the Roses of the Hybrid perpetual class. It is to be hoped that the citizens will take a pride in this show and will contribute articles for competition and insure its success. The prizes lately have been taken by comparatively few persons and the management are desirous that the competition will be brisk and that a large quantity of fruit and flowers will be on the tables. Prizes and gratuities will be awarded for fruits, flowers and vegetables, and a schedule of the same will be forwarded to any person desiring same, by applying to the secretary, L. H. Farlow, Newton. The prizes are open to any resident of Newton.

Beacons-Volunteers.
The game last Saturday afternoon between the Volunteers and the Beacons of Allston, resulted in favor of the latter. Ross, the Volunteers' new pitcher, was in the box for the first time this season; he was rather wild in the first inning but settled down toward the latter part of the game. The Beacons played a good game throughout. The Volunteers had two of their substitutes as the regular men were not able to play. The Beacons had to play with eight men as their centre fielder failed to appear. The following is the score in full:—

Newton Centres-Our Boys.
The Our Boys of Somerville, who last year lost but one game, visited Newton Centre, Saturday and were defeated by the local club. The game was very close and exciting, the score being tied no less than four times. For the Newton Centres the pitching of Rising, the batting of Hooper, and the base running of Burrage and Butler are worthy of note, while the playing of Parker and Hedge for the Our Boys deserves mention. The game was witnessed by a large crowd including many of the fair sex. Following is the score:—

THE FAMOUS OIL RANGE. A HOUSEHOLD BLESSING.
Housekeepers who appreciate a cool kitchen and wish to simplify the summer cooking, will find here just the article needed. The Famous Oil Range has been on the market six years and thousands of them are in use. It is unlike other oil stoves in being a range, with four large cover holes, all of which are available for cooking. It has more power than any other oil cooking apparatus and is ready for use as soon as lighted. It is simple, economical, cleanly and odorless. It will last as long as a kitchen range, and is superior to it for baking and roasting. It works on the same principle as the Wire Gauge Oven as used on the well-known Hub Ranges. If you will write us, we will put you in the way of getting one of these stoves, no matter what part of the country you live in.

—Dr. W. O. Hunt leaves tonight for the Megawick Club, leaving his residence, for a two weeks' sojourn. Dr. O. E. Hunt will attend to his patients during his absence.

—Officer Bosworth recovered a pocket book containing a small sum of money and a satchel, Wednesday, and returned them to their owner, Mr. F. H. Hobart, Watertown street.

—The new police box has been placed in the square on a huge post near Mrs. Williams' store. It has been inspected by a large number of curious persons who are anxious to learn how it works.

—A fine tennis court will be soon laid out on the grounds of the Newton Club, and lovers of the game will have an opportunity to show their skill with the racket during the summer months.

—J. H. Williams has removed from his old location in the rear of Tremont Hall to the upper story of Frank Joyall's new building on Washington street. The first floor will be utilized for a carpenter shop by Mr. Joyall.

—Boys with mischievous intent held the arms of the gates at the Walnut street crossing Tuesday afternoon, while the gatekeeper firmly held the crank. As a result, the chain broke, and the gates on the north side were rendered inoperative. A little fun may be excusable, but in this case it proved rather serious for the boys.

—Thomas Smith died at his residence on Crafts street, Wednesday evening. The deceased had resided in Newtonville for about 20 years and was 42 years of age. He formerly conducted a milk route, which he sold out several years ago, afterwards engaging in the farming business. A widow survives him. The funeral took place from his late residence today.

—The "Goddard" presented the four-act comedy, "Our Mutual Friend," in the Universalist church parlors, last evening. There was a large audience present. The piece was well staged and appropriately costumed and the characters were well sustained by Messrs. Willey, Brigham, Bridges, Kimball, Mrs. Pope, Miss Wadsworth, Mrs. Talbot, and Mrs. Kimball. An orchestra in attendance and furnished excellent music.

—An unknown man was struck and instantly killed by the New York inward express on the Boston & Albany railroad, near Carter's crossing, at 5.45 o'clock last Saturday evening. He was thrown a distance of 50 feet by the engine, striking on his head and fracturing the skull. The deceased was apparently about 50 years of age, and had the appearance of a laboring man. The remains were taken to S. F. Cate's undertaking rooms by order of the medical examiner.

—A pretty May party was given in Tremont Hall, Monday evening, under the auspices of the "Lend A Hand" Society, connected with the Universalist church. Dancing was enjoyed by the young folks, and much pleasure derived from the social features of the occasion. Miss Maud A. Lewis was floor manager and the aids were Misses Emma Parks, Rose Cunningham, Grace Dennison, Clara Smith, Flora Smith and Nellie Bigelow. The matrons were Mrs. R. A. White, Mrs. A. B. Tainter and Mrs. W. S. Higgins.

—A party of Newton gentlemen interested in the proposed Chelmsford railway, to run from Newtonville to Newton Highlands, thence to Newton Centre, and returning to Newtonville, went to Beverly Tuesday morning, and inspected the road there now being successfully operated by the Union Electric Car Co. The party enjoyed a ride in the storage battery car between Beverly and Danversport and returned, a distance of 12 miles, making the trip in 20 minutes. They were very much pleased with the system, which is considered first class in every respect. The cars move easily over the rails without the jarring noise noticeable in the street car system. After the trip, dinner was partaken of at the Hotel Trafton. Among the gentlemen in the party were Messrs. J. H. Nickerson, A. B. Mitchell, W. H. Kendall, O. T. Pettie and Mr. Jenkins. The proposed road in this city meets with general favor, especially as it presents so few objectionable features.

—A party numbering about fifty ladies and gentlemen, went to Chelsea, Tuesday evening, representing the Newton Club and were hospitably entertained by members of the Review Club in their commodious and beautifully furnished clubhouse. The Newton Club bowling team, composed of Messrs. A. A. Savage, C. A. Cunningham, J. L. Richards and J. A. Fenn, participated in a match with the Review Club team and was defeated by a handsome margin. The increased spread of the triangle bothered the Newton men, the pins being set wider apart than on the home alleys. The best individual score was made by Mr. Savage. Competitive whist games were enjoyed, the Newton men having better luck with the cards than in knocking down pins. An 100-point billiard contest between a number of the Chelsea Club and Mr. Carter of the Newton Club proved very close and interesting and some fine shots were made by both men. With only two points to score against nine to be made by his opponent, Mr. Carter made two slip-ups on difficult shots and lost the game, the Chelsea man reaching the 100 mark in two runs after a slip-up. During the evening, excellent vocal music was enjoyed and a brilliant partaken of in the banquet hall. The Newton delegation was courteously received and generously entertained and returned with very pleasant memories of their visit.

A reception at the residence of the bride's father, North Prospect street, followed the ceremony. The couple will enjoy a wedding tour. They were the recipients of many elegant presents.

—The annual supper and exercises of the Women's Educational Club were held in the Unitarian church yesterday afternoon and last evening. The features comprised short speeches, toasts and quotations. Mrs. E. L. N. Walton was re-elected president of the club. There was a large attendance at the exercises.

—The semi-annual election of the Newell Society of Christian Endeavor, was held in the Second Congregational church, Tuesday evening, and the officers elected for the ensuing term: Joseph A. Symonds, president; W. Smith, vice-president; Addie A. Lewis, secretary and treasurer; Sarah M. Cate, corresponding secretary. Several committees were also chosen.

—The anniversary exercises of the Sunday school of the Second Congregational church will be held Sunday evening. An address will be delivered by Mr. A. S. Lovell, of the Unitarian church.

—Messrs. J. C. Fuller & French have sold the J. B. Fallon, formerly the Godfrey estate, on Otis street, consisting of a house, barn and 6 acres of land, to Mr. George J. Staples of Boston. Mr. Staples was formerly a member of the firm of J. H. Pray, Sons & Co., and has lived in West Newton for the past few summers, occupying the J. T. Allen house.

—Albert White, Frank Hart and Herbert Tyler, instantly arrested by Officer Ryan Sunday afternoon for stealing a ride, Tyler was sent for a team by his father and failed to return, preferring a ride through the suburbs. He picked up the 2 other boys at Needham, having started originally from Dover. The boys were arraigned in the Needham police court Tuesday.

A public meeting will be held at 7.45 in the auditorium of the church, at which Mrs. Laura Armstrong Chant of England will give an address upon "Life and Social Life Today." Mrs. Chant is a very impressive speaker, and has drawn enthusiastic crowds to hear her, both in Canada and the West since her arrival on our shores.

—The most remarkable event connected with the history of York Beach, Me., is the recent discovery and development of the mineral springs which are situated on the property of the Ocean House. A distinguished chemist in giving the analysis of these springs says: "Undoubtedly you have here a magnificent water, and is exactly similar to the world-famed Apollinaris."

—Foremost among the fashionable inland resorts, Sharon possesses a charm that the lover of rural beauty can hardly expect to find elsewhere. As in former seasons, the Massapoag Lake Hotel will prove to be the centre of attraction. A fine orchestra, good livery, tennis courts, a handsome new steamer on the lake, an elegant service—these are a few of the numerous attractions that welcome vacationists to the shades of Sharon.

—No place more delightful in which to enjoy the season's outing than at the Asquam House, overlooking Asquam Lakes, Holderness, N. H. The view of the surrounding country at this point is grand. Send for descriptive circular to Leon H. Cilley, Holderness, N. H.

—The construction of a bridge across the Chelsea River, connecting Weston and Newton at a point near the Islington estate, is now being agitated. This would particularly benefit Weston, and bring into the market some beautiful land for building purposes.

Mr. Riddle's selections will be taken in part from Shakespeare and Dickens, and will include the "Chariot Race," from Ben Hur.

—The straw hat festival given by Riverside lodge, N. E. O. P., last Wednesday evening, was a success in every way. The number in attendance was unusually large, the hall being very full. The first part of the evening will be given to the music of a promenade concert, during which, strawberries and cream, ice cream and cake were sold. Many tried to win the guess cake by telling the number of seeds in a certain square of the cake, failing to Miss Helen Soule, assistant at the post-office, who guessed within one of the correct number. The flower table, covered with potted plants, baskets of flowers, was also the confectionery tables. At 10 o'clock the floor was cleared for dancing, which was continued until 12 o'clock, the music being furnished by the Riverside orchestra. A large number from the other Newtons were present, and the receipts, which will go toward the purchase of a new piano, amount to about $65.

THEOLOGICAL GRADUATES.

PRESIDENT HOVEY'S SERMON AT THE NEWTON INSTITUTION.

Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., delivered the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of the Newton Theological Institution in the Baptist church, Newton Centre Sunday morning. The auditorium was well filled, the students of the seminary and a large number of persons, representing the Baptist and other denominations, attending the services. President Hovey took his text from Romans xii. 36: "For of him and through him and unto him are all things." The words of this sentence, said the speaker, are few and short. We utter them in a breath—twelve syllables only! Yet they contain truth so deep, and high and sacred that we listen to it with awe, for they assert in simple terms that all things created, whether great or small, living or lifeless, seen or unseen, on earth or in heaven, are bound to God by a threefold tie—of origin, of control and of destination. God is the first cause of their being. God is the power by which they are preserved and controlled, and God is the chief end of their existence. In so far as they are endowed with moral power they are made to glorify God and enjoy him forever. Thus the universe in its relation to God is the theme of this wonderful sentence.

All things are of God. That is, from him as their first cause of source they owe their existence to him. He is their creator. The act which we call creation is inscrutable. What we mean by the word is evident, but the possibility of such an effect of energy baffles conception. Good sense and modesty yield to the teachings of Christ, which avers that things impossible with men are possible with God. God fully understood could not be rightly adored. In order to be thus adored he must be infinite. A limited being cannot inspire absolute confidence, yet the religious nature of man will never be satisfied with an object of worship in whom it does not absolutely confide.

All things but God were brought into existence by a creative act. Every atom in matter, every sort of energy, every principle of life, every rational spirit, is from God, either directly or mediately. His being is the only self-existent and eternal being, his power the only original and limitless power, and his goodness the only undeviated and imitable goodness.

God is Infinite Being, undiminished by the act of originating other beings; God is infinite power, undiminished by the act of establishing other centres of power; God is infinite reason, undiminished by creating other rational beings; God is infinite love, undiminished by the highest activity in imparting himself to others. Being, power, reason, good will are self-existent and immutable in him.

All things are through God. We cannot be perfectly certain as to the meaning of this expression. It may refer to creation in the strictest sense, or to preservation and providence. If it refers to the work of creation in the strict sense, it must signify that God was his own agent in creating the universe, that this stupendous miracle was wrought by his direct and simple energy. If it refers to God's control of the world's progress and evolution of time, it may be associated with the apostle's description of him as "one who is above all and through all and in all." Hence, we take it to be the apostle's doctrine that God's relation to all things is forever most intimate and necessary. In him we live and move and have our being. The mystery of life, growth, consciousness, action, perception, depends upon him. Physical science deals only with phenomena, manifestations and changes in the realm of nature. It does not penetrate or lay upon the essence of things. What that really is which men call light, or electricity, or matter, and of which science can reveal, how then, can be discredited the word which pronounces every one of these dependent on God? Intuition or logical reasoning cannot impeach the testimony of holy scripture as to the relation of God to the universe. We who reverence the Bible believe that all it teaches on this subject is in profound agreement with the best results of philosophical inquiry. We believe that the order of events in the natural world is sustained by God, and that the life we live would cease forever without his presence. We ought to think of him as revealed by the Bible, as a being, crystallization, the miracle of growth, the orderly sweep of the planets, the faithful return of the seasons and the onward march of the human race. It would be well for us to perceive the finger of God in everything good, and to bear in mind that all our weariness and pain, shame and remorse are ordered for our moral discipline and conducive to our spiritual health.

All things are unto God. The meaning of this expression "unto him" is not that all things are to be finally lost and absorbed in the divine being. It may be safely affirmed that the end of our existence is not absorption of personality in God. We shall be in his power, holiness and love, but we shall be still ourselves, personally conscious, active and blessed. But if our separate personality is not to be lost in the infinite one, it is plain from the text that in some other way we must be the goal and object of our existence. And that way is pointed out with great clearness by Paul, who said: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." We must live in such a manner that his life shall be reflected in ours, that his character shall reappear, at least faintly, in ours, that his holiness and love shall be recognized and declared by us. And so in requiring us to glorify himself, God simply requires us to do what is absolutely right and at the same time faithful to our permanent welfare.

In his final words to the graduating class, the speaker said: Rest in the assurance that God is worthy of your support and devotion. It is intensely rational to love and cherish God with all your heart. To live for his glory is absolutely right; living for any other end is sinful. God is the centre as well as the source of the world. Let his love and the sacred authority of his law draw you toward him. Daniel Webster said that "religion is the tie connecting man with his Creator, and holding him to the throne." A man who has no sense of religion is living in the world without God.

The man who cleaves to God lives in hope of the future. The Bible presents to us an infinite being with character, purpose and love; a God who is our father, our helper and our saviour. You cannot recall a disposition more sweet, resigned and holy than that of Jesus Christ, who came on earth to perform his Father's will. To glorify him is to glorify the Father also. He came to minister, to seek and save, pursuing a rough and toilsome path, yet leading to the cross. Your efforts will be directed toward the same end. You should observe the effect of the teachings of Jesus Christ, the tenderness of his appeals. I affirm, added the speaker, that your usefulness in the ministry will be certain if you possess the purpose and temper of Jesus Christ. Of God and through him and unto him are all things, to whom be glory forever.

EMERGENCY NOTES.

WHAT TO DO IN TIME OF DANGER.

I. Keep Cool. The interest awakened in this subject by the formation of the Emergency Society in our city, will no doubt greatly increase as their plans are developed, and as instruction is given here and there by their corps of teachers and lecturers. The time must come when people will no longer be a hindrance to each other, but a help in a time of danger. As it is now, very few know what to do when an ordinary accident happens, and as a result there is a great deal of suffering that might, under other circumstances, have been prevented. When some very great emergency arises, it is safe to assume that nine-tenths of those who are present will lose their heads, and make matters much worse by their foolish terror and still more foolish actions.

We find the following expressive words in Dr. Hovey's book—"Fill the doctor comes." "Presence of mind, self-control and the power of keeping silent when it is best to do so, are the first things. Of all the miserable hindering nuisances, there is none worse than persons who, just at the moment when services are most required, begin to scream, run wildly about, put themselves in every one's way, hinder other people, are not able to give a sensible answer, or perhaps faint or go into hysterics."

The first lesson which the Emergency society always teaches is—Keep cool. Do not let your excitement run away with you. Think quickly but quietly what is best to be done, but by no means do any foolish or noisy thing in your haste.

II. Self Control. All people do not have the same strength of nerve, and consequently are not able to bear pain alike, but there is no doubt that many can control themselves better than they do. It is really wonderful what can be done when one makes up his mind to do it, and it is well for a person who gets hurt to resolve to make just as little fuss about it as possible, for his own sake and for the sake of others. Injured people, however, are not the only noisy ones. Some bystander, or relative, is just as apt to be over demonstrative at such a time and thus add to the distress of the patient. People think they must always show sympathy by words, but their silence is often more grateful. If they control themselves they are more apt to help the injured bear his sufferings than if they are loud in their demonstrations.

A very little common sense goes a great way towards making the best of an accident and of helping each other safely through the danger. One of the most obvious dictates of common sense is the promotion of self-control. Lose control of yourself, and you do not know whether you are the patient or the bystander. Things are rarely as bad as they might be, and they can always be made better than they are. To make them better, however, requires coolness and courage, and a determination not to give way, come what will.

III. The Sight of Blood. There are few things more terrifying to ordinary people than the sight of blood resulting from an injury, and the tendency is to regard the accident as much worse than it really is. This is quite natural, for the sight of blood usually suggests suffering and perhaps death.

We must learn that an injured person can lose a great deal of blood without any special permanent harm, and that in most cases the producing cause will appear upon examination, much slighter than our fears led us to regard it at first. "Many a mother," says a physician, "has had a terrible fright by a child's running in with its clothes, blood and face all smeared with blood. It is astonishing what a mass a child will manage to make with a spoonful or two of blood. You will find, most cold water, when you have washed it with cold water that the amount of injury is a mere trifle."

There are some forms of bleeding which are quite beneficial, unless they go too far, in the preventing of something really more serious, because they relieve the local oppression. Do not conclude, then, that all is up if you see blood. Almost all forms of bleeding can be checked in great measure by simple means until the doctor arrives. Pressure above the wound is the one ready thing that can be resorted to, and a few simple lessons in an emergency course will show any one just where to apply the pressure most effectively.

The rule given by good authority is, apply pressure above the wound, and send for skilled assistance.

A Chance to Make Money.

Mr. Editor: I bought one of Griffiths machines for plating with gold, silver or nickel, and it works to perfection. No sooner did people hear of it than I had more spoons, buttons, forks and jewelry than I could plate in a month. The first week I cleared $31.30, the first month $167.85 and I think by July first I will have $1000 cash and give my farm considerable attention too. My daughter made $27.40 in four days. Any person can get one of these machines by sending $3 to W. Griffith & Co., Zanesville, O., or you can learn to use the machine in one hour. As this is my first lucky streak, I give my experience, hoping others may be benefited as much as I have been. Yours truly, M. O. MOREHEAD.

Newtonville Woman's Guild.

At the annual meeting held at Mrs. G. T. Hill's on Walnut street, Tuesday afternoon, Miss King of Boston spoke to the ladies of the Newtonville Woman's Guild on the Flower Mission, of its service, its growth, and its practical working. The method of receiving, arranging and packing of the distribution at the City Hospital, the Old Ladies' Home, in workrooms, among the sick and old, at Kindergarten school, among children to whom flowers are indeed favors, and where with daisies alone one time, and pansies, perhaps, another, they are taught simple lessons in botany. At the Italian Mission a pitiful question, "Do posies grow on trees," showed the restricted life of the little questioner.

Verily "a little faded flower" is acceptable to the poor-children of certain sections of our great city of Boston, and when they find even the grass being distributed, they stretch out eager hands for them.

Tuesdays and Fridays of each week all through the summer, the Flower mission, is busy each day; from 500 to 2,000 bouquets find their way to weary hearts, and in each cluster are some bright and some sweet flowers that being a rule in combination, so that the soul shall be reached by different avenues, losing no chance in the appeal, and the clusters are of equal size, that no favoritism may even seem to be shown. Sometimes the donor is able to combine with the flowers, some fruit, or a glass of iced tea, or possibly some vegetables, that tempt the appetite; then the consumptive, or paralytic it may be, who is so cheered by the bright face and kind word of the lady who brings it, is made doubly glad, and comes to believe more and more in angel ministrations through human messengers.

The Christian Temperance Union send flowers to the jail, attempting even to cheer the heart of the criminal, and who knows what these blossoms may accomplish, on their silent, sweet mission?

The ladies of the Guild have divided the work for the summer in this way, and will gratefully receive any flowers or delicacies that may be sent on the mornings of Tuesday and Friday of each week, as soon after 9 o'clock as convenient to donors, at the railway station, Newtonville. Ladies from the Methodist church take charge during May, from the New church during June, from the Universalist church during July, and quite possibly from the Congregational church for August and September—certainly some one will be there to receive, the entire season.

The children have always been very generous and helpful, and their contributions are especially solicited by friends of the Mission. The following is the list of officers chosen for the coming year: President of the Guild, Mrs. G. T. Hill; vice-president, Mrs. H. H. Carter, Mrs. A. Wellington, Mrs. D. S. Simpson, Mrs. A. Sherman; recording secretary, Mrs. W. L. Chaloner; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. L. Chaloner; treasurer, Mrs. G. P. Cooke; auditor, Mrs. J. H. Wiley; directors, Mrs. G. F. Kimball and Mrs. C. S. Crain; chairman of educational committee, Mrs. John Martin; chairman of charitable committee, Mrs. J. N. Allen; chairman of industrial committee, Mrs. G. B. Macomber; chairman of hospital committee, Mrs. E. L. Thayer; secretary, Mrs. C. F. West, Mrs. A. T. Sylvester.

At the closing meeting for the season, Tuesday afternoon, at Mrs. Geo. Hill's, the Newtonville Woman's Guild accepted the following resolutions on the death of Mrs. John L. Roberts, a former president of that association and an ever active and loving worker: Whereas, the gracious presence of a beloved member of this society, Mrs. Mary E. Roberts, has been withdrawn from earthly scenes, it is fitting that we should express our warm appreciation of her life and character, therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Mrs. Roberts, the Guild has sustained the loss of an officer of pre-eminent social endowments, of a character both sweet and firm, and of a long and useful life, and that we should bear a lasting influence and example among us. During the year of her presidency of the Guild, her earnest desire to do the utmost of which she felt herself capable, and her sacrifice of time and money to the purpose, helped to carry the Guild over a season of great depression, and for this, as well as for her unvarying friendliness to every member with whom she came in contact, it should be the care of the Guild ever to keep her memory green.

M. R. MARTIN, Committee on Resolutions.

Grandma—There is nothing like presence of mind, my dear. Once when I was left alone in the house, I discovered that there was a burglar under the bed. Now, I didn't scream. I just sat down at the piano and played, until papa and brother came home—nearly three hours. Dot—And did they pull him out, grandma? Grandma—They pulled him out, but he was dead.—Terre Haute Express.

A Cure for Constipation and Sick-Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50 cents a package.

Dyspepsia causes depraved blood, which, in time, affects every organ and function of the body. As a remedy for these troubles, nothing can approach Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It vitalizes the blood, strengthens the stomach, and corrects all disorders of the liver and kidneys.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

The most obstinate cases of catarrh are cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, the only agreeable remedy. It is not a liquid or snuff, is easily applied to the nostrils. For cold in the head it is magical. It gives relief at once. Price 50c.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders or syringes because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multi-ude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

Mrs. X.—"What has become of that Mr. Villiers we used to hear so much of in society?" Mrs. Y. (incomprehensibly)—"Oh, he's married and in love with his wife."—The Bostonian.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination of proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other."

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GORF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The plague of lamps is the breaking of chimneys; but that is unnecessary—there are chimneys that do not break.

They are made of tough glass, which costs more than common glass, but not so much more as to make it impossible to sell them at the usual retail price; so the dealer gets less profit on them.

The dealer wants to know where his future chimney trade is to come from, if he sells chimneys that last forever. He secures the "good will" and good profits, as well. "Pearl-top" is the chimney; Macbeth & Co., Pittsburgh, the makers.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

A LARGE AMOUNT OF ROUTINE BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

The board of Aldermen met Monday evening, Mayor Burr presiding, and Aldermen Hamblen, Johnson, Pettie, Fenno, Coffin and Harbach present.

Edward Joyal was appointed to No. 4 hose to fill a vacancy.

Henry E. Cobb was appointed an auctioneer.

An invitation was received from Chas. Ward Post, to participate in the exercises of Memorial Day, and the invitation was accepted and $135 was appropriated to pay the expenses of the city council.

When the order passed in the Common Council came up, remunerating the citizens of Lower Falls to the amount of $75, for the money they contributed to the temporary bridge during the construction of the new bridge over Washington street, there was a good deal of discussion, and it was stated that the town of Wellesley had passed an order, for a similar amount.

Alderman Harbach opposed the order as the citizens of Lower Falls had come and offered to pay the balance of the cost, if the city would give $150, and Wellesley a similar amount. They now want the city to reimburse them, and he did not favor such a scheme. It was the principle of the thing he objected to.

Alderman Johnson said that if the citizens had agreed to pay the balance, they should stand by their agreement, and the order failed to pass by a vote of 4 to 1.

The order in regard to the buildings for contagious diseases at the Cottage Hospital was passed in concurrence.

Geo. A. Walton petitioned for concrete cross walk in front of his new block on Chestnut street.

Alderman Johnson presented the petition of J. H. McAdams for license to put in a 6 horse power boiler and engine on Glen avenue, Newton Centre, to be used in his carpet cleaning establishment, and he was granted a hearing for Monday evening, June 2nd, at 8 o'clock.

A. H. Roffe asked for license to put in a 20 horse power boiler and engine on Cypress street, Newton Centre, for use in a grain elevator, and a hearing was granted for Monday, June 2nd, at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Brigham asked for concrete walk on Bowdoin and Lincoln streets; L. A. White for concrete walk on Pleasant street; both referred.

James Armstrong and Patrick Timney were granted junk licenses.

Geo. W. Lamson of the Central House, Newton, was granted an innkeepers' license and a license to keep a pool table. L. Lyford gave notice of intention to build house 24 by 28, with ell 14 by 18, on Court street; Simon Procter, house 27 by 40 with ell 13 by 27 on Eliot street; M. A. Wellington, house 35 by 36 on Washington street; John O'Brien, house 24 by 30 on Crafts street.

Daniel Hartley was granted permit to build a stable 13 by 18 feet on Eliot street.

An order was passed that $171.06, income from the Kenrick fund, be distributed in accordance with the wishes of the donor.

On motion of Alderman Fenno an order was passed for the location of one street lamp on Central street, Ward 4, and one on Floral place, Ward 5.

On motion of Alderman Harbach an order was passed for a crosswalk on Vernon street, from Baldwin street; across Washington street at corner of both grounds; and on Central, Judkins and Trowbridge streets.

An order was passed for concrete walk with edgestones on Richardson street, and without edgestones on Norwood avenue and Trowbridge street; on Tremont street; on Erie avenue and Bowdoin streets.

On motion of Alderman Johnson, $46.20 was appropriated to pay the expenses of the city during June.

On motion of Alderman Harbach, 312 feet of 6 inch water main was ordered laid on Crafts street, at an expense of $255.

On motion of Alderman Harbach the highway committee was directed to consider the expediency of constructing a stable for the use of the highway department.

Alderman Harbach presented an order, appropriating $1200 to be charged to this year's tax levy, for the construction of a house on Murray street, for the use of a city employee in charge of the city's property there. He said that now the city has to pay a watchman $14 a week to look after the property, but if the house was occupied by a man in a position where there would be no need of a watchman. Now a man is needed, especially on Sunday, when there are a large number of visitors. He had a man all ready to occupy it and pay rent, and the city would make six per cent. on the investment and save the cost of the watchman besides; the order was passed.

An amendment to the ordinances was presented and referred to the committee on ordinances, providing that no person should discharge firearms on the streets of the city or on city property, or on private grounds without the consent of the owner.

On motion of Alderman Fenno, the committee on fuel was authorized to advertise for bids for 2,000 tons of coal for use in city buildings and empowered to contract for same.

WIDENING WASHINGTON STREET.

On motion of Alderman Coffin the order appropriating $2,500 for widening of Washington street, from Jewett street to Walnut Park, was taken from the table. He stated that the street had been blocked for two weeks, as both the street and the sidewalk must be raised, and the fence ought to be set back and the street widened.

Alderman Johnson said he drove past the place after church on Sunday, and the street there was no narrower than at other parts, especially between that point and Adams street. The chairman of the highway committee said he could not spare a dollar for the work, as all the money on hand was appropriated. He did not know why the board should be called on every year for more money for the highway committee. There was always some excuse, either a freshet, or heavy rains, or some widening project. Other committees took pride in living within their appropriations, and leaving a little balance at the end of the year, and he thought their example should be commended to the highway committee. He called on City Engineer Noyes for information about the width of the street.

Mr. Noyes said the street was full as narrow at points between this place and

Adams street, but was not so dangerous, owing to the sloping character at the point in question.

Alderman Coffin said the work was necessary because the street was so low at this point, and it had to be so to be properly drained. It had always been a dangerous spot.

Alderman Johnson asked if any one had ever been hurt near there.

Alderman Coffin said it was a wonder accidents had not happened. The cost of raising the street and the work would be almost as great as if the street was widened.

Alderman Fenno said another dangerous point was at the sharp curve by Lowell street, where an electric car, if they were ever run, could not be seen until they were right on a team. The widening of Washington street was sure to come and he thought it would be better to make one job of it, make a comprehensive plan of the whole street, and provide for it by a loan. It might cost $75,000 or $100,000, but it would have to be done some day.

Alderman Pettie said that coming from the south side of the city he was disposed to let the members from the north side fight it out, but there was no question that the street was too narrow, and that those who laid it out never anticipated so much travel over it. In the next half dozen years the street would have to be widened, as it was not to be expected that the wealthy tax payers of Newton would be satisfied to allow their wives and children to run the risk of driving on such a narrow and frequented a thoroughfare. He was always ready to vote for making streets large enough to be safe, and as for Washington street he thought it ought to be widened even if the street cars never ran over it, and the best way would be to fix on some definite plan and do a little every year, and put it on the taxes.

Alderman Coffin said it would cost the city within three or four hundred dollars to do the work without widening as it would to buy land of Mr. Soule and widen it.

Alderman Johnson said he did not object to the street being widened, but he did object to taking one small portion and widening that without any reference to the other parts that needed widening. He thought this should be a warning to the board against granting franchises to street railways in narrow streets that were none too wide for the ordinary traffic. He never saw a street that was dangerous on account of its width without a street railway, and he thought the board should leave the place in question till it got some comprehensive plan of widening the whole street.

Alderman Fenno said he was not opposed to widening any street, but it was best to make a plan before committing the city to anything.

Alderman Hamblen asked what would be the cost of widening.

Alderman Coffin said the land needed would cost $800, and without the land it would cost $2,000.

Alderman Harbach said there would be no danger at this spot if it were not for the street railway, but the street was so sloping that something must be done. The vote was then taken, and as Messrs. Johnson and Fenno voted no, the order failed of a two-thirds vote and was defeated.

Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years standing; it was cut out twice by what they call eminent surgeons at intervals of six years, after being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not to delay but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart.

The Tariff is a Humbug.

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms and communications of every kind whether coming from Tariff Reformers, Free Traders, or High Protectionists. CAUSES OF DECLINE OF AMERICAN SHIPPING.

FIRST—OUR TARIFF ON IRON.

Although the use of iron was not new in naval construction, it began to be properly appreciated about 1855, and the introduction of steam, which had been slowly improved in its methods and in its economies, hastened the adoption of steel and iron in construction, as it was not possible to get from wood the necessary stability and strength to resist the constant jar and thrust of the machinery. A wooden sailing vessel would last about fourteen years—a wooden steamer about twelve years, whereas an iron sailing vessel was practically indestructible, and some of the earliest iron steamers are still in use.

The moment wood was shown to be less desirable than iron, America lost the great advantage which she had had of cheap material, for up to 1855 we had been able to import our hemp, and even iron, used in the construction of our wooden vessels, and pay our seamen better wages, and still compete. We could not produce the iron as cheaply as Great Britain, and our duty on that material prevented its importation. Before the Revolution, we had supplied England with from 15 to 20 per cent of the iron she used. By the use of coke instead of charcoal and by the invention of rolling iron in 1783, iron was produced much more easily and cheaply in England, and its production was greatly stimulated. The United States continued the manufacture of iron without any change from the old methods: only hammered iron was produced, and rolled bar was not made in this country. Instead of adopting the new methods of making bar-iron—by rolling—our iron manufacturers tried to save their old plants and keep progress out of this country till they had worn them out—and did so for a generation, from 1816 on, by shutting out rolled bar. To protect the domestic manufacture of iron against the British competition, a duty of $1.50 a hundred-weight was imposed by the tariff of 1816 on rolled bar, while hammered bar-iron only paid a duty of 45 cents a hundred-weight; and in 1828 the duty on rolled iron was equivalent to 100 per cent of the value.

It was not, therefore, the war with the South—although that greatly hastened the result—but it was our tariff, together with that legislation which prevented Americans from buying ships from foreigners and registering them here, which destroyed our merchant marine.

In 1870 a table was prepared by the chief of the tonnage division of the Treasury Department showing that the duties on the material for a 1000 ton iron ship amounted to $21,000, or $21 a ton.

Second—Our Absurd Navigation Laws.

WE GIVE A FEW SECTIONS OF OUR ABSURD NAVIGATION LAWS.

Sec. 4132. Vessels built within the United States, and belonging wholly to citizens thereof, and vessels which may be captured in war by citizens of the United States, and lawfully condemned as prize, or which may be adjudged to be forfeited for a breach of the laws of the United States, being wholly owned by citizens, and no others, may be registered as directed in this Title.

Sec. 4133. No vessel shall be entitled to be registered, or, if registered, to the benefits of registry, if owned in whole or in part, by any citizen of the United States who usually resides in a foreign country, during the continuance of such residence, unless such citizen be a consul of the United States, or an agent for and a partner in some house of trade or copartnership, consisting of citizens of the United States actually carrying on trade within the United States.

Sec. 4134. No vessel shall be entitled to be registered as a vessel of the United States, or, if registered, to the benefits of registry, if owned in whole or in part by any person naturalized in the United States, and residing for more than one year in the country from which he originated, or for more than two years in any foreign country, unless such person be a citizen of the United States, or other public agent of the United States. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prevent the registering anew of any vessel before registered, in case of a sale thereof in good faith to any citizen resident in the United States; but satisfactory proof of the citizenship of the person on whose account a vessel may be purchased shall be exhibited to the collector, before a new register shall be granted for such vessel.

Sec. 4135. No vessel which has been recorded or registered as an American vessel of the United States, pursuant to law, and which was licensed or otherwise authorized to sail under a foreign flag, and to have the protection of any foreign government during the existence of the rebellion, shall be deemed or registered as a vessel of the United States, or shall have the rights and privileges of vessels of the United States, except under provisions of law especially authorizing such registry.

Sec. 4136. The Secretary of the Treasury may issue a register or enrollment for any vessel built in a foreign country, whenever such vessel shall be wrecked in the United States, and shall be purchased and repaired by a citizen of the United States, if it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the repairs put up on such vessel are equal to three fourths of the cost of the vessel when so repaired.

Sec. 4165. No vessel which is registered, pursuant to any law of the United States, and which is seized or captured and condemned, under the authority of any foreign power, or which by sale becomes the property of a foreigner, shall be entitled or capable of receiving a new register, notwithstanding such vessel should afterwards become American property; but all such vessels shall be taken and considered, to all intent and purposes, as foreign vessels. Nothing in this section shall extend to or be construed to affect the person owning any vessel at the time of the seizure or capture of the same, or his executor or administrator, in case he regains a property in such vessel, so condemned, by purchase or otherwise, from claiming and receiving a new register for the same, as he otherwise might have done.

Sec. 4330. No license or enrollment and license, nor renewal of either, shall hereafter be issued to any vessel until the collector to whom the application is made for the same is satisfied, from the oath of the owner or master, that all equipments and repairs made in a foreign port within the year immediately preceding such application have been duly accounted for, and the duties accruing thereon duly paid; and if such owner or master shall refuse to take such oath, or take it falsely, the vessel shall be seized and forfeited.

These laws might well be entitled "claws to tear American citizens from going into the shipping business." They were passed to "protect" American ship-building. We can see with what result—they have "protected" it out of existence.

THE REMEDY.

Repeal the navigation laws. Permit American citizens to buy their ships in the cheapest market. Do not rely on subsidies and bounties for building up shipping. Admit free of duty the raw materials used by our manufacturers and ship-builders. Adopt a reasonable system of State taxation of shipping. Grant these bounties to the ship-owning interest, and it will revive and again become prosperous, and the ship-building trade will partake of this prosperity.

The Moral Question.

Mr. Blaine sneers at Mr. Gladstone for declaring that protection is immoral. Indeed! Can Mr. Blaine see no immorality in a law that taxes a poor widow a higher price for her clothing and that of her children, for her bedding, her coal, her dishes, and furniture—for nearly everything she and they need—not for the use of the Government, but to add to the prosperity of those who produce such articles? If Mr. Blaine can see no immorality in that, I assure him that there are millions of his countrymen whose consciences are keener than his own. John Bright could see it clearly when he held up the corn laws of England (no less justifiable than our clothing laws) as a "crime of the deepest dye."

Stubborn Facts.

It is hard for the extreme protectionist to get over the prosperity of the low tariff of 1846. This prosperity was so general and satisfactory that all talk of an increase of tariff rates ceased. The country for the first time since 1816 was at peace on the vexed question. Nay, in 1857 the representatives of the manufacturing interests of New England joined hands with the planters of the South to cut the rates of duty still lower. By a combination of old Whigs, Republicans, Know-Nothings and Democrats, the bill was passed through both houses of Congress by great majorities. The best evidence that a law is a good law is that for many years it gives to every section of the Union, and to every interest and class of men, entire satisfaction. That in the glory of the law of 1846, as it was the glory of the low tariff of 1789, which gave such universal satisfaction for twenty-three years, that when it was necessary to raise the duties on the breaking out of the war of 1812, Congress took care to provide that on the restoration of peace the old duties should be restored.

But how has it been under every protective law we have ever had? The period of their existence has always been marked by exhibitions of selfishness, exhibitions of greedy and disgusting avarice. The halls of Congress have been thronged, at nearly every session, with impudent, mendacious beggars for Government interference in favor of private interests. As the result of the continuance of this system through a long series of years, and after hundreds of large and undeserved fortunes have been created by Government favoritism, we see the recipients of the favor of the Government exhausting human wit and ingenuity, by the machinery of "combination," "understanding," "pools," and "Trusts," in sucking the last possible drop of blood from the people whom the Tariff Law has placed at their mercy. Of course a protective tariff law always has produced and always will produce debate, contention, dispute, and bitter controversy. The whole theory of protection is founded on the desire to take one man's money and give it to another who has not earned it. Of course, there can be no peace, no order, no content under such a law, because every well-informed, conscientious man feels and knows that it is an intolerable outrage. It is idle to expect, in a free country, millions of intelligent men to submit to this legalized robbery (Mr. Gladstone gives it its right name,) without violent outcry and fierce resistance.

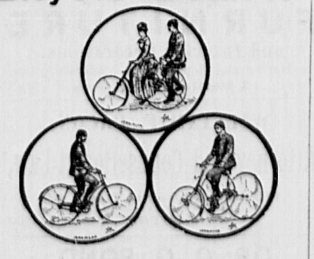

The safest and surest investments are in land. An opportunity is offered by the Sioux City Valley Land Co. to invest in that rapidly growing city, where values are constantly advancing from the legitimate growth and development of its manufacturing interests. Fairbank & Co., 33 Equitable Building, Boston, will cheerfully mail facts of interest to any address.

We heartily recommend the Rock Island Excursions to our readers going west. They run through Pullman Tourist Cars from Boston every two weeks, use Union Depot, and are personally conducted, and at very low rates. Call on your Western Ticket Agent, and write E. W. Thompson, E. P. A., 286 Washington Street, Boston.

Pain and dread attend the use of most catarrh remedies. Liquids and snuffs are unpleasant as well as dangerous. Ely's Cream Balm is safe, pleasant, easily applied to the nostrils, and a sure cure. It cleanses the nasal passages and heals the inflamed membrane, giving relief at once. Price 50c.

The entering wedge of a complaint that may prove fatal is often a slight cold, which a dose or two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. It would be well, therefore, to keep this remedy within reach at all times.

Lasell Notes.

On Thursday, May 15, a party of Lasell pupils attended the Strauss Concert in Boston.

Friday evening, Mr. George Riddle gave a reading, with music from the Harvard Guitars and Mandolin Club. The selections were mainly from Shakespeare and Dickens, but some of the liveliest were: "The Boat Race," "Auntie Dolet's Visit," and "Satire upon some well known types of the Four Hundred in New York and other leading cities." After the entertainment the Lasell Club, under whose auspices it was given, held a brief reception for the Harvard gentlemen, who had so kindly entertained by their music.

Sunday afternoon a meeting of the missionary society was held, and a long and interesting letter from a former member, Miss Barnum, now a missionary in Harpoot, Turkey, was read. An election of officers took place.

Monday evening the seminary gave the use of the gymnasium and a piano to some pupils of the Perkins Institution for the Blind in South Boston. It was a benefit concert for Mr. John F. Morrison, both vocal and instrumental, the instruments being several kinds. The tickets were 50 cents and the house well filled. At the close the performers were invited to the dining room for refreshments before leaving.

A reception was held by the Lasell Battalion for the Chas. Ward Post 62, G. A. R., S. S. Whitney commander, Wednesday evening, May 21, receivers and guests in uniform; collation served at nine.

Wednesday evening Lasell Battalion received Post 62, G. A. R., in the gymnasium, all being in uniform, many of the men wearing the badges which the Lasell Battalion bestowed upon them on Decoration Day a year ago. A brief time was spent in getting acquainted, the introductions being made. The number of men was about eighty. Presently the visitors were conducted to seats on an elevated platform, and the young women drilled in companies before them. Capt. Fox, the drill master, was present but left the management to the regular officers. The young women then took the places on the platform and the men in turn drilled before them making a lively and amusing "normal" of it. Then some how the girl soldiers were drawn into line in a large circle and the men in an inner line. When the latter obeyed the order "right about face," each man found himself opposite a girl, and then began the presentation to each fair vis-a-vis of a pretty colored miniature cushion with a cord to hang it upon the button of the blouse. It was an ingenious and pleasant surprise. Sergeant Ryan introduced him as one of the 250 men who were left of the fated 609 at the Custer Indian Massacre. And Surgeon Sears who served in the Mexican war as well as the Rebellion. Each girl escorted a soldier to the banquet in the dining hall, where a variety of substantial meats, salads, rolls, coffee, etc., were followed by ices and cake. Commander Whitney opened the after dinner speech making and was followed by Mr. G. M. Fiske of Auburndale, who referred to the girls' cause from all sections had kindly words for those who were the gray as well as those of the blue. Post Commander Lucas followed with a recitation of Friar Philip, an old poem of his school days. John Q. A. Bird was very merry and facetious over the women soldiers, who were protecting the country. He gave a fine selection from Hawthorne. Rev. J. B. Gould of Newton, was introduced by Commander Whitney as a friend of Grant. He was very witty in personalities. Mr. Stiles called for a vote of thanks and cheers for the girls. Mr. Bragdon, etc., etc. One of the young women called for a vote of thanks to the gentlemen, their guests. John Brown's Body was sung and the festivities closed with "America," sung by all. It was an unusually successful and happy occasion.

Its remarkable sale has been entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. LAWTON'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

BLOOD, LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

This great constitutional remedy has been on the European market for over twenty years, is superior to all others, and proven the greatest Blood Purifier and System Renovator ever compounded by medical skill. Nothing can equal it for putting the vital portions of the body in condition. If your liver is affected do you stop to think how, or what your liver is? The liver is subject to more or less little pains or aches. This organ is the sponge of the body and is continually soaked full of blood rich in poisons. Its purpose is the secretion of certain digestive and cathartic elements known as bile, and the transformation of those products of digestion which are absorbed into the blood and carried into the liver before they enter the general circulation and assist in nourishing the body. Inactivity, then, produces numerous diseases. So by using Lawton's Vegetable Compound your liver will be free from all disease. It is also absolutely necessary to know what and where are your kidneys. There are two kidneys, one on each side of the backbone. They are the only organs that purify the blood of the uric acid waste in the system. Every drop of blood courses through a great many times a day, just as through the heart. The waste matter which they should take away contains deadly poison which, if retained, causes fatal results. Sixty-five gallons of blood per hour, in the average man, passes through the kidneys, and to purify it they must be in perfect health. The kidneys are filled with many thousand hair-like tubes. These tubes run into every part of the kidney, and as the blood flows through that organ, the urine passes into these tubes, and is drained into the bladder. If these little tubes are diseased, and the uric acid is not removed, and instead of this poison coming through the blood or the albumen, which is really the life of the blood, comes through these walls and escapes with the urine; in other words the nerve action is entirely wrong, and instead of taking the poison out of the blood the life of the blood is taken out and the poison remains.

RE NEWTON TRANSCRIPT HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

THE PUBLIC WORKS BILL.

The legislature has finally passed the bill to enable Newton to establish a board of public works, with an amendment that it must be submitted to the citizens at the next State election for approval. The funny thing about it is that the city charter already gives full power to the City Council to establish a board of public works, and the great and general court has labored for some months over the problem of giving the city a power which it already possesses, and has with great gravity prescribed that the citizens may vote upon the question. If the bill is not approved by the popular vote, the City Council will have just the same power that it now possesses, and can establish the board just the same.

This might be taken as a good argument for biennial sessions, as it would save the legislature from doing ridiculous things. Here was an active lobby working against the bill, and finally succeeding in getting in the provision that the bill must be submitted to a popular vote, evidently so ignorant of the provisions of the city charter that they did not know that the whole reason the bill was asked for was that the terms of the members of the board might be limited, instead of being appointed as they must be by the charter, during good behavior. It is not necessary of course to go into the motives which governed the opponents of the bill, who sought to defeat the measure by providing that it must be submitted to a popular vote. They have had their labor for their pains, and if the Mayor and City Council were so inclined they could go ahead and appoint a board at once.

If the bill should be approved by the popular vote, it would still probably be optional whether to appoint the board under the provisions of the charter, or under the provisions of the bill, as none of the rights under the charter are repealed. It would evidently be an excellent idea for people outside of the City Council to study up the city charter, and become familiar with its provisions; it is an interesting document, and copies can be obtained at City Hall, or if the edition is exhausted the GRAPHIC office would print an extra supply at the same rates it charges for the other city printing.

WIDENING WASHINGTON STREET.

This question came up again before the board of aldermen, Monday night, and was discussed at some length. The opinion was unanimous that the street should be widened, and the wisest plan seems to be to have some comprehensive plan before any steps are taken, such as the proposed widening from Jewett street to Walnut Park, so that when any work is once done it will not have to be done over. The cost of widening the street from Centre street in Newton to the railroad crossing in West Newton would be considerable, but it would be offset by the benefit to the whole city, and also to the abutters. The work need not all be done at once, but a part could be done every year, and the cheaper portions, where the street is bordered by unoccupied lands, could be attended to first. The part between Jewett street and Walnut Park is certainly in need of attention at once, but so is the portion in front of the Bellevue street bridge, where the street is very narrow, and should be extended on one side or the other, but before doing anything it would be the wisest plan to decide on the general plan of work to be followed. When the railway begins operations there will be a demand for widening which will have to be listened to, and even without the railway the street is too narrow for the main thoroughfare of a populous city, where driving is so universal as it is here.

NEW ENGLAND appears to be catching it all round in Congress this year. Not only are its interests sacrificed in tariff matters, but needed repairs at the navy yards at Portsmouth and Charlestown are left out of the naval appropriation bill. If either yard were in a close state, things might be different, and it is rather unkindly asked why New England should take the trouble to send representatives to Congress at all, seeing that they do nothing at all for their section. Here is the little state of Nevada, whose only intent is in its silver mines, and its Senators are so devoted to their "little corner," that they are bull-dozing Congress into passing a "free silver" bill, and threatening to go off and vote with the Democrats if their wishes are not carried out. They do not care for a caucus or anything else that opposes the interests of their state, and consequently they have more influence than all the Senators and Representatives of New England put together. The views of these silver Senators are not to be commended, but their way of looking out for their own interests in the general scramble shows how success can be achieved. It might not be a bad idea for New England to hire some men of this kind to look after her interests at Washington, and have the present members from this section confine themselves simply to post office appointments, supplying farmers with seeds and other like matters.

CONGRESSMAN Candler's protest again increasing the cost of lamp chimneys some 200 or 300 per cent was so unkindly received, that he made the following apology, as given in the Congressional Record:

When I undertook to make amendments to the different sections of this bill I believed that it was my duty as a protectionist and a Republican; I believed that it was better to meet the questions as they arose and have them explained than to make a general speech attacking the bill. One must be impressed with the fact that this committee have shown a great deal of ability and have endeavored to serve the country faithfully in preparing this bill, but I believe it is my duty as a member of this House, if any of my constituents and I think that anything in this bill is to their disadvantage, to call attention to it and seek to have it changed and improved, if possible. But for one I wish no confusion or misunderstanding in regard to my position as a protectionist. I am not only a Republican but a protectionist.

This is interesting as being almost the first time Mr. Candler has put himself on record on the tariff question. As most of his constituents use lamp chimneys, more or less, they are interested in getting them as cheaply as possible, and if he had only had the courage to stand up and refuse to apologize, what a fine campaign cry it would have made "Candler and cheap chimneys." His haste in giving up the cheap lamp chimney issue has prevented this, and perhaps he feels as Mr. Lodge does that "this little corner" of the country has no rights which the rest of the country is at all called on to respect.

CONGRESSMAN BUTTERWORTH is meeting with unexpected commendation from Republican newspapers all over the country, and especially in the Western states. They commend him for standing up for sound Republican doctrine on the tariff, and against Mr. McKinley's plan of making a sale of the tariff duties for political purposes. Mr. Butterworth has already been mentioned as the next presidential candidate, and it is evident that he would have the enthusiastic support of a large number of his party. It is encouraging to find one Republican who has the courage of his convictions and will not be dictated to by a caucus, as to what he shall say or how he shall vote. Mr. Butterworth says that all but 20 of the Republican Congressmen have confessed that they would have taken the same stand that he did, if they had only dared, which is certainly suggestive and gives one a rather uncomplimentary opinion of men who will make such a confession. But even Mr. Butterworth did not dare to vote as he thought.

The latest plan of reaching Newton by the West End Railway is said to be through Tremont street from Oak square, down Park street past Elmwood, and then by a private way and a tunnel under the railroad tracks to Nonantum square. The West End has long been anxious to complete its circuit from Oak square to unite with the Cambridge cars, and as crossing the railroad at grade would not be allowed, this plan appears to be the most feasible one. It would prove of great benefit to Newton if this plan is ever carried out, although it would necessitate the widening of Tremont street and probably of Park street. Possibly the West End Company might be willing to bear a portion of the expense, and certainly no franchise should ever be granted in such a narrow street, to any railway company.

THE Census officials are trying to work what is vulgarly called "the dead-head racket" on the newspapers, calling on them to publish all sorts of long articles and furnish all sorts of statistics, just as if the government were a charitable organization and that the officials selected by Superintendent Porter were not to be depended on. It is sad, if this be true, but Mr. Porter ought to have appointed them on the civil service examination plan, and perhaps then he would have felt more confidence in the probable results of their labors. Judging from our exchanges, the newspapers do not take very kindly to Supt. Porter's plans of getting his work done for nothing when he has paid officials appointed to do it.

THE Milford Journal is still troubled over the tax on wooleens, which it thinks makes the American workman pay more for his coat than this English brother, who has to pay no tax on wool or wooleens. We are sorry that our Milford contemporary shows such signs of falling from the faith. It should remember that it is the foreign wool grower and the foreign wool manufacturer, who pay all the tariff duties, and hence the American workman gets his coat cheaper than his English competitor. If the facts are against this theory, it is so much the worse for the facts, according to such high authority as the Boston Journal.

THE Boston Traveller's campaign against Insurance Commissioner Merrill was a rather interesting one, and gave some excitement to a rather dull season. The fact that Mr. A. T. Sylvester of this city endorsed in some measure the position of the Traveller was sufficient to show Newton people that the Traveller was not without some grounds for its action. If Mr. Merrill has used his position in the Grand Army for his own political advancement, he is certainly deserving of censure, but Governor Brackett decided that he could do nothing else than to reappoint him.

DR. NORVIN GREEN, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, does not think very highly of Postmaster General Wanamaker's scheme for a postal telegraph, which is hardly surprising. He also says that it would ruin telegraph companies to reduce their rates, but as the Western Union, for instance, has to pay dividends on something like 75 per cent of water in its stock, the public would hardly object to any kind of a squeezing process, as far as this company is concerned.

CONGRESSMAN BUTTERWORTH says it will cost the nation from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually to establish the tin plate industry here. All this for the benefit of a few men with political influence, who own some undeveloped tin mines in the far West, and for a tin plate manufacturer from Wales, who proposes to build a mill at Pittsburg, in the hope to make a fortune equal to that of Mr. Carnegie. It would be cheaper for the country to buy up the tin mines, give the Welshman a million dollar pension, and put tin plate on the free list.

THE action of the legislature in defeating the bill requiring railroads to sell their new stock at auction, a perfectly just measure, is another instance of the influence of great railroad corporations over our general court. Mr. Gilman voted for the bill, but then Mr. Gilman does not ride on a free pass, and so feels able to vote as the best interests of the people and the state demand. If the constituents of a large number of the present members are watching their votes with any degree of care, there will be fewer reelections than usual this fall.

THE legislature has passed the act authorizing the City of Newton to make an additional Water Loan, to an amount not exceeding $500,000 in addition to the amounts heretofore authorized, under the same condition as previous loans, provided that the whole amount shall not exceed two million dollars. The act will go into effect when accepted by a two-thirds vote of each branch of the city council.

WITH Gen. Draper married to a daughter of a prominent Confederate general of Kentucky, he would hardly make Southern election outrages the issue of his campaign, if he is ever nominated for Congress from this district. By going to Europe on a three months wedding tour he alleviates the anxiety of several aspiring candidates.

WHAT does Senator Dawes mean when he says that he hopes he will not be asked either to promote or to oppose the McKinley bill? Does he want to dodge the issue, or is it merely a diplomatic way of saying that he does not approve of the bill?

BOSTON has a new illustrated paper, after the style of Life, and called the Bostonian. It is for sale at all the news-dealers, and some of its features are advertised in another column.

MISS May Ture—"Are you going to give the census-taker your real age when he comes round Fay?" Miss Fay Dedmore—"I suppose I will have to. There is a penalty for making false statements, I understand." Miss M. T.—"I am so glad the census-takers are men!" Miss F. D.—"Because they say men can keep a secret?"—Boston Herald.

Babyland for May, published by D. Lothrop & Co., contains a treasure that will sweeten many a bed-time hour, in "The cat's lament," a poem of two pages. Beside this are surprises in "Polly's Dolly," "Bun and his wonder ball," and the funny party that "Polly Pry," the Toddlekins parrot, had. All these are of the most delightful character.

New governess (impressively)—Oh Tommy, you've made a blot. Now when I was a little girl and made a blot on my copy-book I used to cry. Tommy (earnestly)—What? really? New governess—Yes, really cry. Tommy—What a little duffer you must have been.—The Jester.

Indignant father—Hadm't you done anything but laugh? Boy—No, sir. And the teacher whipped you for that? The sounder! I'll teach him.—"Yes, and he whipped me just as hard! He's a great big man." (Not quite so indignant)—"H'm! You mustn't laugh in school, Johnny, it's against the rules."—Chicago Tribune.

Still Hoping. Miss Heavyroxx—"No, John, I cannot listen to your love. Farewell forever." John—"Might I ask one question?" Yes. "Is this a simon-pure farewell or one of the Patti brand?"—Harper's Bazar.

An Old Saying Newly Said. Miss Kewt who wants to bring him to the point—"I think some old bachelors are horrid." Mr. Bachelor—"What about present company?" Miss Kewt—"Present company always accepted."—Judge.

"Sir!" he said to the proprietor of a dry goods store, I have called to notify you not to trust my wife on my account, as she—"Don't worry, sir, it has been ten years since you had any credit at this store!"—Detroit Free Press.

"I suppose you are ready to substantiate any statement your paper makes?" said an angry-looking caller to the editor. "Oh, yes; we have the compositors prove everything that is set up."—Ulrich (Mo.) Chronicle.

While the influenza was at its height, a child was born in New York. The family were all down with the disease. The new arrival was a boy, and by unanimous consent he was named Agrippa.—Exchange.

Saleslady—"For a garden hat, madam, the one you are trying on is hardly large enough. Now, this would be much better." Customer—"Oh, no. That wouldn't do at all. Our garden is very small."—Boston Beacon.

—Those young men who were supposed to be out on a lark must have prolonged their spree for Officer Soule accosted them at 2.15 p. m. Adams courageously action deserves its full measure of praise and resulted in saving the life of the boy.

—The bowling tournament, under the auspices of the Newton club, closed Wednesday evening with a match at the clubhouse, between Capt. French's and Capt. Follett's teams, the former winning by a score of 1402 to 1201 for its opponent. The result of the contest places Capt. French's team in the lead, it having won the largest number of games in the tournament and, therefore, first prize, 4 handsome silver cups. A prize will also be given for the best individual average made during the tournament. It is a very handsome one and clock, which the winner must hold for a year, subject to challenge before it becomes his property. Mr. W. J. —The annual supper of the Educational Club held last Thursday p. m. rounded out a decade of its existence, and for literary, as well as social enjoyment, perhaps, was the best of all. It is some years since the first hour was occupied in the choice of officers, listening to the reports of secretary and treasurer, also to immemorial notices of the five of the several clubs. The hour "passed on" during the year. The next hour was a social one, following which was the supper, one of the best of Lee's proverbially fine catering, and the literary treat of the evening.

—The annual supper of the Educational Club held last Thursday p. m. rounded out a decade of its existence, and for literary, as well as social enjoyment, perhaps, was the best of all. It is some years since the first hour was occupied in the choice of officers, listening to the reports of secretary and treasurer, also to immemorial notices of the five of the several clubs. The hour "passed on" during the year. The next hour was a social one, following which was the supper, one of the best of Lee's proverbially fine catering, and the literary treat of the evening.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF MR. AND MRS. BERTHA BILLINGS.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertha Billings celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their residence on High street, Newton Upper Falls, last Saturday. The happy couple were married May 17, 1840, in Dedham, by Rev. Ebenezer Burgess, D.D. Mrs. Billings was a Dedham girl and Mr. Billings was born in Walpole. He is a descendant of Roger Billings of Puritan stock, who settled in Quincy, and the representative of the sixth successive generation.

Mr. Billings has resided in Newton Upper Falls for nearly 60 years. For forty years he had been a foreman in the Pettie Machine Works, and for the past 16 years he has conducted a successful grocery business at the Upper Falls. He is now 73 years of age and his wife is 69.

During the afternoon of Saturday the out-of-town guests and relatives enjoyed a dinner at the residence of Mr. Bernard Billings, the immediate family consisting of 4 boys and 4 girls, and 16 grandchildren, participating in the festivities. The members of Mr. Bertha Billings' family are Mrs. Charles B. Bancroft, Mrs. William H. Clapp, Mrs. H. H. Tilton, Messrs. Bernard, Joseph E., Oliver G., Edward M. and Fannie E. Billings.

In the evening, from 6 until 10 o'clock, a reception was held at the residence of Mr. Bertha Billings, which was attended by over 300 guests. The couple received in the parlor beneath a handsome floral canopy, and congratulations and good wishes were expressed by a host of friends. They were the recipients of many elegant presents, including $100 in gold, numerous articles of silver, pretty ornaments, and the usual variety of useful gifts. The guests were hospitably entertained, partaking of refreshments served in the dining room. The table was profusely decorated with a beautiful variety of roses, tastefully arranged, and flowers were also arranged upon the mantels in the several apartments. A feature of the occasion was the reading of original poems, written by Alderman Pettie, Rev. John Peterson, Albert H. Rhoades, Mrs. S. J. Withersell and Mrs. B. G. Mason.

The following original lines were read:

BY ALDERMAN GEORGE PETTIE.
Devoted, husband and wife,
You've lived as surely now appears,
In the true bond of wedded life,
For half a century of years.

The music of your marriage bell,
During these cheerful, quiet years,
As all your kindred know full well,
Has sounded sweetly in our ears.

Respected citizens you've been,
Through all this time and really more,
Surrounded by your kith and kin,
And loved by all this village o'er.

Your silver wedding came and passed,
Recalling recollections sweet,
But now your "golden" comes at last,
Filling your hearts with joy complete.

Your children fond are living near,
Who comfort give from day to day,
And you're grandchildren very dear,
Who'll add you in their gentle way.

Fortune has kindly dealt with you,
During your "golden" days of life,
But faithfully you've toiled 'tis true,
To win success in mundane strife.

Some of your guests now in this room,
Remember well your wedding day,
When to a young and bashful groom,
Was joined a bride, whose name was Gay.

But that was fifty years ago,
Most excellent and worthy pair,
And you've escaped life's mortal foe,
A thought again by time and worldly care.

Still, that persistent, dreaded foe,
Invaded thrice your quiet home,
Depressing it with crushing woe,
That naught but time could overcome.

Your many friends their greetings give,
Upwelling from their hearts with love,
And pray that long and happy may be,
Ere summoned to the realms above.

A trace of sadness lingers here, Because your eye of life draws near,
But of this we'll not sing tonight.

BY MRS. S. J. WITHERS.

Please pause, father, time on your onward flight,
Make us all young again, just for tonight,
Blot out the record of the swift rolling years,
With its joys and its sorrows, its hopes and its fears.

Tis done, we are young again, gay, happy and free,
What a glorious world, full of mirth and glee,
Our pulses are bounding, our hearts have their fill,
With joyous music, which our senses thrill.

Don't tell us of sorrows, 'tis only a dream,
Don't tell us that earth scenes are not what
they seem,
Don't say disappointment lurks in our way,
Don't tell us that death, our prospects may stay.

For, O, we are young, we are children at play,
We are learning our lessons in the old-fashioned way,
In that quaint old schoolhouse, you know where it stood,
In that lonely place, on the edge of the wood.

O yes, with young eyes, we can see it still,
With the murmuring brook, just behind the hill,
And the grand old trees, in whose shade we will stay,
And from our tiny, our dinner today.

And, O, just to think, our eyes must grow dim,
If we can't find the "Deep Hole," where the boys can swim,
We can climb the tall trees, the bird's nest to find,
Play "catch and tag," and a fall never mind.

But stop, 'twas a dream, 'twas a myth, and old Father time,
Is still going on with his ceaseless rhyme,
And our heads are silvered with time, and with
care,
That have marked our brows in their swift flying years.

The old schoolhouse, long since, has gone to decay
And the scholars are scattered, some fell by the way,
In life's early morn; while others toil on,
Fighting life's battles, and its victories won.

And so, my old school-mate, at this Golden time,
This fifty years, with its hallowed chime,
By the dear old memories of the days that are past,
Among the many good wishes, let my own be cast.

This world, after all, is a beautiful place,
For there's kindness and love, and many a face,
And if to-day, we have trial and sorrow,
We can always look forward to a brighter tomorrow.

And so down life's pathway, may you glide along,
Breasting its current with strokes firm and strong,
Till at last the voice comes, which will say,
Bertha,
You've been faithful on earth, your place is up higher.

BY MRS. B. G. MASON.

There's a beautiful sea 'mid the boundaries of time,
With the brightest of skies and a soft wooing
chime,
When its winds and its waves all in harmony
meet,
It will murmur a song that's enticingly sweet,
Round its fair smiling shores there are havens of rest.

Dear, delightful retreats, where no storms can moolest;
And amidst its bright waves there are sunshiny
isles,
Where content sits enthroned and joy ever beguiles.

In the springtime of life you unfurled your white sails,
To its whispering zephyrs and favoring gales,
And with love at the helm, then confidently gave,
Your deep trust laden back to the wind and the wave.

And to-night as we look through the mists of the years,
That have creoled along with their hopes and
their fears,
We can trace the bright gleam of that golden
lined day,
Which through fifty fleet years has illumined
your way.

What though tempests of sorrow and billows of
care,
May have tossed your fair bark with a turbulent air,
Your kind Father above, showing blessings untold,
Has now brought you to peace to this islet of gold.

On this bright little isle, friends, (the old and the new),
Have assembled to-night with glad greetings for
you,
Mingling tributes of love for the days that are gone.

With affection's pure offerings for those hast'ning
on,
May the future for you have rich blessings in store,
And your anchor be cast on life's farthestmost
shore.

Then, together in love may you peacefully rest,
In the golden paved city, the home of the best.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING.

With this meeting we close the sixth year in the life of the Newtonville Woman's Guild, a season that has surely been as prosperous as any, if it does not,
indeed, lead the others in its work and interests.

The membership list which numbered 111 the first year, was smaller for the next three years, then rose to 102 last year, and enrolls to-day more than 130
members.

Most is to be credited to the efficiency
of our president, who has given untiring,
devoted work with a quiet dignity and grace that has impressed itself at all times, in the executive meetings, as well
as the more public assemblies.

The work of the executive board has shown itself a power for good, and much has been accomplished for the sick and the needy as well as for the helpless ones who look to the Guild, simply as an added source of sociability and entertainment.

The social and industrial committee
have successfully conducted a fair, two children's parties, and two afternoon
lectures, while besides the main work of the Guild, that for the Cottage Hospital, the support of a free bed this year, over $100 has been spent in local charities;
and only those on the charitable committee know what a deal of labor is involved in that work.

At the beginning of the year the educational committee
felt a pardonable pride in the program of intellectual entertainment and instruction which they had planned for the winter, and I think we all cordially express our appreciation for the pleasure afforded. Through their efforts we have listened to subjects of such interest as selection beyond question.

The Guild opened the season with a reception, Oct. 2nd, at the residence of Mrs. Chas. Ward, which was a great success socially, being largely attended and many new members enrolled. Owing to the plan of holding many lectures in the Methodist church, the ladies of the Guild for the hospitality of their homes, has been much less than usual; yet we are indebted to Mrs. West, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Grant, (and our president to-day) for courtesies extended and thoroughly enjoyed, since it is quite and customs we want, with Mrs. Kathleen Phipps, as on a certain "Day in Boston" she took us through quaint historic places; heard an earnest talk on
"Indian Citizenship" by an enthusiastic
worker in their behalf—Miss Francis

Sparhawk, and in a spirit of relaxation
after so much earnest listening, we have not exactly as the old phrase has it,
"rested on our oars," but on a reclining
chair on the stanch steamer's deck,
watched a sunset at sea, had an imposing
and uncommon view of Giant's Causeway and spent happy days in the Highlands, with never a care, but to see some of the old historic places of Bonnie Scotland, and enter into its joys.

An afternoon at Mrs. Grant's home,
Mrs. Chapman read an essay by Mrs. Sherwood on the Life of Rubenstein, and the Misses Pinkham and Groat, together with Mrs. Pemberton and Mrs. Cuningham conspired to so charm us with music that that grand composer, that we forgot for a time that we lived not in an ideal world.

As a last and very sad duty we have to record the death of two most valued members, Mrs. L. A. Pulsifer and Mrs.
Mary E. Roberts.

NEWTON SUFFRAGE LEAGUE.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT WEST NEWTON TUESDAY EVENING.

The annual meeting of the Newton Woman Suffrage League was held in the Unitarian church, West Newton, Tuesday evening, and the following officers were elected: Nathaniel T. Allen, president;
Mrs. J. H. Sawyer, E. T. Kimball, Mrs.
C. E. Davis, vice-presidents; Mrs. J. P.
Tolman, treasurer; Mrs. L. A. Chapman,
secretary; E. N. L. Walton, J. H.
Bean, Mrs. Kate A. Mead, Mrs. M. H.
Cole, Mrs. B. L. White, Mrs. J. M.
Hastings, Mrs. N. P. Cutler, Mrs. G. W.
Crosby, Mrs. J. S. Burrage, Mrs. J. F.
Sampson, Mrs. A. P. Cook, Miss Hannah
Allen, directors.

After the election of officers, the president introduced Mrs. Louise Ormiston Chant of England, who delivered an address on "The social life of To-day."
Among other things, she said:
We are nearer woman suffrage in England, I am inclined to think, than you are in this country, as we have less complicated processes to go through when laws are to be passed and less obstacles
to overcome than is the case with you.
The speaker then gave an instance in England where the votes of women had resulted in returning moral men to office in a township, who were opposed to liberal granting of licenses,
and who would have been defeated because of their conservatism had it not been for the assistance of upward of 2000 women voters. In parochial elections, continued the speaker, the women have been most successful in using their rights of suffrage. The speaker, in closing, said that in America there were many inequalities. Your women have great difficulty in getting voting power. It cannot be claimed that your women are incapable when you think of the war and their noble deeds in the interest of humanity. America should be the first country to show the world
what it thinks of the best side of woman's nature, signaling it by giving her suffrage, without fear or favor.
[Applause.]

An Interesting Test.

The following is the report of the test
of the National Gas and Smoke Consumer, given at the Newton Pumping Station under the supervision of Mr.
Thomas Coughlan, engineer in charge,
for the five days ending May 10, 1890.
The amount of chemically prepared coal
used was 20,900 pounds which pumped 5,324,300 gallons of water. For the same five days in the previous week the amount of coal used was 25,700 pounds
and the quantity of water pumped was 5,777,710 gallons.

One lb. of coal as ordinarily used will pump 230 gals. One lb. of coal chemically prepared will pump 254 3/4 gals.
One ton of coal as ordinarily used will pump 490,000 gals. One ton of coal chemically prepared will pump 509,500 gals. Making 40,500 gallons more of water prepared by one ton of the prepared coal, than by coal as usually used,
and showing a saving of about 10.5 per cent. The chemical also prevents a great amount of the black smoke from issuing from the chimney, as it is combusted, together with a portion of the gases and chemicals enough to prepare
one ton of coal costs only six cents.

Hearing the bad things others say about him does not convince a man that he has faults so much as it proves to him
that others are liars.—Athenian Globe.

"By Jove, Bronson! Excuse my saying so, but this is the rankest cigar I ever smoked. Where did you get it?"
"You gave it to me last night. I was afraid of it myself."—Epoch.

We have heard Mrs. Abba Gould Woolson, in her enthusiastic essay on Granada and the Alhambra, Mrs. Geo. Morse, Mrs. Richards and Mrs. Sylvester on Italy, the Hawaiian Islands and the Gettysburg battle-field; have entered into Mrs. Cladin's personal experience among the poor, and spent a delightful "Afternoon with Longfellow," under Mrs.
Walton's guidance, Mrs. Kimball, Mrs.
Cunningham and Miss Alice Jones adding the charm of music; wandered through the maze of the "Fables of the French court life with Geo. Makepeace Towle, and imbibed many practical ideas
on co-operation and housekeeping from Miss Worcester, Miss Allen, Mrs. Martin,
Mrs. Fenno and others; engaged in fantastic dance and strange rites among the "Zulus" Indians, in company with Mr. J. W. Fewkes. Learned how much more freedom and pleasure is accorded to the women of to-day than to those of half a century back, as sweet Lucy Stone pictured the difference of the times and the "Progress of Women." We were roused to a wider outlook and more earnest effort by Miss Beecher's talk on "Interests of To-day," and what women in the advance guard are thinking, and had something of a forecast of the future days given us by Miss Ames, as she spoke of "The Modern Women of Modern England." Back to the colonial days and customs we went, with Mrs. Kathleen Phipps, as on a certain "Day in Boston" she took us through quaint historic places; heard an earnest talk on
"Indian Citizenship" by an enthusiastic
worker in their behalf—Miss Francis

A Spring Medicine.

The druggists claim that people call daily for the new Ely's Catarrh Balm, and sick headache, discovered by Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs,
and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50 cents a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine.

The most obstinate cases of catarrh are cured
by the use of Ely's Cream Balm, the only agreeable remedy. It is not a liquid or snuff, it is easily applied into the nostrils. For cold in the head it is magical. It gives relief at once.
Price 50c.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane
the remedy used must be non-irritating. The
medical profession has been slow to learn this.
Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with
douches, snuffs, powders or syringes because
they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach
the affected surfaces and should be abandoned
as worse than failure. And of persons who have had for years borne all the worry and pain
that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures
wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

The prevalence of scrofulous taint in the blood is much more universal than many are aware. Indeed, but few persons are free from
it. Fortunately, however, we have in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the most potent remedy ever discovered for this terrible affliction.

To Dispel Colds,

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system
effectually, yet gently, when constive or bilious,
or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken
the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity,
without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

"There is one solace left me at least,"
remarked the old farmer. "After all my boys leave and go up to the city, after the pigs and the cattle die, and everything else forsakes me, there is at least one thing that will stick to the old farm."
"And that is—?" "The mortgage,"— Lawrence American.

A writer, in enumerating "what women like in men," failed to mention money. It was a strange oversight.—Norris-ton Herald.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors," which,
fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by
the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofula sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLISLE, Nauright, N. J.

The plague of lamps is the breaking of chimneys; but that is unnecessary—there are chimneys that do not break.

They are made of tough glass, which costs more than common glass, but not so much more as to make it impossible to sell them at the usual retail price; so the dealer gets less profit on them.

The dealer wants to know

sells chimneys that last for-

Indian costumes were loaned by Mr. Davis of Newton, and Wm. Rider, who is connected with the American Board of Missions. Mr. Henry A. Tomlinson took the part of Hiawatha in the tableaux.

—Henry T. Hesse, the popular baggage expressman, was completely surprised at his home in Farnham's block, Monday evening, by a party of about thirty young ladies and gentlemen who had arranged
this way of celebrating his 23rd birthday.
The party had provided themselves with cake and ice cream, and after congratulations to Mr. Hesse, and their parcels and enjoyed refreshments. When a proper time had arrived, Thomas G. Woodman, in behalf of the company, presented Mr.
Hesse with a handsome blue plush easy
chair, and the latter part of the evening was spent in dancing.

—The Newton Centre Women's Club
held its last meeting at Mrs. A. A. Hovey's Summer street. The lecturer was Mrs.
Johnson, Superintendent of the Massachusetts Reformatory for women. For two hours Mrs. Johnson held the undivided attention of her audience, giving first a brief sketch of the history of the institution and following this by a description of the daily routine, occupations and amusements of its inmates, interspersed with anecdotes sometimes amusing, but more often sad, illustrative of the subject. While listening to the story of life at Sherborn, we seemed to realize the dream of the philanthropist of what might be accomplished for all the unfortunate classes in society, if the power and resources of the state could be combined with the labors and unselfish devotion of christian men and women.

—The parlors of the residence of Rev.
Dr. Alvah Hovey, President of the Newton Theological Institution, on Summer
street, Newton Centre, were Wednesday evening the scene of a very pretty wedding
and there was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the reception immediately following the wedding ceremony.
The contracting parties were Mr. Edwin Augusta Hovey, and Mrs. Wilbur B.
Parshley, who graduated from the Baptist Theological Institution one week ago.
The father of the groom united the couple,
and they stood in the alcove in front of the parlor bay window. The bride procession consisted of the groom and Rev. J. H.
Parshley of Philadelphia, the brother of the groom, who acted as best man; little Miss Lucy A. Gow, maid of honor, and Rev. Dr. Hovey, with the bride. The party were preceded by Mr. Hovey and Mr. Gow, the ushers. The bride was attended in a white silk costume, and train, with white tulle veil. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white roses,
which were presented to the bride after the ceremony. The ceremony occurred in the presence of nearly fifty relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties.
About two hundred guests were present at the reception, including President Shafter, Professors Whiting, Currier, and Hallowell and Dr. Emily Jones. Barely all of Wellesley College, and many prominent residents of Newton Centre. The invitations were somewhat limited, leaving more naturally to the younger people. The ushers were Messrs. Appleton W. Smith, Wm. C.
Brewer, Fred H. Hovey and G. C. Gow,
the latter professor of music at Smith College, Northampton. There were many costly gifts. The interior of the house was elaborately decorated for the occasion.
The couple will start for Florida immediately, stopping at Ricketts, Vt., to visit the bride's brother, Prof. Hovey, and after a few weeks will return to Newton Centre and go thence to Nemuro, Hok-kaido, Japan, where they will enter missionary work with Mrs. Captain H.
Carpenter, sister of the mother of the bride.

look of this section of the country.

—Fifteen piano forte pupils of Miss Mary L. Stone gave a charming musicale at the residence of Mr. A. B. Putney on Monday.

Most of these pupils have received their education in piano playing wholly from Miss Stone, so that the success is Miss Stone's success. All the pupils showed careful training in their manner of holding the hands, of striking the keys and in their technique. This care for details, together with the painstaking drill which must have accompanied it laid the foundation for the effective playing of the young people who have been for years Miss Stone's pupils.
The playing of the last number on the program shows what Miss Stone's careful,
conscientious method will accomplish.
Two pupils who took part in this musicale
have been Miss Stone's pupils for eight years. It is certainly greatly to a teacher's credit that her pupils remain under her tuition for consecutive years. This shows the estimate in which her services are held by her patrons more conclusively than any words could express. It goes without saying that the playing of all the pupils reflected great credit on themselves as well as on their teacher. Even the youngest pupil, little Flossie Putney, held her hands in position finely, struck the keys distinctly and with accuracy, even phrasing her work with care. Miss Stone herself is a pupil of B.
J. Lang.

—There occurred Saturday afternoon, May 17, an interesting and moving scene at Winchester Farm, the residence of the Rev. M. C. Ayres, a member of The Adver-
tiser's editorial staff, who is also the Boston correspondent of the Christian Union.
The subscribers and members of the Christian Union in this immediate community, together with a number of well-known friends
of that paper from Boston and the suburbs,
were invited to a Christian Union dinner.
Over 40 persons were present. Among the guests from abroad were Prof. E. C. Smyth of Beach and wife of Cambridge; Mr. W. G.

chester; Judge R. R. Bishop and wife of Newton Centre, and Rev. B. M. Fullerton

host and of his daughter. The latter, an infant of two years, was christened, the service being performed by Prof. E. C.
Smyth of Andover, assisted by Rev. Geo.
Phillips of Newton Highlands. After sandwiches, strawberries, ice cream and coffee

Mr. Fullerton, Rev. Mr. Beach, Mr. F. H.

spring and summer suits, should inspect
the fine line of imported woolsens displayed on the counters of Charles A.

No larger assortment of seasonable fabrics from which to make a selection, can be found in Boston.

The Bay State Franklin Stove advertised by the Barstow Stove Co. in our columns this week, affords that comfort
in a convenient, attractive and inexpensive form. It is especially desirable for the cool mornings and evenings at this season of the year as well as for use in winter weather.

Me., is a favorite with numerous visitors,
and will be this year under the charge
of Mr. S. D. Thompson, who is well

nothing undone for the comfort of guests.
Most Newton visitors at Kennebunkport
stop at the Parker House.

THE PLACE TO SPEND DECORATION DAY, FRIDAY, MAY 30.

A MAMMOTH LAND SALE —AND— TWO SPECIAL EXCURSIONS —TO— Congers, Rockland Lake, N. Y., AND RETURN.

Fare only $4.50 round trip by Fitchburg, and $3.90 by N. Y.
& N. E. R. R. Train leaves Fitchburg Depot Thursday evening, May 29th, at 7 p. m.
This train will have parlor coaches and sleepers, and will arrive at Congers Friday morning (Decoration Day), New York City at 7:30, returning Sunday afternoon, giving a beautiful view of the Hudson by daylight and a treat of passing through the Berkshire Hills and Hoosac Tunnel. The excursion leaves Medway, Millis, Franklin, Cayville and Bellingham, by New York & New England, connecting with Norwich line of steamers at New London, will be accompanied by the Medway Brass Band of twenty-seven pieces, and Vose's full orchestra, to remain for the summer. The rates from the above stations will be $3.55, including Franklin. Parties from Boston can take train foot of Summer street. Purchase regular tickets to Franklin, and then by excursion, making the round trip from Boston cost $4.05; returning Saturday evening by boat, leaving Pier 40, North River, at 6:30 and arriving in Boston at 9:30 Sunday morning, and at Medway and way stations at 7 o'clock.

On Friday (Decoration Day) a sale will commence at 11 o'clock on three different sections of the property, making it convenient for all to purchase lots at Congers or by the lake. Rockland Lake is perhaps the most beautiful spot to be found within the limits of New York, and the vast improvements now going on have increased the value of property to such an extent that a person investing $1000 a year ago could now realize $5000 on his investment. For full plans, particulars, etc., call at 247 Washington street, Boston, or write to our New York offices, 258 Broadway or 132 Park avenue, New York City. For tickets for special excusion send to our Boston office. Tickets by New York & New England route may be had at stations. Secure tickets early, as the number who will avail themselves of combining business with pleasure will be large. This will without doubt be the largest attended land sale known for years, as special trains will be run on the Great West Shore R. R. from New York, leaving foot of Jay and 42d Sts. at 9:40 and 1.
Fare, 90 cts. for the round trip.

All are invited to come on this excursion and see what has been accomplished in a few short months by the BOSTON IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

hotel, appropriately named "THE ROCKLAND," now under process of construction, to be completed and formally opened to the public June 15, and will contain upward of 100 rooms, and at an estimated cost of $50,000.

The new lake will cover 140 ACRES, making a complete chain of lakes and giving a beautiful water front and lake view to all sections of the property.

A new RAILROAD STATION now under way, the CORNER STONE of which will be laid the following day.

A BRANCH RAILWAY around the lake will be opened to the public Decoration day.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

ALL THE TEACHERS AND THE SUPERINTENDENT REELECTED.

The school board held its regular monthly meeting, Wednesday evening, present Messrs. Barnard, Parker, Hale, Dickinson, Putney, Lawrence, Hornbrook, Drew, Travis, Hyde, Baker, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Martin. Neither the Mayor nor the chairman of the board being present, President Hyde of the common council was chosen to preside.

Rev. Mr. Hornbrook asked for the suspension of the rules, until the committee on the investigation of the High School should make their report. This was done, and Mr. Hornbrook read the report which is given on page six.

In reply to Rev. Mr. Lawrence Mr. Hornbrook said the report was unanimous, all signing but Mr. Hollis, who however approved of it.

Mrs. Davis said she thought the board ought to accept the report with gratitude, it purified the air, and she was delighted with it.

Rev. Mr. Lawrence said he agreed with Mrs. Davis, and thought the report would do away with all suspicion that the High School was not all it should be. He felt like a dog lying because he once had shared those suspicions, but a closer acquaintance with the school and its teachers had made him feel that he was not disposed to give the teacher a fair show, and he was glad the air was now cleared, and all suspicions done away with in such a perfectly satisfactory manner.

The board then went into executive session over the election of superintendent and teachers for the coming year.

Mr. Emerson said he hoped the board would do him the favor not to consider him a candidate. The superintendent and reporters then retired, and in a brief time Mr. Dickinson came out, shook Mr. Emerson warmly by the hand, congratulating him on his reelection.

The executive session lasted for nearly two hours, and there were at times periods of a lively discussion, in which the soprano tones of the female members mingle with the bass notes of the male members, but when the doors were finally opened all was apparently harmonious, all the teachers and the superintendent had been reelected, the latter receiving 10 votes to 2.

The vacancy in the Latin school, caused by the resignation and marriage of Miss Lydia M. Brierly is filled by the election of Miss Lillian M. Hobart of Hingham.

The superintendent reported in favor of extending the classical course in the High School to five years, and arranged that those who desire can complete it in four years; also to have the general course include two branches of science each year, instead of three, and to have three in the last year. Also that as the Pierce school in Ward six had more pupils than allowed by the rules of the board, a vacant room in the Mason school should be used, or else a room in the Thompsonville schoolhouse should be fitted up for use at the beginning of the next year; also that Winslow J. Fiske, should be trustee officer at West Newton.

James H. Boyd at Lower Falls, and George Lynn at Newton Centre, to be paid 50 cents an hour. All the recommendations were referred to appropriate committees.

On motion of Mr. Hale the rules were amended to provide for a committee on Physical Culture.

$10,077.78 was appropriated for the expenses of the current month.

Mr. Barnard reported on the state of the finances.

On motion of Rev. Mr. Hornbrook, $80 was appropriated for expenses of the High School graduation exercises.

Tuesday, June 24, was appointed for the closing day of the High School, on Thursday, June 26, for the close of the primary and grammar schools. Such grammar schools as desire it were authorized to hold their graduation exercises in the City Hall and $30 was appropriated for music.

Rev. Mr. Lawrence moved the superintendent's recommendation of a city carpenter, to repair school buildings, be adopted, and the City Council be requested to appoint a man to this office.

Dr. Baker who has moved to Newtonville from Lower Falls, offered his resignation, but at the suggestion of the superintendent he withdrew it, as the latter thought there was no law that called for such action, and he will hold it if the City Solicitor reports that it is not contrary to law.

The board then adjourned.

Mr. Candier says they are considering the subject of the tariff with great care, and have listened to all that he has had to say.

New Lumber Yards.
Newton has long needed a fully equipped lumber yard, and one has now been opened on Crafts street, Newtonville, nearly opposite H. F. Rose's plumbing mill. It is under the charge of Mr. C. A. Harrington, who has had twenty years' experience in the lumber business, and will make it an object for Newton people to trade with him. He will keep on hand everything usually found in such places, as will be seen by his advertisement in another column, and solicits a share of the public patronage.

Waban Land Sale.
The great Waban land sale will be continued on Saturday, at the hour given in the advertisement in another column, and another opportunity will be given to invest in this most favored by nature of all the villages of Newton.

For first-class dentistry visit Dr. C. G. Poul, 44 Boylston street, Boston.

Y. M. C. A.
The meeting of the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday was in charge of Mr. H. A. Ball and took the form of a praise service. The larger part of the time was spent in song. Mr. Ball spoke a few minutes upon unity, and a short time was given to prayer and testimony.

For carpets of good quality and tasteful colorings call on Franklin Crosby, 544 Washington street. Mr. Crosby was formerly a member of the firm of Childs, Crosby and Lane, and he makes a specialty of selling carpets at the lowest figures consistent with the quality of the goods. See advertisement.

Those intending building this season would do well to look into the merits of the Walker & Pratt furnaces. Their Watertown store is very convenient for Newton people.

In another column will be found the advertisement of the Granite State Association, of which Mr. E. S. Colton of Newtonville is the local agent. This association organizes and carries on its work through the local building clubs, and enables people with small capital to buy and own their own houses.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE BOSTON AND ALBANY REFUSE TO GIVE SCHOLARS TICKETS.

The Common Council met Monday evening, President Hyde in the chair; present: Councilmen Crehore, Luke, Porter, Dutch, Mead, Roffe, Richardson, Forknall, Bates, Hall and Churchill.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Business from the board of alderman was disposed of in concurrence.

When the order appropriating $135 for Memorial Day came up, Councilman Luke moved to amend by adding $45 for expense of providing lunch for the High School Battalion, which was done, and the order was passed.

An invitation was received to the presentation of the flag and staff to the Franklin school, and accepted. It was at first intended to have the exercises Memorial Day morning, but as the work on the staff was not completed, the date was changed to June 17th.

J. N. Damon asked for concrete walk with edge stones on Washington street, Ward seven.

Residents and property owners asked for three gas or electric lights on Church street, between Park and Eldridge streets, a very dark corner of the city.

A communication was received requesting compensation for the damage done to the property of John Stearns, Parker street, on account of a change of grade in the street without advertising the same, and the continued trespass of the city on his land. He wished to settle amicably and avoid a suit, and the communication was referred to the claims committee.

The Gamewell Fire Alarm Signal Co. asked for sidewalks in front of their property on Chestnut street.

Joseph Howes asked for concrete walk with edge stones in front of his property on Washington street, Ward 3.

Andrew Broderick sent in a communication in regard to his lot on Faxon street, where the city deeded him 60 feet, but he has only 53 feet, the other 7 feet being occupied by John Joyce, and asking that the city take steps to deliver to him the amount of land called for in his deed; referred.

NO SCHOLARS TICKETS.

The special committee appointed to confer with the officers of the Boston & Albany railroad, in regard to lower and more equitable rates of fare for High school pupils from the south side of the city, made their report and read a letter they had received from Arthur Mills, general traffic manager of the road. He said that the road sold no scholars tickets, and none except at a graded price. In 1889, he stated that the road placed on sale 160 ride tickets from stations on the main line, at a price of 1 1/2 cents a mile, and the road had done all it could in this respect. The committee evidently were not brilliantly successful in their labors.

WATER MAINS.

Councilman Crehore presented an order which was passed, for the laying of 72 feet of 8 inch pipe on Watertown street, Ward 3, and 696 feet of 6 inch on Kensington street, at an expense of $1083; also 1050 feet of 6 inch on Farwell street, Ward 2, at a cost of $1063.

BATH HOUSES.

Councilman Bates presented an order for the appointment of a joint special committee to consider the cost of establishing and maintaining one or more public bath houses. The order was passed.

Councilman Richardson presented an order, which was passed, authorizing the printing committee to contract for the printing of the city documents of 1890.

On motion of Councilman Luke the recent order for the sale of $50,000 water loan bonds was rescinded and a substitute order passed of the same general purport.

On motion of Councilman Luke, the registrars of voters were authorized to spend $400 for the purchase of chases, type, cases, etc. for use in preparing the voting list of the city.

Councilman Richardson moved to take the High School badge order from the table; lost.

Mr. James Walsh explained that the exercises at the reception of the flag for the Franklin School would have to be postponed to June 17th, but the invitation would hold good for that day.

The board then at 8 o'clock adjourned.

REGISTRATION RECORDS.

THEIR CAREFUL PRESERVATION ESSENTIAL TO THE INTERESTS OF THE COMMUNITY.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC: Will you grant me a little space to urge the importance of the subject suggested in the above title.

The value of a complete registration of births, deaths and marriages to a community need not be insisted upon. For example: an applicant for the purchase of an annuity is at once confronted by a demand for evidence of date of birth. If reference to a contemporaneous official record of date of birth cannot be produced, it may prove a very difficult matter to establish the fact by other evidence.

Our older town records are quite imperfect, and though supplemented to a considerable extent by parochial records, there are still many unfiled gaps.

This is, moreover, merely introductory to the purpose of this note. The point which I wish to bring to the attention of the citizens of Newton is this: that the very valuable parochial records of the town and city are not as a rule kept in places of security from destruction by fire, and furthermore, that the still more valuable records of the town and city registrars' office are in a similar unsafe condition. While the safes in our present City Hall may protect to a certain extent the books and papers in current use, there seems to be no doubt that in the event of that building burning, an irreparable loss to the citizens for all time would be incurred. I think that there is a large amount of matter belonging to the other city departments exposed to the same danger.

It would seem to be nothing more than simple prudence to put the Registrar's department upon a proper footing, and to venture to offer the following suggestions for obtaining that end:

1st. A detached vault or "monument room" should be at once constructed, conveniently located with regard to the city offices, and built entirely of tiles and brick so as to be really "fire-proof." It would not cost much to construct one of sufficient size, to store safely all city records not required for immediate use in the offices and give room, if thought best, for a desk to be occupied by the assistant registrar or clerk.

2d. Copies should be procured of all the parish registers down to 1845, the date when the uniform system of town and city registration was introduced by State authority.

An official search of newspaper files for notices of Newton marriages and deaths should be made down to the same date and the results entered upon the Registrar's records.

3rd. An official publication of all the earlier records, and from time to time, of the late ones, and copies to be sold at cost price. They would find their way into public, society and private libraries, and the records they contain would be forever preserved from destruction.

One town has already done this for both its own and the parish records. I refer to Dedham—the work having been performed under the direction of the clerk, Hon. Gleason Hill, Esq., who is also president of the Dedham Historical Society. Newton could do no better than follow the example set by her neighbor.

C. F. CREHORE.

MR. SALTONSTALL'S PORTRAIT.

TO BE PLACED IN THE BOSTON CUSTOM HOUSE—A RECOGNITION OF HIS ADHERENCE TO CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

An oil portrait of ex-Collector Saltonstall is going to be placed in the customhouse by those who desire to show their appreciation of his service as a civil-service reformer. Here is the correspondence:—

Boston, May 21, 1890.

The Hon. Everett Saltonstall:—Dear Sir: Many of your friends, whose names will be found in the inclosed list, desire to mark their appreciation of your service as a public officer and a practical civil-service reformer by placing your portrait in the Boston custom-house.

It is the undersigned, acting as a committee in their behalf, respectfully ask you to accede to this wish of your friends, and to confer with us in relation to the matter. Faithfully yours,

FRANCIS PARKMAN, W. G. RUSSELL, SAMUEL C. COBB, JOHN LOWELL, ABBOTT LAWRENCE, CHAS. R. CODMAN, MARTIN BRIMMER, HENRY H. EDES.

The list referred to contained over 200 names of men known and honored throughout the state, among whom are the names of Messrs. A. D. S. Bell, J. R. Leeson, John W. Carter, Jonathan S. Parlow, Curtis Guild, Jr., E. B. Haskell, Geo. S. Lovett, John Lowell, F. F. Raymond 2nd, all of Newton; President Eliot, Chas. Eliot Norton, Alexander Agassiz, Fred L. Ames, Francis Brooks, Chas. R. Codman, Henry M. Whitney, J. A. Forbes and others.

The committee are in receipt of the following:

CHESTNUT HILL, May 24, 1890. Gentlemen: I have received your letter in behalf of yourselves and over 200 others, informing me that you desire to place my portrait in the Boston custom-house, to mark your appreciation of my services as a civil service reformer. To say that I feel most highly honored by this mark of approbation on the part of so many of those whose opinion I most highly respect is but a very feeble acknowledgment of this great compliment. It is far too great a reward for whatever services I may have rendered, and cause which it should be the ambition of every public officer to heartily support. Cordially acceding, therefore, to your request, I will confer with you at such time as may suit your convenience, and am gentlemen, with great respect, very truly yours, EVERETT SALTONSTALL.

Syrup of Figs.

Produced from the laxative and nutritious juice of California figs, combined with the medical virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to human system, acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

Cancer Can be Cured, and by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr., 75 Court St., Boston, Mass. Boston, Aug. 26, 1889. Dr. Solomon has cured a cancer on my lip of seventeen years standing; it was cut out twice by what they call eminent surgeons at intervals of six years, after being cut out each time I knew by the feeling it was still there, and it would be now if I had not been so fortunate as to have Dr. Solomon treat it, he did it without any cutting. I would urge those afflicted with cancer not to delay but to go at once and be cured permanently as I have done. My dear Doctor I thank from the bottom of my heart. JOHN HALLAHAN, 75 Charlestown Street.

A Cure for Constipation and Sick-Headache. Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50 cents a package.

Slight derangements of the stomach and bowels may often be corrected by taking only one of Ayer's Pills. Through not having the Pills at hand, your disorder increases, and a regular fit of sickness follows. "For the want of a nail, the shoe was lost," etc.

ONE ENJOYS Both the method and results when Syrup of Figs is taken; it is pleasant and refreshing to the taste, and acts gently yet promptly on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, cleanses the system effectually, dispels colds, headaches and fevers and cures habitual constipation. Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of its kind ever produced, pleasing to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, prompt in its action and truly beneficial in its effects, prepared only from the most healthy and agreeable substances, its many excellent qualities commend it to all and have made it the most popular remedy known.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

THE MCKINLEY TARIFF.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE MINORITY OF THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS.

Any policy of taxation which, under the pretense of protection, imposes
burdens upon the mass of the people and divides the representatives of different occupations into warring classes, each struggling to make use of the power of legislation to obtain an advantage over the others, is obviously unjust and unwise and ought not to be
saw when, in the name of the merchants and manufacturers of New England, he denounced this system in his great Faneuil Hall speech in 1820, we have actually witnessed day after day during the present session of Congress. Upon that occasion he said:

"To individuals, this policy is as injurious as it is to government. A system of artificial government protection leads the people to too much reliance on government. If left to their own choice of pursuits, they depend on their own skill and their own industry. But if government essentially affects their occupations by its systems of bounties and preferences, it is natural, when in distress, that they should call on government for relief. Hence a perpetual contest, carried on between the different interests of society. Agriculturists taxed to-day to sustain manufacturers, commerce taxed to-morrow to sustain agriculture, and then impositions, perhaps,
on both manufactures and agriculture to support commerce. And when government has exhausted its invention in these modes of legislation it finds the result less favorable than the original and natural state and course of things.
He could hardly conceive of anything
worse than a policy which could place
the great interests of this country in hostility to one another, a policy which should keep them in constant conflict,
and bring them every year to fight their battles in the committee-rooms of the House of Representatives at Washington."

According to the statements made before the committee, the protected industries of the country have never been at any time in our history in such a depressed and discouraging condition as they are now. After nearly thirty years of continuous protection by Government taxation for their support, a great many of them are reported to be on the very verge of bankruptcy and ruin, while very few of them, according to the testimony,
are yielding a fair profit on the capital invested. At the same time the laborers in those industries are complaining of insufficient wages, repeated suspensions
of work and a general condition of uncertainty and insecurity in their relations
to those who give them employment.

While we have no doubt that many of the statements made before the committee were great exaggerations of the actual condition of affairs, yet, after making proper allowance for the zeal of advocates pleading their own cause, enough remains to show clearly that the existing system of protection, after a trial of thirty years, has proved a failure
and that instead of being strengthened,
and made more restrictive and prohibitive, it ought to be abandoned and a more liberal policy inaugurated.

When our own market is fully supplied with any given article, the production of that article must cease or be exported at a loss, unless a market for it can be found somewhere else; and this is the great difficulty in the way of many of our most important industries
at the present time. They have no market which will pay them for the cost of production under our unwise system
of taxation, and yield them a reasonable profit upon their investments. To attempt to remedy this evil by still further increasing the cost of production is simply to begin at the wrong end, and will greatly aggravate the situation.

It can be demonstrated that we have the capacity to produce most of the manufactured staples at less cost and at the same time pay higher wages than can be earned in any other country in the world, but in order to do so we must have some imports from other countries
free of duty. If it were not for the excessive cost of production in this country,
caused by the unnecessary taxation of crude and partially manufactured materials which are essential in the processes of our industries, we could export and sell every year large quantities of the products of our shops and factories, after fully supplying the home
demand at reasonable prices.

We believe, therefore, that the only manner in which our industries can be helped by legislation at the present time, is to exempt from taxation the materials they are compelled to use, and to reduce proportionately the taxes on finished products, so that all our farmers, mechanics, and manufacturers may be able to compete on equal terms with those of other countries. With untaxed materials, it is evident that they could afford to pay their laborers better wages
than they can afford to pay them now,
and still sell their products to consumers
at lower prices than are now charged.

The increase of taxes on woolen and worsted goods, including carpets,
amounts to about $15,500,000 per annum,
estimated upon the importations of the last fiscal year; but in fact it will be many times that amount by reason of the enhanced prices which consumers will be compelled to pay for the domestic product. While the bill proposes to abolish the internal revenue taxes to the amount of $8,800,000.75 on manufactured
chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff,
articles which certainly cannot be classed
among the necessities of life.

We cannot undertake here to point out in detail the numerous increases in the rates of duty on imported goods which this bill proposes to make, but a few
will suffice to show the general character
of the measure and the purpose of its authors and supporters. The lowest grades of woolen yarn, worth not over 30 cents per pound, are to be subjected to a duty of 112 per cent., while the most costly yarn will pay 72 per cent.
One grade of coarse, cheap blankets will be required to pay 100 per cent., but the finest blankets will pay 72 per cent. The coarsest and cheapest woolen hats will be subject to a duty of 111 per cent., and the finest to 66 per cent. Women's and children's cheap hats will pay 100 per cent, and the finest 73 per cent. The lowest grade of woolen cloths will pay 125 per cent., and the highest grade 80 per cent.

The cheapest qualities of knit goods for underwear range from 112 to 138 per cent., but the finest, and most expensive, will pay 78 per cent. Woolen shawls of the coarsest and lowest grade, used by the poorest people, will pay 135 per cent.
duty, and worsted goods of the lowest grade will pay 130 per cent., while the highest grade will pay 90 per cent.

There are many increases of the rates
on iron and steel and scarcely a reduction on articles which can be imported at all under the existing rates.
The reductions in this schedule, as a general rule, will not diminish taxation
to any appreciable extent, while all the increases are so arranged as to obstruct importations and enhance the prices of the domestic articles of the same kind.
On common table cutlery the new rates
of duty imposed by this bill are very largely in excess of the old ones under which our manufacturing establishments have been successfully carried on for many years, and on the cheaper grades
of pocket-knives, razors, etc., especially,
the rates are greatly increased.

Common window glass, not exceeding 16 by 24 inches square, is increased to 123
per cent.; not exceeding 24 by 30 inches
square it is raised to over 135 per cent.,
and all sizes above that are raised to over 138 per cent., while there are very large increases upon bottles and various other manufactures of glass and valvular.
Camel's hair, a raw material extensively used in this country in the manufacture of certain kinds of goods, and which has been admitted free of duty
for a great many years, is by this bill taken from the free list and subjected to a tax of 12 cents per pound, which is equivalent to 77 per cent. and valvular.
During the last fiscal year we imported,
free of duty, 6,948,097 pounds of this material, which is absolutely necessary
to enable some of our manufacturing establishments to carry on their business
and supply the goods they are now making for their customers; but if this bill passes and the same quantity is imported
next year it will cost the people $707,771.64 in addition to the value of the hair itself. The imposition of this duty, like the imposition of all other duties on raw materials, works a double injury. In the first place, it imposes an unnecessary burden on the consumer,
who in the end pay all the duties with profits added; and, in the second place,
it destroys the power of the domestic manufacturer to compete with his foreign rival in the production of goods
into which the taxed material is converted.

We have for a long time been endeavoring to increase our trade with the people of Central and South America and Mexico, and at our request an International Conference is now being held
to devise means for the accomplishment of this result. The people of all these countries have a right to suppose that this Government is acting in good faith when it invited them to send their delegates here, and that nothing would be done by us to disturb the harmony of their deliberations or prevent the success of their mission; but in the midst of their consultations, and when it was earnestly hoped that the Practicable plan might be agreed upon for the establishment of closer commercial relations, this bill is reported containing provisions which will not only retard reciprocal arrangements for the future,
but destroy a large part of the trade
now existing between this country and some of our neighbors on the south.

The bill proposes to make large increases in the duties on carpet wools,
and take silver ores containing lead from
the free list and subject the lead contained in the silver ore to a duty of 1 1/2 cents per pound, not because we need the revenue, but for the sake of preventing these articles from being imported into this country.

No reduction has been made in the amount of duties imposed under any schedule except that relating to sugar and molasses. In all the other thirteen schedules of dutiable goods, embracing almost every important article the people use, except tea and coffee, which have been free for many years, increases are made, and in many of them the increase is very large.

The bill proposes to admit, free of duty, all sugar up to and including No.
16 Dutch standard in color, and pay to the sugar producers in this country a bounty of two cents per pound each year until July 1, 1905, on their product.
Last year these grades of sugar, which are now made free, yielded to the Government $54,894,181, all of which is now to be surrendered, and the sugar
industry is to become an annual charge upon all the people who are engaged in other occupations, some of which are far more important and all of which are fully as meritorious as this one.

In 1888, which is the last year for which we have complete returns, the sugar product in this country was 375,557,877 pounds, so that even if there should be no increase in production under the bounty system the sum which the people are to be compelled to donate
each year for the support of this favored industry will be $7,520,000, or $113,000,000 during the fifteen years. But the very object of the bounty is to encourage the production of this very article, and its advocates claim that in a few years it will result in a domestic supply equal to the whole demand for home consumption.
In addition to the home product
we imported and consumed during the last fiscal year 2,700,421,302 pounds of sugar not above No. 16 in color, making a total annual consumption including domestic and imported, of 3,075,979,179
pounds, and therefore, if the system results as its advocates predict, the annual payment out of the Treasury will be $61,528,426, even without any increase in the amount now consumed.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past obliges us to admit that only one remedy has met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else
has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms yield to it.

Hold it to the Light.

The man who tells you confidentially just
what will cure your cold is prescribing Kemp's Balm this year. In the preparation of this remarkable medicine for coughs and colds no
expense is spared to combine only the best and
purest ingredients. Hold a bottle of Kemp's
Balm to the light and look through it; notice
the bright, clear look; then compare with other remedies. Price 50c. and $1.

RECEPTION TO GENERAL ALGER.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE GRAND ARMY AT NEWTONVILLE.

General Russell A. Alger of Detroit, Michigan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, was accorded a brilliant reception at Newtonville Wednesday evening. At 6 o'clock he was the honored guest of Maj. S. A. Randle, who tendered the general, members of his staff and a number of invited guests a reception at his residence, 221 Walnut street. Among those present with the general were Senior Vice-Commander-in-Chief Weissert of Milwaukee, Adj. Gen. Hopkins, Department Commander Innes, Asst. A. J. Gen. G. H. Hopkins, Asst. Insp. Gen. E. W. Hall, and the following members of the national staff: Past Dept. Commander Goodale, Junior Vice-Commander J. W. Chamberlain, J. W. Churchill, Worcester; H. C. "Addi, Clinton; J. G. B. Adams, Lynn; J. A. Roberts, Danvers; W. H. Howe, Cambridge; J. W. Sawyer, Saugus; C. S. Anthony, Taunton; L. G. McKnight, Gardner; George C. Bailey, Hyde Park; J. W. Thayer, Chelsea; S. H. Turner, Medford; A. R. Bailey and W. H. Montgomery, Newton. Others present were Mayor Burr, Alderman Fenno, ex-Alderman Chadwick, Representative W. S. Slocum, ex-Representative Gilman, Col. Isaac F. Kingsbury, Capt. J. A. Kenrick, Past Commanders Downs, Wetherbee, Sylvester and Hyde.

The reception was informal, lunch being served to the guests, after which social features were enjoyed.

At 7:15 p.m., Charles Ward post 62 formed at its headquarters in G. A. Hall, Newtonville, and, headed by Commander S. S. Whitney, marched to Maj. Randle's residence and escorted Gen. Alger's party to the hall. The general was met by a group of citizens and the general was escorted to a seat on the platform by the reception committee. He was given three rousing cheers by the post, followed by three more by its associate members. Commander Whitney then formally introduced Gen. Alger, and as he arose to speak, he was greeted with a storm of applause. The general expressed his indebtedness to the citizens of Newtonville for the cordial reception extended to him, and then spoke briefly, saying among other things:

GEN. ALGER'S SPEECH.

Mr. Commander, comrades and gentlemen of the contingent (laughter). Wherever I travel, and I have been around considerable of it, I have been around something that is new. Tonight it is the new thing, a contingent membership connected with your post. Gentlemen who feel a grateful heart-throb when they hear the name of an old soldier member are interested. I am sure, in this, to me, novel association. It is a feature that I have never met with before. The same love and spirit that influenced the loyal men of the north who came to us at the front to minister to our wants were manifested in the organization of such an association and has promoted you to become members of it. There is no soldier who does not appreciate the fact that he is for your assistance during the war, the efforts of the boys in blue would have been vain. We needed your ration; we needed your money and encouragement.

I had no idea that there was a contingent organization connected with this post, and the first intimation that I had of it was gleaned from the remarks of your gallant commander who said that "break rank and then sit down." (Laughter.) I wish that every grand army post could have this endorsement and wherever I go I shall tell of the patriotic interest of the Newton men who did not desert in the army. It is a new feature to me, a revelation, and one of the most gratifying sights that I have witnessed since I was elevated to the position of Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

It has been said that the men who went to the front have been paid and that no more is due them. You never hear this from the men who were our friends and supporters in those dark days. The men who were with us at the front were either hiding during the war or sojourning in Canada. [Applause.] The Grand Army is not a treasury wrecker. It's members recognize the fact that patriotism cannot be paid for, and the fact, also, that it is not for sale. The men who were at the front with many brave and loyal men whose spirits have departed from their bodies, wish and expect this government to take care of the helpless dependents of the war. [Applause.]

This is my first visit to your beautiful city and today I have enjoyed a ride through it and its environs. We went to Lexington and got lost on the way, but finally found our way back to Newtonville where I have been delighted with the cordial reception which has been given to me. I congratulate you all that you are in such a pleasant place. I will not say that it is the prettiest place in the world, for I live in Detroit, (laughter,) but I must conclude that if you are not satisfied with your city, that it would be hard to satisfy you, even in the next world.

I wish that you and the busy business men of Boston could come West more frequently. If you accustomed yourself to travel and once got acquainted with our people, you would realize that the West is not so far away and that it is really a part of the United States. You might learn to believe that there were real values beyond the Mississippi river and we might get a chance to borrow some of your money. You would, at all events, soon feel as we do, that it is simply a pleasure excursion to come from Detroit or Chicago to Boston. If you do come, I can assure that you will receive a most cordial reception and a fair value beyond the Mississippi river.

In conclusion, the speaker said: I am amazed at the loyal work done for the old soldiers of Massachusetts since the war, equal to that of almost all the states put together. The Massachusetts men have learned that the great secret of happiness and prosperity is doing all you can for others less fortunate than yourselves. [Applause.]

After the applause following the general's speech had subsided, that gentleman passed up and down the hall, where the members of the post and its associate members were drawn up in line, and shook hands with each individual in the organizations named. After the reception the company adjourned to the banquet hall, beautifully decorated for the occasion, where covers were laid for 200 persons. After the material features, pipes and cigars were lighted, and Commander Whitney rapped to order. The customary speech making followed, and addresses being given by Gen. Alger, Department Commander Innes, Senior Vice-Commander Weissert, Adj. Gen. Hopkins, Gen. Hinks, Past Department Commander J. D. Billings, Past Dept. Commander Goodale, Capt. Jack Adams, Mr. Henry E. Cobb and others. Mr. Cobb spoke of the part taken during the war by the stay-at-homes. He alluded to Secretary Chase's conference with the New York bankers. On his return to Washington, said the speaker, upon being asked by President Lincoln what he had done for the war, he obtained a certain sum needed, the war secretary said: "Guess!" "Half the amount," volunteered President Lincoln. The whole, replied Secretary Chase. This illustration, added Mr. Cobb, evidences the willingness of those who staid at home in rendering all possible assistance in furthering the union cause. Every blow struck by the grand army in the field was energized and sustained by the loyal men of the north who staid at home.

Every speaker upon arising was greeted with three rousing cheers and a tiger, and their remarks frequently interrupted by storms of applause. Gen. Hinks of Cambridge gave one of the finest speeches of the occasion, and very interesting remarks were made by the Commander-in-Chief Weissert. During the intervals between the speeches, selections were rendered by Gott's orchestra, who played "Hail to the Chief" when Gen. Alger and his escort entered the hall where the formal exercises took place. Gen. Alger, accompanied by Senior Vice-Commander Innes and others enjoyed a carriage ride through the Newtons and vicinity. The square in the vicinity of the hall was illuminated, and was the scene of a brilliant display of fireworks.

At the close of the after-dinner speeches Wednesday evening, Gen. Alger and party left the hall and proceeded to the Newtonville Hotel. The square in the vicinity of the hall was illuminated, and was the scene of a brilliant display of fireworks.

Gen. Alger left Boston on the 11 o'clock train Wednesday evening for New York. The general and party will pass Memorial day in New York city and Brooklyn.

The Alger reception was one of the most successful and enjoyable events that has ever taken place in Newton, and brought to our quiet and beautiful city a distinguished company of Grand Army men, representing many of the states in the union.

On account of the dampness the river the boats were given up, and at 9 o'clock the Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club gave a concert in the club-house. The numbers of the program were well received, and Mr. A. D. Grover's banjo solo, "Humorsque" called out an encore. The affair was eminently successful, although the guests missed the opportunity of an added pleasure in the proposed trip in the boats and the enjoyment of listening to music on the water, always a rare treat.

To each society of the St. Louis Christian Endeavor Union has been given the duty of looking after the delegates from a certain state, and to the Central Presbyterian Society, Massachusetts has been assigned. The St. Louis Reception Committee is preparing for a social on the river, and has arranged for a large steamer for Saturday afternoon, June 14, at 4 o'clock. The Mississippi will give the delegates a good opportunity to view the great city "along a river front of nearly thirty miles," and to enjoy their trip on a favorable opportunity for becoming mutually acquainted.

Thousands of young people are planning to attend this convention. Who are going from the Newton Societies?

It is a relic of the savage, yet lingering in the blood, that man instinctively loves the fire especially an open one. The Bay State Franklin Stove advertised by the Boston Standard Co. in our columns of this week, affords that comfort in a convenient, attractive and inexpensive form. It is especially desirable for the cool mornings and evenings of this season of the year as well as for use in winter weather.

The Twin Mountain House is justly one of the most popular resorts in the White Mountains. It is in charge of Mr. Frank A. Coffran, who is also proprietor of the famous Altamonte at Altamonte Springs, Florida. Nothing is left undone for the comfort of the guests.

The contract for the floral decorations at Harvard College on Class Day, has again been awarded to Mr. William E. Doyle, of 43 Tremont street, Boston, who has had charge of the Class Day decorations for six consecutive years, and each year has excelled his previous work. Mr. Doyle will also furnish decorations for a large number of spreads.

LAWTON'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

FOR THE BLOOD, LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

This great constitutional remedy has been on the European market for over twenty years, is superior to all others, and proven the greatest Blood Purifier and System Renovator ever compounded by medical skill. Nothing can equal it for putting the vital portions of the body in condition. If your liver is affected do you stop to think how, or what your liver is? The liver is subject to more or less little pains or aches. This organ is the sponge of the body and is continually soaked full of blood rich in poisons. Its purpose is the secretion of certain digestive and cathartic elements known as bile, and the transformation of those products of digestion which are absorbed into the blood and carried into the liver before they enter the general circulation and assist in nourishing the body. Inactivity, then, produces numerous diseases. So by using Lawton's Vegetable Compound your liver will be free from all disease. It is also absolutely necessary to know what and where are your kidneys. There are two kidneys, one on each side of the backbone. They are the only organs that purify the blood of the uric acid waste in the system. Every drop of blood courses through a great many times a day, just as through the heart. The waste matter which they should take away contains deadly poison which, if retained, causes fatal results. Sixty-five gallons of blood per hour, in the average man, passes through the kidneys, and to purify it they must be in perfect health. The kidneys are filled with many thousand hair-like tubes. These tubes run into every part of the kidney, and as the blood flows through that organ, the urine passes into these tubes, and is drained into the bladder. If these little tubes are diseased, and the uric acid is not removed, and instead of this poison coming through the blood or the albumen, which is really the life of the blood, comes through these walls and escapes with the urine; in other words the nerve action is entirely wrong, and instead of taking the poison out of the blood the life of the blood is taken out and the poison remains.

LAWTON'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND,

By its immediate action upon these vital organs thoroughly cleanses, renovates and restores them to their normal condition.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The Report made by the Investigating Committee.

AN INTERESTING AND WELL WRITTEN DOCUMENT.

To the School Committee of the City of Newton:

Your Committee appointed February 26th, 1890, to investigate the scholarship and department of the High School, and to report the result of such investigation at its pleasure to the Board, has attended to its duty and now submits its report. It is a source of regret to the Committee that Mr. Hollis has been prevented by reason of severe sickness from taking any part in this investigation.

Your Committee has used all the means at its command and has taken into consideration all the facts which could in any way aid it in the performance of the task entrusted to it. It has carefully examined and compared all the records, has endeavored to learn the character of the work done in the various departments of the school, has given a public hearing in order that all that could be said might come before it in the most definite form. It has also sought, by confidential interviews with teachers, parents, and pupils, and by visits to the school, to become acquainted with everything that might enable it to determine the exact condition of affairs.

Your committee soon found that its duty was a peculiar one. It was neither asked to meet formal charges against any of the teachers, nor was it called upon to remedy an alleged defect. It was expected to look into the present condition of the school and to report in accordance with the facts within its knowledge. With this in view, it submits in the first place, a few statements which show the present general condition of the High School.

The records show that there are now in the school four hundred and twenty-three (423) scholars. There are twelve regular, and four special teachers. The session is forty weeks during every school year, from September 8th to June 27th. The daily sessions begin at 8.35 a. m. and close at 1.15 p. m. There is no session on Saturday.

The average age of pupils on entering the High School is about fifteen years and three months.

One of the first steps of your Committee was to determine from an examination of the records whether there was any falling off in scholarship or department, and also whether unusual numbers were withdrawing themselves from the school. These records, it is true, do not furnish conclusive evidence of the inward condition of the school, still in the absence of facts sufficient to discredit them, they must carry with them an overwhelming conviction.

It was the wish of your Committee to make a comparison of the average grade of scholarship in the High School during a period of at least ten years. It appeared that records allowing such a comparative view had only been kept for the last four years, and so the attempt had to be abandoned. The best test of the work of at least a part of the school will be found in the success of those who apply for entrance to the higher institutions of learning. It would have added to the completeness of its report if your Committee could have had some test by which to determine the scholarship of the young women as well as of the young men, but because the certificate of graduation from the High School is all that is required by Women's Colleges, no such test exists. It remained therefore to obtain the results of the examinations during a number of years for entrance to Harvard College and to the Institute of Technology, institutions at which by far the larger number of young men and women pursue their studies.

The following is a table stating the number of those who have applied for entrance to Harvard College and also the number of conditions on the preliminary and final examinations from 1882 to 1889. Previous to 1882 there are no sufficiently definite records.

HARVARD EXAMINATIONS.

	Students.			Conditions.
	Prelim-inary.	Final.	Total.	Prelim-inary.	Final.	Total.
1882,	5	5	10	6	6	12
1883,	4	5	9	5	6	11
1884,	5	4	9	17	1	18
1885,	6	4	10	4	3	7
1886,	2	3	5	0	3	9
1887,	8	1	9	20	2	22
1888,	10	5	15	5	6	11
1889,	8	7	15	5	7	12

In regard to tables like this it must be said that they furnish but a rough estimate, it is the only available one. It may be well to say that your Committee has received these and all its figures at first hand, or through those who have no concern in the matter beyond stating the facts as they are. An examination of the table above given shows that in the years 1882-83 there was an average of 1.4-10 of a condition to each student, 1884-5, 1.6-10; in 1886-7, 2.3-14; while in 1888-89 there was an average of 23-30 of a condition to each pupil.

The record of examinations for entrance to the Institute of Technology is as follows:

EXAMINATIONS OF INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY.
	Students.	Conditions.	Conditions per pupil.
1882,	4	5	1.25
1883,	6	10 (1 rejected)	1.66
1884,	13	4	0.31
1885,	10	10	1.00
1886,	16	2	0.13
1887,	17	8 (1 rejected)	0.47
1888,	15	3	0.20
1889,	14	3	0.22

In the consideration of these tables it must be always remembered that the years when it is highest are not necessarily years when the management and instruction must have been correspondingly poor or good. Much depends upon the capacity and faithfulness of the scholars in any given year. So that unless the increase or decrease in the grade of scholarship as represented in these examinations is marked and long continued, it does not furnish an exhaustive test of the good or bad condition of the school at any given period. But taking these statistics as good so far as they go, your Committee finds that they show no deterioration in the quality of the scholarship of the High School, and may be taken as fair proof that the work done now is as good as that done in any year of which there is complete record.

It is a source of regret to your Committee that it was unable to find statistics and tests such as have been given with regard to the Classical Department of the High School, which might furnish equally definite evidence of the character and results of the work done in the General Course. It can however be, in a measure, taken for granted that if a large portion of the school is doing good work, the rest is also doing it. There is no evidence that the teachers who are working so effectively in one direction are neglectful in any other. The fact is that more hours are given by the teachers to the studies pursued by those who take the General (or English Course) than to the studies of the Classical Course.

The following table gives the statistics. Number of hours given by each teacher each week to Classical and General Courses of studies in the High School:

Classical. General.

Recitations.	Recitations.
Mr. Goodwin, 5	16
Mr. Simpson, 5	10
Mr. Davis, 20	0
Mr. George, 5	15
Mr. Chandler, 3	13
Miss M. Davis, 7	13
Miss Burbank, 15	13
Miss Johnson, 5	15
Miss Owen, 5	17
Miss Leland, 3	17
Miss Abbott, 9	13
Miss J. Davis, 22	0

Total, 107 135

The scholars in the Institute Course recite in the classes of the General and Classical Courses with the exception of seven exercises a week. It is plain that the General Course is largely included in and forms a substantial part of the Institute Course. The statistics of the Institute course given above therefore indicate the character of the work done in the General Course.

During the past three years special pains have been taken to enlarge the opportunities for work in the laboratory. The facilities for scientific study have been increased tenfold in these years. In modern languages and English Literature instruction has never been more efficient or comprehensive.

In the statistics of attendance, tardiness and of those leaving the school for any cause, it is easy to find an exact description of the facts, not merely with regard to a part but to the whole of the school for a long period.

The record of attendance is as follows:

Per cent. of attendance at the High School.	Per cent. of attendance at the High School.
1881, 93.5	1886, 90.0
1882, 93.9	1887, 91.2
1883, 92.5	1888, 91.4
1884, 92.4	1889, 92.3
1885, 91.0	1890, 92.3

*During the first half of the year.

This record of the per cent of attendance shows that during these years there has been a variation in the rate of attendance from 90.0 in 1886 to 93.9 in 1882. That is, the difference between the year when the per cent of attendance was highest, and the year when it was lowest is only three per cent. It will also be found by this table that the per cent of attendance for 1880 was 93.4.

The record of tardiness in proportion to the number of the scholars shows that in 1889 there was less tardiness than in any other year reported in the table with the exception of 1886.

NUMBER OF TARDINESS AND SCHOLARS.

Tardiness.	Scholars.
1884, 1376	337
1885, 1047	389
1886, 1088	431
1887, 2413	477
1888, 1730	465
1889, 1612	425
1890, 424	473

*First half of year.

In regard to the number of those leaving the school for any cause before graduation we find the facts to be as follows:

Year.	Total En-rolment.	No. leaving for any cause.	Per cent. leaving for any cause.
1879-80	313	50	16.4
1880-81	313	25	8.0
1881-82	Records are incomplete.
1882-83	380	02	23.6
1883-84	431	80	18.5
1884-85	477	70	14.6
1885-86	465	05	13.9
1886-87	435	08	15.6
1887-88	473	54	10.9

To April.

It seems to your Committee that this table clearly shows that the number of those leaving the school for any cause before graduation, does not vary in any very marked way year after year, and that the number during the last five years has steadily diminished. But if in any one year it should suddenly increase this might be owing to one or more of several causes, and need not be taken as a proof that the school was losing favor in the community.

The following table shows the number of each class who have left the school for any cause.

Class of 1st Year	2nd Year	3rd Year	4th Year
1883	104	58	51
1884	114	92	70
1885	104	78	74
1886	125	85	77
1887	135	113	92
1888	145	121	113
1889	140	125	90
1890	154	132	109
1891	135	118	81
1892	140	120

These figures represent the number in each class at the beginning of the school year in September.

Another step taken by your Committee was to give all who had any criticism, suggestion or objection to offer concerning the High School a public hearing. The invitation to this was twice published in the local papers. The meeting was well attended and various persons were heard. The hearing occupied nearly four hours, and if it had been called for the purpose of giving a public hearing, it would have been a grand one. This however was not requested, but the Committee expressed itself ready to receive any communication whether written or oral concerning the High School, and if desired treat it as strictly confidential. This was done in order that no one might be deterred by any motive from expressing his or her full mind. Your Committee was conscious of only one desire and that was to allow the fullest and freest utterance of all criticisms and suggestions, and give them impartial and serious consideration.

It is pleasant to be able to state that all that was said or written was in the best spirit and conveyed in the most courteous form. The criticisms, objections and suggestions were of the most various kind. One or two complaints were made against one or two of the teachers for using abusive or rather contemptuous terms in addressing scholars. These however appeared to be rare cases and may well be dealt with as special cases when they arise. Such conduct on the part of the teacher would at all times be condemned by those who have the High School in charge. Several bore witness to the ability and faithfulness of the Head-master.

In the public hearing most of the time was occupied in discussing theories of teaching and methods of administration. Many of the criticisms made were admitted by those who stated them to be equally true of such schools everywhere. Some thought the school hours were too short and the school days too few while others on the contrary urged that the hours were too long and the days too many. The management of the school was on the one hand criticised because it dealt with the scholars as if they were children, while on the other hand it was blamed for treating them as if they were mature ladies and gentlemen. Criticism of such opposite kinds may perhaps be taken as evidence that in its management the High School does not go to one extreme or the other. But if too little time is given to the work of the school that is equally true of the schools of Massachusetts generally. If on the contrary the hours are too many it seems strange that parents and scholars do not hesitate to add to them, so that one third of the pupils are devoting seven hours each a week to music, while still others are engaged for several hours each a week in the study of languages, in addition to the school requirement. We find also that some of the scholars consider themselves able to do the work of the school and at the same time to attend to the duties of social life. Some objection was made to the system of marking and it was claimed that the system in use was not adapted to indicate the actual value of the work done by the student. All systems of marking are in the nature of the case tentative and inadequate, and may in special cases fail to do complete justice to particular pupils. But it is doubtful whether a change in the system would make it any better for all concerned. The school works as they are, and demanded under any system of marking is that all should be dealt with in the same way. So far as your Committee has been able to learn there is no proof that this has not been done. As for the particular system of marking now in use, your Committee has no objection to it, and finds that it has been adopted as the result of long experience and careful thought, and that it is, on the whole, well adapted to give a fair index of the value of the work done by the pupils.

It was also objected that the scholars were not aided in their work by being taught to be, and that too little time was given to the answering of questions during the hours of recitation. This is an important matter and deserves consideration. It may be that some scholars through irregularity of personal care at critical moments in their work are unable to understand their work and in consequence lose all interest in it. And doubtless with more teachers and greater facilities more personal attention might be given to scholars. But your Committee does not find that any scholar has been compelled to go without receiving help if he desired it. Many of the teachers are willing after or before the regular school hours to give aid, and one of the teachers who is present nearly every afternoon of the week, and who is known to give help to students in his department, said that no one ever requested his assistance. It is true that many of the scholars live at too great a distance to return in the afternoon for aid, but many also live very near and the fact that they do not seek help which they know can be had shows how little real need of it is felt.

Objection was made that scholars enter the High School at an early age, that their age is fifteen years and two months, and the present arrangement of the relation of the Grammar to the High School is one which has found favor with the leading educators of the country, and your Committee sees no reason for recommending the reconstruction of the school system. It has also been urged that the High School is designed with a view to the preparation of about ten per cent of the scholars for higher institutions of learning, while the needs of the great majority of the pupils are unheeded. The fact is that of the class entering this last year 51 per cent of the scholars enter the school or Institute Course, while during the past seven or eight years almost more than one-third of the pupils has taken one or the other.

The General Course does not require the study of Latin and Greek, being devised with a view to the preparation of those who do not intend to pursue their studies after leaving the school. In this Course a boy or girl can receive thorough training in English, in mathematics and in the natural sciences, from the best teachers in the school.

There is now a proposed Course connected with the School intended for those who may desire instruction directly adapted to fit them for a business career. Every part of the community is taken into consideration in the work of the Newton High School. It is probable that a course of study occupying five years instead of four might be more profitable to many of the scholars, and might enable them to do their work with more thoroughness and less sense of hurry. Such a plan has been recommended by your Superintendent, and is now being considered by the Board. It has been thought it would be well to have an additional High School more easily accessible to a portion of our citizens than the present High School Building, while others have thought a separate school devoted entirely to a Collegiate Course was an improvement. Both these propositions have been brought before the School Board and now await its consideration. Through some of these ways our High School instruction may be improved. In the meantime the wise course seems to be to make the best of the present conditions, and this your Committee believes.

An exhibition of the phonograph will be given at the Lyceum two weeks hence. Fuller particulars later.

The report of the investigating committee appears this week.

The class of '91 held a meeting last Friday to appoint a committee who should procure the prizes, and also a committee to prepare for the collection for the class of '90. An assessment of $7.50 was decided upon to be collected by the treasurer.

The English recitations on Thursday were of a patriotic nature to comply with the new state law.

Little Barbara, 6 years old, was asked the other day in Sunday school: "Who were the apostles?" "They were men," she responded promptly "who went around with Christ until he died, and then they came to Plymouth."

Yeast—"I understand you've bought a dog to keep burglars away?" Crimson-bogk—"Yes." "You are not troubled any more at night, then, I suppose?" "Only by the dog."—Yonkers Statesman.

Newton Woman's Suffrage League.

The annual meeting of the Newton Woman's Suffrage League was held in the parlors of the Unitarian church, West Newton, Tuesday evening May 20th. The following are extracts from the secretary's report, read on the occasion:

The Newton Woman's Suffrage League has had a prosperous year. At their first meeting the executive committee arranged for the Festival of Days which occurred Dec. 18th, in the City Hall. Nearly one hundred took part in the pageant, eighty-three in costume. The net proceeds were $125, of which $100 were sent by vote of the executive committee to the Massachusetts Suffrage Association. The complete success and pleasure of the festival was greatly due to the chairman of the committee of arrangements, Mrs. Charles D. Davis, who has our hearty thanks for her efforts.

The annual reception at Mrs. Tolman's promised to be a very successful occasion, as nearly all members accepted the invitation, but when the evening came, a heavy storm, the worst of the season, prevented many from coming. Mrs. T. S. Fessenden, however, kept her engagement, though she sacrificed two other opportunities to speak which would have netted her $50, and her address was much enjoyed and highly appreciated by her audience.

On Feb. 10th, the officers of the League and a few friends were invited to meet our representatives, Mr. Gilman and Mr. Ranellet, at the residence of Mr. N. T. Allen. Limited accommodations prevented the assembling of the entire League number to our regret, and a showy day rather detracted from the number present, but all enjoyed a pleasant social time. Informal speeches were made by several ladies and gentlemen, including Representative Gilman, Mr. Ranellet our new representative, announced himself as unprejudiced, and promised to give the subject his careful and serious consideration. We are much pleased to learn that though unable to attend the session of the House when the final vote for Woman Suffrage was taken, he paired for our cause. Mr. Gilman voted for Woman's Suffrage this year, as he voted for it the previous year.

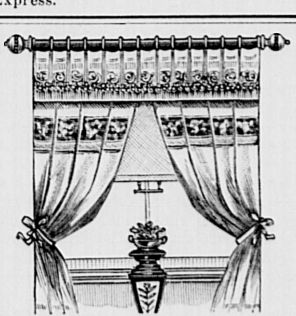

Under the auspices of the League, Miss Lucy Stone has addressed the Women's clubs at Newton Centre and Newton Highlands, and the Women's Guild in Newtonville, her subject in each of the places being "The Progress of Woman in the Last Fifty Years." She aroused much interest in the lecture, and had pledges and petitions being presented, many names might have been secured for the league.

At the annual meeting on May 20th, the old list of officers was re-elected, with the addition of two more on the executive committee, one of them being Miss Hannah Allen of Newton, who, that very day passed into the beyond—to her well-earned rest. Thus the League has lost the services of one who had been an early and active and loyal suffragist.

The public assembly in the Unitarian church, West Newton, was addressed by Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant of England, whose eloquence two years ago had won her many earnest admirers. Mrs. Chant prophesied that the English women would receive full suffrage before the American women. She appealed to the men, who knew how nobly our women had served in various capacities in the war, to show their gratitude and be the pioneers in this act of simple justice to their wives and daughters. Some of her reminiscences of her reform and charity work in London were thrillingly narrated and we all felt newly enlisted by the experience of this silver-tongued woman, who ever goes about her Master's business.

A Financial Move. Mr. Isaacstein—"Rebecca, go over dot neighbor to and get changed a five dollar bill." Mrs. Isaacstein—"Vat for, Jacob? Ve have plenty small changes dot house in." Mr. Isaacstein—"Do vat I told you. He a little rattled from drinking and maybe he give you a nickel too much in dot change."—Texas Siftings.

Physical Culture. Watts—"Potts, you ought to join our physical-culture club. I tell you, old man, that the business-men of our day do not take half the exercise they should." Potts—"I don't see how I can find the time." Watts—"It's all a matter of making up your mind. I never go around to the rooms myself unless there is a prize-fight."—Terre Haute Express.

The report of the investigating committee appears this week.

The class of '91 held a meeting last Friday to appoint a committee who should procure the prizes, and also a committee to prepare for the collection for the class of '90. An assessment of $7.50 was decided upon to be collected by the treasurer.

The English recitations on Thursday were of a patriotic nature to comply with the new state law.

HIGH SCHOOL INVESTIGATION.

The report of the High School investigating committee will be found on another page and will be read with interest. The committee should be given credit for a good deal of hard work in preparing it, and for having conscientiously striven to fulfil the duty imposed upon them, as they understood it. To understand the matter more clearly, it should be stated that the object of the investigation was to find out "the scholarship and deportment of the school," and by scholarship was meant, as stated by the mover of the investigation, the standing of those scholars who finish their school days at the High School, and to see if they are making satisfactory progress, and the school is doing for them what such a school should do.

It will be noticed that no facts are given in the report in regard to the standing of scholars in the English or Business courses, or their scholarship; while elaborate tables are given of the students who entered at Harvard and at the Institute, who are generally the show pupils in any school, and for whom many times the interests of others are sacrificed. There were 29 of these pupils who passed their examinations last year, but the reader will look in vain for information as to the rest of the class, or the record they made at school, although the committee state that as 51 per cent. of the entering class last year took the Classical or Institute course, the school can be judged from the success of scholars in these courses. This is an assumption merely, and may or may not be true, for anything that appears in the report. If we assume that the Harvard and Institute boys, those who pass the examinations, are usually the brightest members of a class, as may fairly be done, the unsatisfactory nature of the report appears at once.

The report has a general resemblance to the annual school report, and while it is valuable as far as it goes, it is to be regretted that the committee did not strike out on an independent line of investigation and leave the beaten tracks covered so many times in the annual reports. Such an investigation might have been of great and lasting benefit to the school. But there is this excuse for the committee; aside from the public hearing and one letter they were not approached by any parent, or given any information about causes of dissatisfaction. To be sure, they might have made a house to house canvass of the city, and asked each parent's opinion of the school, but they took the ground that if there were no other complaints, or complainants, than those who appeared at the public hearing the school must be in a pretty satisfactory condition. They invited parents to call on them, but none came and only one letter was received, and they were left to make their investigation in their own way.

Perhaps an unfortunate impression was given at the public hearing, by the attitude of one of the committee, and this may have accounted for the public neglect, as there were many parents who went to the hearing to speak, but so much time was taken up by the committee and the teachers, that they did not have an opportunity. Probably if Mr. Bell had been appointed a member, the report would have been of a very different character, and people who are dissatisfied would have felt more confidence in the committee. The committee think that as he moved the investigation he ought to have been given a chance at the work involved in it and been made to bear a share of the responsibility. As it is now, the report in its present shape will probably only satisfy those who were fully satisfied before.

To sum up, the report is excellently written, with many more or less interesting tables of statistics, but it has absolutely nothing to say in regard to the main object for which the committee was appointed and the committee have evidently no solution that they can or dare offer of the High School trouble. The people are still as ignorant as they were at the beginning of the efficiency, or thoroughness of the work done in the general course, or the scholarship of those pupils who take that course. It would be an excellent thing to appoint a committee now to really investigate the scholarship of the High School pupils, outside of the Harvard and Institute preparatories, who compose perhaps one third or one fourth of each class. The present report presents no facts or figures to change the opinions of those who were dissatisfied.

WHO WILL HELP?

The boys of Wards one and seven formed a ball club this spring, and started in to enjoy the national game. They began playing on the same grounds they had last year, but were warned off as the field had been rented for a cow pasture. They then found another vacant field but were promptly warned off, as they would spoil the grass. As a last resort they went to the vacant lot corner of Church and Eldredge streets, where they have played one or two games, but as the mud is over their shoes in half the lot, they are becoming discouraged.

It is becoming not creditable that in such a wealthy section of the city the boys should be unable to find a place for sports, and the object of this article is to discover whether there are not some public-spirited citizens, who will help the boys of Newton out of their difficulty. There are a number of vacant lots in both wards which would be suitable for grounds, if the owners would permit. It is believed that some of the owners of vacant land would give the use of a field, if the matter was called to their attention, or at least would rent the field for a small sum.

Who will be the first to take action in this matter, to either start a subscription list to hire a field, or to give the use of their land. At present the boys are discontented, and are beginning to urge their parents to move to Newton Centre or some other place where some provision is made for the enjoyment of out door games. Unless this matter is remedied, it will have a serious effect upon the growth of this section of the city. We have a beautiful park, which is such a delight to the eye that it is not strange that citizens desire that it shall not be given over to sports. We have beautiful lawns on every street, elegant houses, and everything to make a suburban city enjoyable, save that there is no place for the sons of either rich or poor citizens to engage in out-door sports.

There are vacant fields on Nonantum street, near the River, on Hunnewell Hill, on Tremont street, on Arlington and Brighton streets, on Mt. Ida, and a number in the Morse field district, some of which are used neither for pasture nor for grass, and will not the owners of some of these offer them either free or for a reasonable rent for a public playground, under proper restrictions. The rent demanded could be raised by a public subscription. Any one who is willing to do anything in this matter can send their names to the GRAPHIC office, and it might be stated that it will be a very cheap and easy way of earning the gratitude of the boys of Newton, and of furnishing an amount of happiness altogether out of proportion to the small outlay involved.

THE ONLY REMEDY.

The special committee appointed by the City Council to confer with the Boston & Albany officials in regard to lower and more equitable rates for scholars who have to come from the South side of the city, received but very cold comfort. The officials evidently had rather run their circuit trains from Newtonville to Newton Centre empty, than to secure a full train twice a day by making a reasonable rate for high school pupils. The present rates around the circuit are almost prohibitory, and the only remedy seems to be to find out which of the two street railways asking for a franchise on Walnut street mean business, and grant a charter to the one that promises to have their cars running first. With street cars running from Newton Highlands and Newton Centre, the greater part of the scholars would be accommodated, and the much discussed high school barge question would be settled.

Walnut street is almost too good a street to be given up to a street railway, but it is at any rate wider than Washington street, and for a good part of its length could be widened at a small expense. The prompt building of the road would relieve the pupils of the exactions of the circuit road, and the citizens likewise. It was expected when the circuit was built that the rates of fare would be low enough to admit of much travelling between the two sides of the city, but tickets were placed at such a high figure that very few avail themselves of the steam cars, and the two sides of the city are still strangers to each other. A street railway with five cent fares would be of much more advantage than the steam railway, and would nearly monopolize the passenger travel between the two sections.

The Board of Aldermen should insist on one thing, however, and that is that the road should begin running its cars within a reasonable time, say three months. Besides, it would probably be easy to secure, before the charter is granted, a guarantee of half rates for High school pupils and school children. This has been done in some cities, and the action of the Boston & Albany shows that concessions must be secured in advance, if they are to be looked for at all.

There was an interesting incident the other day which shows the sentiment of New England Republicans on the tariff question, and also how far our representatives in Congress are from standing by the wishes of their constituents. Some thirty or forty business men of Boston, all Republicans, held a private meeting to talk over the tariff, and it transpired that every man present was emphatically opposed to the McKinley bill. Some of them pronounced it an outrage on the people, both consumers and producers, and what is especially noteworthy is that a number of them were members of the Home Market club. Judging from the reports, the minority of the ways and means committee exactly expressed the sentiments of these Republicans, in their minority report, which is given in our Tariff Reform column to-day. The report opens, by the way, with a curious prediction made by Daniel Webster in a speech at Faneuil Hall, which seems to have been literally fulfilled in the proceedings of the present Congress. The Senate appears to represent the Republican party much more nearly than the house, and it seems probable that the McKinley bill will hardly be recognized when the Senate gets through with it. The Republican Senators believe in protection, but in a reasonable form.

Assistant Postmaster General Clark's side of civil service reform is perhaps better set forth by his unequalled record in decapitating Democratic postmasters than by his Boston speech, which might have passed muster in "the wild and woolly West" but was not up to the New England ideal. Congressman Lodge, who is theoretically a firm believer in reform set Mr. Clarkson right in several particulars, and it is hinted that he was inspired to do this by the administration, which felt that it was injured by Mr. Clarkson's contradictory and injudicious remarks. The latter is a politician, pure and simple, and the offices represent to him the legitimate rewards of victory, and all his kind of civil service reform is probably summed up in the words of the immortal Flannagan, "What are we here for?" To invite him to New England to speak on civil service reform was as much of a mistake as it would have been to invite Col. Dudley or Senator Quay, the other members of the famous trio. Their ideas are not suited to the high and pure atmosphere of New England.

In spite of the defeat of the Australian caucus act in the legislature, which was an unfortunate party move, Chairman Coffin says that all Republican caucuses in Newton will be conducted on the Australian plan. This is an excellent reform movement, and it will give the people of Newton an excellent chance to make their wishes felt in regard to nominations. Usually in Newton, as in many other places, people will not attend the caucuses, which are thus left to half a dozen men in each ward, who select the candidates and nominate them, and then there is more or less fault finding. Under the new plan there will be plenty of time given for each voter to make his wishes felt, and it ought to call out the majority of the voters.

SENATOR PLUMB is making a good deal of trouble for the tariff bill in the National Senate, by his motion that the reason shall be given for every advance in the tariff duties. If all that is said is true, it is not at all probable that the real reason would bear the light, and the friends of the McKinley bill think Plumb is worse than Butterworth, and are asking if he wants to defeat the bill, and bring ruin generally.

THE letter to ex-Collector Saltonstall, which is given on another page, which is signed by both Republicans and Democrats, is a mark of honor of which Mr. Saltonstall's fellow citizens may well feel proud. Coming out so soon after Mr. Clarkson's speech, it emphasizes the fact that New England endorses civil service reform of the genuine kind.

THE Waban land sale will be continued on Saturday, and persons who buy lots there, will have fully as safe an investment, to put it mildly, as those who take stock in any of the Southern land booms. It is said that several houses are to be put up on this tract at once.

THE coal monopolists have just ordered an advance in the price of coal and a restriction of production during June. This affects every consumer in the country, but the coal monopolists do not care as long as they can control Congress and dictate its action on tariff bills.

MANY people forgot about the May anniversary until they had to hunt up their umbrellas on Tuesday.

Newtons Lose a Game.

The Newtons were defeated in an interesting game of ball last Saturday, on the Auburn street grounds by the Red Stockings of Cambridge. It took ten innings, an umpire and many senseless "kicks" to win the game by the close score of 5 to 4. The features were the work of both batteries, and especially the pitching of Dorr, a catch by Dempsey in left field, the base running of Dorr and the poor umpiring of a Cambridge man, who "wasted" the home club. The Newtons scored three runs on Dorr's hit and steals of second and third. Morton's three base hit, singles by Farrell and Fitzgerald, Gorman's two-bagger and an error by Garrity. The Red Stockings' runs were scored on a single by Moore, two sacrifices, errors by Stacey, Morton and Dorr. Appended is the score:

THE FAMOUS OIL RANGE. A HOUSEHOLD BLESSING.

Housekeepers who appreciate a cool kitchen and wish to simplify the summer cooking, will find here just the article needed. The Famous Oil Range has been on the market six years, and thousands of them are in use. It is unlike other oil stoves in being a range, with four large cover holes, all of which are available for cooking. It has more power than any other oil cooking apparatus, and is ready for use as soon as lighted. It is simple, economical, cleanly and odorless. It will last as long as a kitchen range, and is superior to it for baking and roasting. It works on the same principle as the Wire Gauge Oven Door as used on the well-known Hub Ranges. If you will write us, we will put you in the way of getting one of these stoves, no matter what part of the country you live in.

Boston Building Club.GRANITE STATE*PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.The question of homes and the methods of procuring them is one of the most vital that men have to deal with. The great mass of our people struggling under limited incomes are obliged to use economy in almost all directions to save out of their earnings sufficient to be of much benefit to them in acquiring the same. Cooperative banks have been the result of the workings of public-spirited men of the past; and their step has been "improved," making the accumulations of small savings valuable in the application toward certain specific objects, is a boon to any community.
The Granite State Provident Association has made this improvement, and its plan which is unique is original with us, of which the above club is a part. To say they have taken a decided step in this direction it is not desired to create the impression that the object of their work is a philanthropic one. But, if it does procure a saving or a more economical use of the funds of the people of limited means, it certainly is valuable in its action and is worthy of the consideration of all.

It is an aristocrat pole and has been given a prominent position in the square, about 20 feet from the fountain and in line with the flag staff. It is set close to the sidewalk, extending across the square on a line with Washington street. The new pole will have its burdens for it must bear the weight of the electric light and iron brackets, together with the electric light and telephone wires formerly suspended from the pole at the corner of Washington and Walnut streets. The old pole will be removed and in the place will arise one of those pretty iron poles designed for street car purposes. Citizens are indignant and claim that the location of the pole in the middle of a great square, and so near the fountain is not only objectionable but dangerous. It could have been easily placed back of the fountain, between it and the flag staff, out of harm's way and why it should have been located in the middle of the street seems to be a mystery. The city fathers will be requested to change the location and it has been suggested that, in the mean time, it would be a good plan to utilize the unsightly shape for kindling wood.

Dr. Rankin of Washington, D. C.

—The Boston Herald speaks of Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant, who occupied the pulpit in the Unitarian church, last Sunday: "Hers is very fascinating personality, and her work all and in the misery and the spirituality of her nature is constantly impressed upon her audience. Her enthusiasm and modesty take from the narrative of her work all suspicion of egotism and self-conceit, and one feels that the speaker tells of what she has done simply to show others what they can accomplish. As a speaker Mrs. Chant is very successful, holding the sympathetic attention of her audience by the power of a sweet voice, persuasive manner and a rapid flow of well chosen words. But more than that, she seems so full of her subject, whatever it may be, that one feels that if she only had time she would tell much more than that would be gladly listened to. Mrs. Chant, who, by the way, is an English woman, spoke from a pulpit for the first time in Boston two years ago, when, at the invitation of Rev. Minot Savage, she preached in the church of the Unity. Since then she has occupied pulpits in her native land, a very unusual occurrence. She is now in America to attend the anniversary meetings in Boston, and will be heard on several occasions. But it is not to the platform that she devotes her life. Her husband is a physician in London, and in his spare time, he is engaged in the East-end and finds her most congenial labor for suffering humanity."

PLE

EXTREMELY AWKWARD.

Mr. Yorke was an author. Not one of the penitential kind that we are apt to picture to ourselves scribbling in a garret and waiting with bated breath in the ante-rooms of magazine publishers. On the contrary, he had a snug little private fortune of his own, and he wrote as much to amuse himself as for any desire to amass money. Moreover, he was a successful author. Editors were glad to get his lucubrations, and sent him liberal checks therefor. He walked on Fifth avenue, with an orchid in his button-hole, on sunny afternoons, and rode a saddle horse in the park before breakfast. His table was strewn with cards to balls, dinners, and five o'clock teas, and take it all together, his lines were in pleasant places. And now to crown everything, he had fallen in love with Gwendoline Gordon, the beauty of the season, and she had designed to smile graciously upon him in return.

"Of course," said Gwen to her bosom friend, Muriel Jocelyn, "he isn't stunningly, stupendously rich like Pierre Petroléum, and he don't come of an old baronial family like that English captain of infantry. But he's awfully nice, don't you think so, dear?"

And Miss Jocelyn answered, "Awfully!"

But hidden in the sweetest bunch of roses there are thorns, Mr. Yorke's sharpest thorn was a charitable minded cousin, who belonged to the Working Guild of St. Ingomar's chapel, went about among the slums, and carried a flat satchel full of "lists." And on one particular May afternoon when her hof was three-quarters through the construction of a delicious little poem, the servant showed in:

"Miss Lucy Imray, sir, please!"

Mr. Yorke laid down his pen, and leaned back in despair. In his brain the coy little array of rhymes vanished like fairies at daybreak, the idea melted into nothingness—the "divine afflatus" was gone.

Miss Imray, in her close black bonnet, straight falling cloak, and string of black beads, put the satchel on the table, nearly upsetting a silver stand of violet ink as she did so, and seated herself in a business-like manner, with folded arms.

"How do, Stephen," said she.

Stephen Yorke eyed her balefully.

"Well, what is it now, dear? I sent you a check last week, didn't I?"

"Thanks ever so much," said Miss Imray. "It was forwarded to the Polyneesian Islands."

"Oh, it was, was it?"

Lucy nodded.

"We are not allowed to solicit money for our home needs," said she. "It is too easily turned into something quite antagonistic to our platform."

"What do you want, then?" questioned Stephen, despairingly, fumbling up his hair. "Furniture? Or groceries? Or—"

"Clothes," said Miss Imray. "Now don't look so savage, Stephen; you know it's our duty to help the poor in every way."

"Oh, hang the poor!" said Stephen. They don't want my dress suit, do they? Or my pearl studs, or my patent leather boots? I've a set of new linen shirts just come home from Marshall & Verinder."

"Don't be silly," said Miss Imray. "Remember I'm only begging for the poor. Such a deserving old sailor in Plum street, with a rheumatic wife and three small grandchildren."

"I've nothing in my whole wardrobe suitable for a deserving old sailor, with—"

"Oh, yes, you have, Stephen," said Lucy, serene and unruffled. "Think again."

"Nothing, I tell you. Here's ten dollars. Take it and buy me a new suit."

"Don't tell me you are not allowed to receive money? It's old clothes that I want. You must get me something, Stephen. The committee—"

"Both the committee."

"I will be glad to receive, through me, any article that you may have discarded. Coats and trousers are particularly applicable to our needs. Hats, boots, underwear—"

"I sometimes think, Lucy, that you are determined to drive me crazy," said Yorke.

"If you could only see the poor people crowd around the doors of our relief committee, Stephen," pleaded the young woman.

"Oh, let 'em alone for that. It pays to crowd around. Your average poor people have a particular sharp eye to the main chance."

"Come, Stephen, what are you going to give me?"

"Nothing."

"That's all nonsense."

"No, it isn't. How can a man give what he hasn't got?"

"Will you just let me take a look through your wardrobe, Stephen?"

"No woman is allowed to prowl through my wardrobe—not if I know it!"

"Then you are colder and flinty-hearted than I give you credit for being."

"Draw it mild, Lucy, draw it mild," pleaded Mr. Yorke, feigning great alarm.

"You're a miser."

"Perhaps I am."

"You are not willing to help those who are ready to perish?"

"Can't they perish in anything else but my best suit of clothes?"

"That's a mere evasion!"

"I'm sorry, Lucy, but—"

"No, an I say—that I have a cousin so lost to all sense of justice and generosity. Good-bye, Stephen."

And the long sister-of-mercy cloak, the close black bonnet, and the string of black wooden beads all vanished abruptly. Stephen Yorke looked after her, half smiling, half remorseful.

"Poor little Lucy!" said he to himself. "She's all absorbed in that charitable business of hers—and I don't doubt she accomplishes a great deal of good in one way and another. But if a man has absolutely nothing to give—"

Once more he dropped his pen. "Hold on," said he, aloud. "I never thought of that old fishing suit I brought back from Canada. It's pretty far gone in the knees and elbows, but it's a half a degree better than nothing. No use trying to write after all this disturbance!"

He rose and went wearily into his bedroom, where there was an iron-clamped trunk in an alcove, whence, after considerable rummaging, he produced a disreputable looking pair of trousers, patched, stretched and seedy in the last degree. The coat was altogether missing. Mr. Yorke eyed the garment with a whistle.

"And the moths have been at it, too," said he. "Never mind; she wanted old clothes. Old clothes she shall have. I'm sure they couldn't be older! Who's that knocking at the door? Oh, the roses from Bud & Blossom's. Put 'em on the table, my lad!"—to the district messenger boy—"and I'll be out directly. Leave the basket."

"Please, sir," said Dick O'Reilly, "I can't leave the basket. There's a lot of pannies and English violets in it for No. 40 Bedford Place."

And thus speaking he departed. Stephen Yorke emerged from the shadow of the iron-clamped trunk, and viewed the drift of long-stemmed, sweet-heated roses.

"Beauties," said he to himself. "Exactly what I wanted."

And with sundry sheets of cotton wool, some tissue paper, and a flat paste-board box, he packed the fragrant treasures and wrote a few lines on the back of a visiting card.

"Wear these, dearest, for my sake. I see them to-night, I shall know that my suit is in the hands of the gods."

From Catherine Mermet and Niphetos roses to a worn fishing outfit was a fall indeed—but of such alterations is life composed. On a second card he wrote:

"DEAR LUCY—I found these after you had gone. Take them and do the best you can with 'em. Yours ever, STEPHEN."

The roses refused to pack nicely—the half-worn garments declined to adapt themselves to any box in his possession, with an obstinacy which went far to establish the doctrine of the depravity of inanimate objects—but at last the vexed question was settled, the packages dispatched by special messenger, and peace reigned once more.

The purple dusk was brooding over the wide avenue—a gentle sea breeze had sprung up with the sunset, and the electric lights were beginning to shine here and there when Stephen Yorke sauntered down his doorsteps, the famous pearl studs glistening in his shirt front, his white silk necktie adjusted to a nicety. Almost at the foot of the steps Lucy Imray met him, intent on one of her charitable missions.

"Hello, Stephen," cried Lucy, "I'm so much obliged. It was so kind of you to send them. They are such beauties!"

"Beauties, eh?" said Yorke. "Well, opinions differ. If you can make 'em useful—"

"I have made them useful," said Miss Imray with a positive nod. "I sent some of them to a sick girl down on Avenue A—and some of them went to the Hospital Annex, and—"

"Eh?" ejaculated Stephen Yorke. "A sick girl down on Avenue A—a Hospital Annex? What are you talking about? My fishing trousers?"

"Fishing trousers!" echoed Miss Imray. "What are you talking about? They were roses—the loveliest I ever saw in my life!"

"Roses," Mr. Yorke smote his knee with a smothered exclamation. "Did I send you the roses?"

"With a nice little note, asking me to do the best I could with them!" beamed Lucy.

"Then," said Stephen, "I'm ruined! That's the long and short of it!"

"Stephen, have you gone crazy?"

"Look here, Lucy Imray!" said the young man. "I've sent you the roses I intended for Gwendoline Gordon at the house I'm going to dine to-night! And I've sent her a pair of half-worn trousers, asking her to wear 'em for my sake! What do you think of that?"

For a second Miss Imray's dimpled face reflected the blank horror pictured in Stephen's every feature, then she burst into peal after peal of uncontrollable laughter.

"Oh Stephen," she cried, "do—do—do forgive me—but I can't help it! Gwen Gordon—the stateliest, the laughtiest of women! Oh, Stephen, I shall die, if I can't get the ridiculousness of it out of my head! Don't glare at me so dreadfully, Stephen; it's a dreadful blunder, I know, but they can neither hang, draw, nor quarter you for it! I'll go to Gwendoline Gordon myself—a little sister of St. Ingomar can go anywhere and do anything, you know—and explain the whole thing!"

"You are an angel!" said poor Stephen Yorke.

"I'll never forgive him!" said Miss Gordon, seated in her boudoir, like an indignant empress. "Be silent, Muriel! Nothing can justify this! If it is meant for a practical joke, I hate and despise that sort of thing. If he intended a deliberate insult—"

"But he doesn't," cooed a soft little voice behind her, as the sister of Mercy tripped in. "He's down stairs now ready to commit suicide. It was all my fault, Miss Gordon. I had been persecuting her for a suit of half-worn clothes for my poor people, and he packed a box of the delicious roses for you at the same time. And men are such inefficient creatures, you know! And I got your roses and sent them to the sick patients on my list, and the clothes for my old sailor were sent here! And you can fancy how Stephen's dismay! Yes, that's right, laugh, Miss Gordon! When once one laughs, the bitterness is all gone out of one's heart!"

The sister of Mercy's intercession was not in vain. Miss Gordon came smiling down to dinner. Muriel Jocelyn followed her all a-giggle. Gwendoline went up to the wretched young man who stood speechless by the window, and held out her soft, snowflake of a hand to him.

"I can't wear your roses, Mr. Yorke," said she, "because—"

"Oh, Miss Gordon, can you ever forgive me for committing such a blunder?"

"—because," went on Gwendoline, "you didn't send them. But it's all the same as if I wore them!"

And Stephen Yorke knew that he had won the garden of his life.

Padena and Around There.

This region from which I write to-day possesses certain characteristics and peculiarities which makes it individual and in a way unique. It is incomparable with any other place that it has ever been my privilege to visit. The blase itinerant in writing home may say that Santa Barbara reminds him so much of Mentone, simply because the bay is crescent shape; another one will perhaps say that Spring street in Los Angeles reminds him so much of High Holborn in London, only because the street is laid out with asphalt, while still another can liken any place to Nice because it has flies, mosquitoes and dust.

This equable and salubrious climate of which the Californian may truly be proud, is its preeminent feature and can hardly be likened with that of any other place. Surely it cannot be compared with that of Saint Augustine or Manitou. Nice, Mentone, Genoa and Naples are very delightful and seems to be all that could be desired to the naturalized Yankee Doodle, but not to one who lives or has passed any time here. Perhaps the nearest thing to it is that of New South Wales in Australia.

The lavish land of nature, which results from a climate which may be said to be perennially spring and fall, and the prodigious vegetation are also preeminent features. So it is that this country may be said to possess two preeminent features, the climate and the natural beauties. One in writing home naturally speaks of these above all others, for practically speaking there is little else to write about, but on this topic volumes could be written, and yet the half would not be told. He who would seek a place for his history, for all that is dear in associations, would not find it here, where the great metropolis in the northern part of this state, which has had such a marvelous growth, and is now of so much importance, has a history of a little over forty years, while the smaller one in the south is not twenty years old. The little town from which I write to-day is hardly ten years old, and yet it has a population of nearly ten thousand. Could you look at me, and see the shops and public buildings on Colorado street, and the beautiful residences on Orange Grove avenue, you would be strongly impressed with its prodigious growth and the enterprising spirit of its people; you would also be impressed with the possibilities with such a climate and soil; and I think that you would be in feeling that it would be the ideal home for your great grandchildren.

As I said above, this country possesses certain characteristics, which it would be hard to find elsewhere. One of the strangest and perhaps most interesting of these is the curious lay of the land. I cannot adequately tell you what I mean by this, nor can you fully understand it, until you yourself have walked or ridden over this country. One is constantly met with surprises; there is much that is paradoxical and elusive. There are those times when arroyos (rivers) will realize that you had been at the top, and not tell whether you are going up or down. This is explained in a manner by the gentle undulation of the land. The land slopes very gradually from the mountains to sea, so that when these lines are brought against the abrupt and precipitous ridges of the mountains it is very deceiving, and hence you will seem to be going down hill when you are really going up.

Should you walk with me to-day from Colorado street, (the main street of Pasadena) toward the foot hills of the Sierra Madre Range, you would not realize that you had been at the top, and not tell whether you are going up or down. AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

REV. D. H. TAYLOR SPEAKS OF THE MORAL AND RELIGIOUS INFLUENCES OF THE WAR.

Rev. D. H. Taylor occupied the pulpit in the Central Congregational church last Sunday morning, and assembled before him were the members of Charles Ward Post 62 and a large congregation, completely filling the large auditorium. The speaker took his text from II Timothy, 2, 11: "Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." The man Paul, who wrote this sentence, said the speaker, was not a military man; he was a Christian missionary. Jesus Christ was not a military man; he was the son of God, the prophet, the Savior of the world. If the writer and the man of whom he wrote and to whom he wrote were not military men, why did Paul use this military language? Paul had the martial strain in his very nature. The new testament has nothing in it about Christians being soldiers. The thought is Paul's thought. It was Paul who said: "Let thy loins be girt about with truth; your feet sharpened with the preparation of the gospel of peace, have upon your head for a helmet to protect your intellect, the hope of salvation, buckled upon you the breastplate of righteousness." Paul was born in a military town. In his mission work he came in contact with the Roman soldiers. No wonder, therefore, that he put his words in these wonderfully sharp military outlines.

I have chosen to preach upon this text, continued the speaker, because no class of people can better appreciate the force of these figures of Paul's words than the members of the grand army. We have enjoyed a long period of peace. Twenty-five years have passed since you laid down your arms, after winning the blessing that we now enjoy. To you these years have passed quickly; it does not seem long. Your sons know little about the war and the costs. To them it is only a page of history. Let us thank God for it and pray that their sons may not become the sons of veterans. History reveals no other record of a nation enjoying such long periods of peace as ours. After the Revolutionary war, 31 years passed before the scenes of another battle's strife, and again 31 years passed away before the war with Mexico. Today, 25 years have passed since your flags were furled and you returned to your homes.

Most of us have learned, none better than you, that life presents still other campaigns. We have had the campaigns in which the Christian soldiers had to endure hardships. I am inclined to think from listening to the history of the civil struggle from the soldiers' lips that it was hardiness all the way through. In order to be good Christian soldiers in the campaign of peace, we must be able to endure hardness. Since the war, great political questions have been decided, with which you and I had little to do. How to meet the war debt, the position of the Southern gentlemen, the tariff and such problems have been settled in Congress. There are other questions that cannot be settled in Congress, that can only be settled by Christian fortitude. After the war came the financial crisis, bringing with it debased ideas concerning the accumulation of money. It took Christian men to stand upon their feet in order to meet that issue. Christian men have acquired wealth and remained honest. It is honest to coin the thought of the brain into gold, but it can be done in a Christian way. We are on the wave, I believe, of a new financial order of things in this country, and it will result in the firm establishment of honest business methods.

The war had its effect in debasing the morals of the American people. It blotted out some things, resulting in good, including the old-fashioned Puritan Sabbath. The Puritan Sabbath was not so good in its conception as the Sabbath of today. I deplore certain loose and irregular ways of spending the Lord's day, but it is well that we have got rid of the legal idea of the Sabbath. The veterans who fought on Sunday prayed to God for grace, and waged war for their country's salvation. This was doing God's work. But the Puritan law has also been wiped away and what has come in its place? Few men here can remember the old-fashioned taverns, but so far as the intelligence, morals and strength of men are concerned, it would be immeasurably better to bring back the old taverns than to possess this phenomenal thing they call a saloon. How are we to meet this evil? By efforts of men like you, not only in Newton, but rising in their might and strength throughout this grand nation. It can be settled only at the feet of Jesus Christ.

Loose ideas concerning the home have been springing up in the past 25 years. We have organized societies for the suppression of vice and for the suppression of divorce. Some phases of American family life for illegality and immorality surpass that of England and France. How are we going to meet this? It would not be fair to say that the Puritan brought this condition, but as the result of the war this condition was brought about. Many homes were broken up, many fathers and sons left orphans, many daunted ignorantly and with no guiding influence into the world. The men who returned with the grand army are among the noblest and purest men in America. It is only through the efforts of these nobler and purer men, who dare to do right for Jesus sake, that a debased moral condition can be improved. The question which arose after the war—what to do with the freed men, has been met by men who were able to endure hardness. It has been met through the efforts of the soldiers of Christ, establishing schools and colleges, educating the colored men, making them not only better citizens, but better Christians. The colored race has been lifted up morally and intellectually. These educational institutions were established by Christian men willing to make sacrifices in order that the condition of others might be improved. They had to meet and contend with the natural prejudice and anger of the Southern people. The Southern men must be remembered, have had some excuse for disliking the freed men. The Southern widow of a confederate soldier has some reason for her hatred of the northern soldiers who burned their homes and made desolate their cities. This feeling of hatred is cooling, and a spirit of brotherly love and peace is gradually taking its place.

How has that condition been brought about? Not by any act of Congress. Congress cannot act on such questions. It is through Christianity, by the love of the Christian brother for the Christian brother that these men are brought nearer together. It is the spirit of God that is cementing the union between North and South. Let us do our part as good soldiers of Jesus; let us keep on fighting these campaigns of peace until we have settled these great moral questions and learned to live together as brethren in this grand country.

In conclusion, the speaker, addressing the members of the post, said: "Twenty-five years ago, waiting for the grand review, you could say, I have fought the good fight, I have kept my pledges, and to-morrow the capital city will be ablaze with patriotism; my country will place upon my head a crown of righteousness. Aye, and not only for the dust begrimed soldiers who marched with Sherman to the sea, but for everyone is awaiting a crown of rejoicing forever. Fight on then to the end and with Paul say, 'God the righteous judge will place a crown of righteousness upon my head; and may the blessing of God rest upon you and yours for his name's sake.'

Sick Headache

Is a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine, sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in regular daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

—The movement at the Newton Theological Institution, says the Watchman, separating the English from the regular course, is an advance step. The aim of the trustees and professors seems to be to push the regular course and to make it thoroughly adequate to the needs of college graduates. The problem arising in theological institutions from the presence of a considerable number of students who have not had the advantages of college training, Rochester has met by closing its doors to English students. Newton meets it by broadening the scope of its work, so as to provide for the needs of both classes, and in a way that gives the college graduates the very best it has to offer, and the English course students a far better equipment for the ministry than is to be obtained in any "training school." The large and choice list of "electives," that Newton offers college graduates, the distinction which her younger professors are winning in their departments, and the reputation of the seniors, put Newton on the way to a first place among American theological schools. Newton never offered the college graduate so many advantages as for this year that opens in September, and she does this by enlarging the range of her work, and meeting the needs of the times. We believe that the New England churches or students for the ministry will be slow to recognize the broader range of scholarly work to which Newton addresses herself in this new departure.
